Town of Southampton

Commenced January 1, 1871
The mission of the Historic Division of the Town Clerk’s Office is to preserve and protect the Town of Southampton’s historic holdings for generations to come. The few copies that we have of our original editions of the Record Books of the Town of Southampton are now in need of preservation.

In addition to preserving our Town’s record books, our goal is to provide improved access to those people that are interested in exploring the wonderful history of the Town of Southampton. Technological developments have allowed us to scan the originals in order to reprint each volume and also to post them on our website offering new search capabilities that have not been available in the past.

Respectfully yours,

Sundy A. Schermeyer, Town Clerk

plaint made by David R. Rose, Samuel B. Gardiner, attorney, in the same matter. Consulting such individuals whose counsel was valued as were accessible and acting in accordance with his convictions of duty to the citizens of the town, he entered upon the defense employing counsel to represent him in court, while the several suits should be prosecuted.

Upon hearing of the motion for an injunction it was denied the plaintiff.

The suit was upon the calendar at the last October court, but when called for was withdrawn by plaintiff’s attorney.

A motion was then made by defendant’s attorney for a referee to ascertain the damages sustained by the town, and ex-Judge John Laurence Smith was appointed. He has set once or twice but the investigation is not yet closed, or at least has not been reported to me as completed.

This meeting will give its incoming Supervisor such instructions in regard to this suit as its wisdom may dictate.

Presiding Officers, P. R. Jennings, Esq., Chairman; Justices Ludlow, and Foster; Clerk, E. H. Foster.
Minutes of the last meeting read and approved. The meeting proceeded to the election of Pound Masters and Trustees, with the following results, Pound Masters, Herman Woodruff, Franklin Jagger, John F. Foster and Jessie Halsey.

The General Statement of the Receipts and Disbursements of the town, was then read and placed on file, and also the Commissioners of Highways report, and it was voted to raise the amt asked for by them viz: $225.

After a discussion the motion that a committee of three to consist of the Hon. H. P. Hedges, Wm. S. Pelletreau, Esq., and the Town Clerk, be appointed to select, copy, and cause to be printed the first book of Town Records and such other documents of historical value as they may consider desirable, at a cost not exceeding $150, was adopted.

The sum of $1000, for the contingent fund for the ensuing year and $2500 for the Overseers of the Poor it was voted to raise, also that the Overseers of the Poor use if necessary; in addition to the $2500 raised the $500. bond in hands of Supervisor. Report of the Committee on the Poor House farm read and approved; the report of the Committee to ascertain about carrying the mails on the Sag Harbor branch of the Long Island R. R. heard, and it was decided that the committee be continued with the addition of S. B. French and E. A. Carpenter, the latter to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of Mr. Ackerly from the town.

(Abstract). Appointed a committee to ascertain and describe the line dividing the towns of Southampton and Brookhaven and to place stones or other monuments; and that their description be final. Mr. Wm. R. Post and Seth R. Jagger were appointed this committee.

(Abstract). Thanks to the Long Island Railroad for running a special train for convenience of the electors.

At four p.m. the presiding officers proceeded to a canvass of the votes, after which the following were declared as elected, viz:

Supervisor, Wm. R. Post; Town Clerk, E. H. Foster; Justice of the Peace, James H. Foster full term; Justice of the Peace, to fill vacancy, Marcus E. Griffin; Collector, James A. Harris; Assessors, Henry R. Harris; Assessors, to fill vacancies, Henry M. Rose, Wm. H. Foster.

Overseers of the Poor, James L. Haines, Harlan P. Fanning.

Commissioner of Highways, Hannibal French.

*In 1870 a bill was presented to the legislature praying for the closing of the main highway in the town of Southampton. It was a nonsensical petition, the work of two or three gentlemen who had adopted Suffolk County for a residence. If passed, it would have been the means of enhancing the value of property which the men owned in the town. The highway at Shinnecock Plain was then sixteen rods wide, and it continued from that width down to a width of eight rods through a distance of several miles. At a later time the Commissioners of Highways made the highway narrower, (8 rods), and of uniform width. Before this the highway was split up into triangles and parallelograms by a score of needless paths. The real reason for the great width of the highway was that the original founders set aside the lands for commons for pasture as well as passing.—Ed.

Page 31. We, Austin Culver and Jesse W. Pelletreau of the town of Brookhaven in Suffolk County, having been empowered by the Trustees of the town of Brookhaven to represent and act for said town in ascertaining and describing the boundary line between the aforesaid town of Brookhaven and the town of Southampton, and to erect suitable monuments at such points as may be necessary to perpetuate said boundary line, as will more fully appear by reference to the records of said town of Brookhaven, page 39, Liber F. under date of May 6th 1873—and Seth R. Jagger and William R. Post of the town of Southampton who were invested with like authority by the inhabitants of said town of Southampton in annual town meeting assembled April 1st 1873 as will more fully appear by reference to the records of said town pages 28 and 29, (twenty eight and twenty nine) Liber D,—do hereby report and make the following return to be entered of record in the respective towns of Brookhaven and Southampton.

Report. Commencing on the South Beach meadows opposite Seatuck we found no traces of the boundary line sought to be established by a commission of said towns under date of December 16th, 1817, and inasmuch as it appears from the return of James Fanning and Josiah Smith the commissioners of the town of Brookhaven (which does not appear to have been signed by William Herrick and John P. Osborn commissioners of Southampton) that the line then sought to be established at that part of said towns, divided or ran across "Swan Island" the whole of which was owned by the Proprietors of the common and undivided lands of the town of Southampton and was improved by them yearly from 1741 to 1838 and was then sold by them as will appear by reference to the records of said Proprietors: Therefore we agreed to make a certain natural and well defined creek known as "Clam Creek," to be the dividing line at this place—and then starting from the north side of the Beach Banks, directly against the head of said "Clam Creek" we placed in the meadow at some distance northward from the Banks, a square red stone monument with Roman letter S on the east side and B on the west side; and thence running northwardly direct to the head of said "Clam Creek" and onward through the center of said creek and between Long Point and Swan Island into the open bay; thence across said bay in a direct line to the center of the mouth of Seatuck river; thence up the middle of said river to the center of Pye's mill dam; thence in a direct line to the Bound stone standing on the northerly side of the country road on the west side of Seatuck creek this being now the Southeast corner of the homestead lately occupied by Barrett and Beebe, and the point designated in the ancient records as the "Bound Tree at Seatuck," See records town of Southampton 1668, Liber A, page 134, do 1703, do page 270 do 1782 Liber B, page 400, and Proprietors Trustees records, 1772 page 203, do 1774 page 223.

At this point we set a six inch white marble post marked with Roman letters S on the east and B on the west side; thence north twenty degrees & forty minutes east as the needle now points to a certain stone and locust stake standing on the north side of a certain road which runs eastwardly and westwardly along the south side of Peconic River known as the "River Road" where we placed a square red stone monument with Roman letters described on the others; and thence on the same course to Peconic River. The distance from said "River Road" or red stone monument to the edge of the river measuring along said line is six chains and fifteen links.

At the edge of the river and about thirty nine links westwardly of said line measuring at a right angle with the said line, there is a large pepperidge tree overhanging the river, hollow on the south side and charred by fire over the hollow part. The bearing of said Pepperidge tree from the red stone monument is north sixteen degrees and fifty five minutes east.

Note. The course of the line from the Moriches country road or Bound tree (now a white marble post) to Peconic River as agreed upon by commissioners Isaac Post, Stephen Jagger, David Halsey, Josiah Smith and Timothy Halsey, April 30th 1782 was north eighteen degrees east, and the line above described by us is the same line, the variation of the compass increasing westwardly.

In confirmation of the above we the subscribers, a committee duly constituted and empowered as aforesaid have hereunto set our hands and seals interchangeably to this and a like instrument, this twenty first day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy three.

*WILLIAM R. POST

William Rogers Post was born in Southampton, April 8, 1811, a descendant from a founder's family, the first Post, Richard, being mentioned in town records in 1648. He was successful in the whaling enterprise at Sag Harbor, and as a Hampton farmer. From 1840 to 1850 he was not only a ship agent but a general store keeper at “the port.” He also engaged in the lumber business in partnership with Judge Osborn. After 1852 Mr. Post retired from active management of his Sag Harbor investments and returned to Southampton, where April, 1852 he was elected Supervisor. He was again elected Supervisor in 1854 and 1855, and in 1865 was reinstated chief officer of Southampton town, serving for twelve consecutive years. As Supervisor he drafted the railroad bonding act passed in April, 1869, and was author of the clause that provided for the gradual reduction of interest, thereby saving the town many hundred dollars interest charges.—Ed.

The whole ticket was elected by a majority of about 100, except the Supervisor, who had only 9 majority.

Game Constable, John W. Hull; Excise Commissioner, Herrick J. Rogers.

Of the other two auditors each had 297 votes, therefore no appointment was made as third auditor. The whole number of votes cast was 713.

Page 70. Agreement between certain owners of the North Cedar Swamp at North Sea, as to division line.

Whereas by reference to the records of the town of Southampton, Liber B, page 386, it appears that the dividing line between lots Number forty six & forty seven, running through the north cedar swamp at North Sea & east of the land now of Stephen Harris, (formerly of Zebulon Jennings) was established and described by two men chosen as arbitrators, as beginning at small red oak tree at the south end of said swamp, & running in a direct line to a stake in a hedge fence near the north sea line; and whereas the exact positions of the said tree & the said stake cannot now be found, and whereas the three interior corner stakes of the division lines of the owner of that part of the said swamp lying in lot Number forty six (46), as then made and recorded are not quite in a direct line, Now therefore in order to the establishment of the whole of said division line in conformity with the record of said line herein above referred to, it is hereby agreed between the present owners of that part of said cedar swamp which is divided by said line, that it shall be a direct and straight line running through two stakes which stand together at the north west corner of the land of the heirs of John Allen deceased, (formerly Samuel or Benjamin Huntting & subsequently of David - Mackie) and at the south west corner of the lot now owned by Charles White, William White & others (formerly Ephraim & John White,) as the same was subdivided, which said stakes are marked respectively NK. I. W. & which appear to be of long standing, and an old stake standing at the south west corner of the lot which was subdivided between John Jagger & Christopher Lupton and which is now the south west corner of the lot which fell to John Jagger & which is now owned by the heirs of David Jagger deceased, and extending southward to the south end of said swamp along the west end of the lot now belonging to William, Henry L. and Mary A. White, to the edge of the swamp which shall be assumed, and is hereby by us declared to be the point designated in the former record by the words, “a small red oak tree,” and said division line shall also be extended northward to the hedge fence at the edge of the swamp which shall be assumed, and is by us hereby declared to be the point designated in said former record by the words, “to a stake in the hedge fence &c.”

The course of this division line is north twenty eight degrees west, as the compass now points.

To this confirmation of the former record & description of said division line, we the undersigned, owners or representatives of owners of said lots do hereby severally agree, and we direct this agreement to be placed upon the town records also the subjoined plot of said line. (Here is a pen and ink sketch of lands as described in agreement).

Whereas a road used for a highway, in the town of Southampton county of Suffolk, leading from the road past the residence of Mr. Jeremiah Reeves, to Jefferys Creek; east of the house of Thomas Howard, to the bay near Holmes Hill, was laid out by the Commissioners of highways of said town on the 20th of June 1726, for mention of which see second book printed records of the town, page 194, but not sufficiently described, Now therefore, we the undersigned commissioners of highways of said town, having met at the house of Jeremiah Reeves, in said town, for the purpose of causing said road to be ascertained, described & entered of record in the town clerk's office; all the commissioners being present, and having deliberated on the subject embraced in this order, do hereby order that the said road be ascertained, described & entered of record, And the said commissioners having caused a survey of the said road to be made, do further order that said road be ascertained & described according to the said survey, being as follows: Beginning at a point or stone on the east side of the road to be described, & on the north side of the road to Jefferys Creek; thence north eight d. fifty five m. west (N 8, 55 W) two c. thirty five 1; (2.35)

And it is further ordered that the line above described be the east line of the said road, and that said road be of the width of three (3) rods.

As reference is made in said record, page 194, to the Wm. Jennings gate, and as the precise location of said gate is now unknown; it is agreed by the commissioners that the gate at the north east corner of Thos. V. Howard's door yard be accepted as the Wm. Jennings gate; And further, as a gate or fence was permitted by the commissioners March 31st 1821, (see Liber C, Town Records, page 50,) at the request of Appollos Harris and the North Sea people; and as said gate or fence is gone, and place uncertain, it is consented that the gate or fence between lands of Mr. Walter Scott & Thos. V. Howard, be called the Appollos Harris gate.

And if the commissioners have authority, they hereby permit the swing gate, named before the Wm. Jennings gate, to remain at the place designated. And as there has been a petition to the present commissioners of highways, signed by a majority of the North Sea people, that the gate or fence called above the Appollos Harris gate be allowed to remain at the place designated; by the same authority they, the commissioners consent to said swing gate across the road, between the lands of Walter Scott & Thos. V. Howard; either or both of these gates to be removed by order of the commissioners of highways, when it shall be made to appear to them that they are obstructions & inconvenient to the traveling public.

Both gates are to be ample width, not less than ten (10) feet, in the most convenient place in said road, properly hung with front and back fastenings.

*[Note.—In opinion of Mr. Pelletreau bottom of Mecox Bay was undivided land, which had never been allotted, divided or sold to individuals, and that it still remained the property of the Proprietors of the undivided lands; Mr. Sweeny reported that the bay was tidewater nourished wholly by ocean water; Mr. Hedges reported that definite title could not be determined without action properly brought in the courts. Mr. Sweeny reported that all adjoining lands were bounded by the bay, and that several of the land owners claimed to own no bay bottom. Mr. Pelletreau reported that the committee was agreed as to certain facts as to the ownership of the lands covered by the waters of Mecox Bay; but disagree as to the conclusions to be drawn from the facts agreed upon and for that reason it was deemed best that each member of the committee should make a separate report, stating his views. Mecox Bay bottom was sold by Proprietor Owners. The Freeholders and Commonalty through the Town Trustees then brought ejectment suit. The Court decided the bay bottom belonged to the town, and that title given by Proprietor Owners was invalid. The suit was carried to the Court of Appeals, and the town won in the Appellate Division and the court of last resort.—Ed.

Page 145. Minutes of the Annual Meeting of the Town of Southampton, N. Y., April 3d, 1883:
Polls opened at 9 a. m., voting continued till 12 M., when the business meeting was opened. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted.

The meeting elected Pound Masters as follows, vis: James A. Hildreth, Herman Woodruff, and Isaac Mott. The vote for Town Trustees taken by uplifted hands was large and unanimous for the following persons, vis: Wesley H. Squires, Benjamin F. Squires, Gilbert A. Penny, George G. White, John Quinn, Tuthill Carter, Albert J. Post, Charles H. Halsey, Theodore A. Halsey, J. Lawrence Cook, Sr., Lewis R. Squires, Joseph Penny, who were declared elected.

(Abstract). General Statement of receipts and disbursements for past year, Overseers of Poor accounts and railroad account accepted.

Resolved, That the Supervisor of the Town be authorized to resist, i.e., (attempts to repeal the *North Haven Bridge act), in all legal ways, and use all the contingent fund if necessary for such purpose, so far as he can legally do, and if required borrow and pledge the faith of the town therefor, to the amount not exceeding $3000. in addition.

*Note.—The Payne Bridge, or North Haven Bridge, a wooden structure supported by spiles was built in 1834. By a special act which became a law May 5, that year, the “Payne Bridge Company” was incorporated with a capital stock of $2,000, in shares of $25 each, with a provision for its increase. Authority was given the company to erect a bridge from Sag Harbor to “Hog Neck,” as “shall be found advisable.” Commissioners named to receive subscriptions were Luther D. Cook, Marcus B. Osborne and Charles W. Payne. The bridge spanned a deep and narrow channel dividing Sag Harbor from North Haven. To go on or off the “Neck” before it was built passage by boat or scow across the waterway, or the round about road from Foot of the Beach, traversing Long Beach and Short Beach, led to that part of the town and at Short Beach was the “Wading Place,” where a town bridge now stands. In a heavy gale of 1847 the North Haven Bridge was partly demolished, and soon afterward rebuilt. The Bridge was a toll bridge. Chapter 403 of the Laws of 1868, dissolved the toll bridge company and transferred the maintenance of the bridge to Suffolk county. After this, for a number of years the structure was ill

Resolved, That the President of the Board of Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton, be authorized to employ *counsel in behalf of the Board to investigate and give an opinion as to the powers of the trustees respecting the rights of the town in and to the waters and lands under the waters of said town, and kept; it was dangerous to cross, and the "draw" was fastened so it could not be opened. In 1880 some repairs were made and the bridge was kept in passable condition until 1890. To obviate crossing tracks of the Long Island Railroad, at Bridge street, Sag Harbor, the town gave an easement of water front (shore, and land under water) to Joseph Fahys and associates, who had summer homes on North Haven. They rebuilt the bridge and constructed a bulkhead and causeway from foot of North Main street, Sag Harbor to "the Point" on North Haven. It cost Mr. Fahys and other private donors $23,000. The bridge stood for nine years. July 18, 1900, under-bored by ravage of teredo, a marine insect, the wooden bridge fell into the water. The piling was completely honeycombed by the shipworms, or teredos. The same year the county authorized the construction of a steel and concrete bridge, with an 85-ft. swing draw. The resolution on page 145, Liber C, refers to attempts made in the 80's to place the cost of the maintenance of the North Haven Bridge on Southampton town. It was successfully resisted, inasmuch as the main highways of eastern Long Island lead to the bridge, and it spans a waterway which had separated ready communication between the Hampton towns, Shelter Island and Southold town. Before the bridge was built traffic went "around the Horn" or from the Hamptons to Riverhead, and then to the villages in Southold town. The bridge cut fifty miles off a sixty mile journey. There is an eight pole wide slip where the old bridge abutment once stood. —Ed.

(Abstract). Including appropriations for town accounts and the $500 authorized by resolution to employ counsel an aggregate of $5020. was voted by ballot. Ballots, 192; 178 yes; 8 no; 6 blank.

Resolved, That the Supervisor be authorized in his discretion to take such measures as may be necessary to legalize the action of the town meeting of the Town of Southampton, April 3d, 1883, in the matter of the appropriations passed and voted upon by ballot at said Town Meeting.

The business meeting closed and the polls reopened and so remained until 4 P. M. when the presiding officers proclaimed their close and proceeded to canvas the 295 excise votes and 710 Town tickets, and after said canvass declared the following persons elected, vis.

MECOX BAY CASE.

*The $5000.00 appropriation authorized by resolution April 1, 1884 was for expense of the ejectment suit brought by Southampton Town Trustees against the Mecox Bay Oyster Company, Inc. From earliest years of settlement town waters had been used by the inhabitants of the town. In 1882, Proprietor Trustees sold the land under water in Mecox Bay to the oyster company, giving a quit claim deed. By pact of the founders it had been agreed that town waters should be open to all; by act of the State Legislature, in 1818, the waters and products of the waters were held to be property of the town; but evidently these ancient determinations had been either forgotten, or were deliberately avoided by Proprietor Owners. The town won its contention that it owned the lands beneath the waters. An appeal from the Supreme Court decision and final appeal to the Court of Appeals failed to validate the oyster company's grant. The litigation caused the formation of Free Bay and Leased Bay groups and was occasion of bitter strife. The suit cost the town a large sum of money, and was several years in the courts, but action of the Town Trustees, supported by a majority of the town meeting, saved the waters and products of the waters and lands beneath the waters of the town from the grasping ownership of private monopoly.—Ed.

Page 163. Whereas it appears by the records of the town of Easthampton that in the year 1695 it was agreed by the proper authorities of the Towns of East and Southampton acting jointly that there should be a highway one rod in width on each side of the line between said towns through its whole length from a certain stake at the south end near the Ocean to a certain pine tree on the north side of the island, And whereas by an instrument under their hands bearing date the 9th day of November, 1863, the then commissioners of highways of said towns did order that all of that part of said highway extending from the Ocean to the country road be ascertained, described and entered of record in their respective town clerk's offices according to a survey &c., And whereas said survey is missing from the office of Easthampton, some of the monuments referred to have been removed, and in general the outside boundaries of said highway were not sufficiently marked by permanent and suitable monuments.

Now therefore we the Commissioners of highways of said Towns having met at the house of Herman Strong, All of said Commissioners having been duly notified to attend and deliberate upon the subject of this order, Do Order, That the part of said highway between the two towns embraced in the order of Nov. 9th, 1863, be ascertained described and entered of record in the Clerks Offices of both of said towns according to a resurvey which we have caused to be made of the same as follows:

To Wit: Commencing at the Ocean at high water mark and (the red line on the map and the center line of the highway) running N 35½ W. over the south beach to a stake (A on the map) which stands opposite to the south ends of the improved uplands; thence on the same course 25 chains along the former line of an ancient ditch to a stake (2 on the map) nearly opposite to the south line of Daniel's Lane highway, from which the south west corner of Herman Strong's house bears N. 47½ E. distant 1.05½ chains, then on the same course 15.33 chains (B on the map), in the centre of the lane opposite to the south end of the old bars of land formerly of Hervey Hedges, the whole length of the line A. B. being 40.33 chains.

Then N. 30 1-4° W. 9.60 chs to a point opposite to the south line of the Wainscott road, and on the same course 7.68 chs to a point opposite to the north line of Hedges Lane highway, and then on the same course 27.62 chs to a stake (C on the map) from which the north east corner of Andrew Strong's house bears S. 2° E. distant 2.12 ch. The whole length of the line B. C. being 44.90 ch. Then N. 26° W. 17.55 ch to a stake (D on the map), Then N. 30½ W. 16.43 ch to a stake (E on the map), Then N. 32½ W. 6.22 ch to a stake, (F on the map) And then N. 32 W. 6.98 ch to a stone said to occupy the former place of a white oak tree, which stone is one rod from the corner of the land formerly of Levi Hedges, dec'd, and marks an angle in the boundaries of the Town of East and Southampton, (G on the map) which said survey follows the line between the two towns aforesaid.

And we do further order that the line of said survey be the centre line of said road and that said road be of the width of two rods as originally laid out and now marked by a granite stone or post at each outside angle of the stations A. B. C. D. E. & F. and by a single stone or post on the east side of the terminus G. The same to remain a highway forever.

*TOWN HALL NEEDED.

Southampton grew so in population no hall of size suitable to accommodate all electors at the business meeting of Town Meeting could be obtained. A motion prevailed in 1890 appointing a committee to report as to site, building, and estimate of cost of a Town Hall. As proposed it was to be on second story, with stores beneath which could be rented and avails go to town account. This committee reported in April, 1891. Its report did not occasion enthusiasm. It was politely received, laid on the table and the committee discharged. The matter came up again in 1892. A business meeting had been held in Southampton Presbyterian Church; but electors felt that a church edifice was no suitable place to hold an election. So an adjournment was taken and the polls held open in Agawam Hall. The people were not in mood for a hall; they had paid in the last decade heavily for litigation, and although the town was prosperous and had bonded for civil war quota and for the railroad, bond issues were not greatly favored. There was a conservative element in control who advocated a practice of "pay as you go." In 1891 the electors refused to appoint a committee on town hall, with $50 appropriation for such committee. A similar resolution was tabled in April, 1892.—Ed.

†RECORD BOOK, 1741-1819.

The Town Trustees of Freeholders and Commonalty greatly desired to obtain a Record Book of 1741-1819, which they charged, in 1890, was held by a "body of men calling themselves the Trustees of the Proprietors of the Common and Undivided Lands of the Town of Southampton." Town meeting would not vote them arbitrary power to seize this book. So a committee was appointed to negotiate for transfer of the book to the Southampton town clerk's office. This committee reported and was discharged in April, 1891. Its report is not on file. The books of the Proprietor Trustees and the Town Trustees appear to have served until 1818 when a Legislative act obtained and the Proprietors became an incorporated body, annually electing their own trustees, and the two interests became separated. Under the town patent the freeholders were empowered to elect annually 12 trustees, who managed the affairs of the town in general, and who by custom and consent had the management of the undivided lands also, holding such lands for the tenants in Common, i.e., Proprietors, as custodians. The management of such undivided lands was subject to the vote of such of those who were owners of them, and the trustees who acted in a dual capacity before 1818, were supposed to carry out the will of the majority of the Proprietors, who in modern times were the heirs and assigns of the body of men who first associated together and contributed the money to buy the lands of the town. It is plain error, and so the courts seem to have recognized, to interpret the Dongan patent as meaning to give a share of the undivided lands to the town at large. After 1882, there were no more undivided lands, the Proprietor Trustees selling everything undivided that year.

It is understood that some of the record books of the Proprietor Trustees are in possession of Harri M. Howell. of Southampton, who in 1890 was appointed one of a committee of five to negotiate for possession by Town Clerk of Book 1741-1819. At that time Mr. Howell was a Justice of the Peace of the Town of Southampton.

Mr. Harri M. Howell gives information March 1, 1927 as a surviving committeeman: “The book inquired about is known to the Town Clerk as ‘The Black Trustee Book,’ and contains the minutes of the Trustees of the Freeholders (Town Trustees) for many years. I do not remember whether any of the minutes of the Trustees of the Proprietors are entered in it. They very well may be as the record I have begins in 1826. I was a member of the Committee in 1890; the report I made was to the effect that Edwin Post, Clerk of Trustees of the Proprietors, had voluntarily deposited the book with the Town Clerk. The book can be seen any day at the office of the Town Clerk. It is, undoubtedly, a public record because it is the minutes of the corporation created by the Patent. Until 1818 those inhabitants who did not own rights of commonage had a very few rights which the corporation was bound to respect or did. A great many paragraphs of this book were introduced in the Mecox Bay case.”

Information is further volunteered by Mr. Howell that only Proprietors could let their geese run in the street; that the Trustees leased the fisheries and the Proprietors had the money and any Proprietor was virtually an officer with the right to search anyone for fish taken without the consent of the leasee.—Ed.

President George G. White, of Town Trustees, reported in 1882:

“We gave Dr. Chambers a quit claim deed to land on the beach for $75.

“We gave an easement for a bridge at Sag Harbor, and sold to Fahys & Cook about ¾ acre of land between the bridge and railroad, for $50.

“Compromised with President of the L. I. Improvement Co., giving him a quit claim deed for Shinnecock Hills, reserving all necessary highways and 80 feet of the shore above highwater mark on Shinnecock Bay and 75 feet of the shore on Peconic Bay; he gives to us all lands under water in Shinnecock, Quantuck, Cold Spring and Bulls Head bays, and the eastern part of the Great South Bay, and the tributaries, that the Maxwell deeds cover.”—Ed.

An act of the Legislature, introduced by James H. Pierson, in 1892, not only gave Southampton Town Trustees authority to open inlets; but forbid the opening of inlets from the ocean to the bay by any other person; it also permitted Town Trustees at any time to dam up the canal leading from Shinnecock Bay to Quantuck Bay, “to secure an inlet into Shinnecock Bay.” The act repealed a law authorizing commissioners to dam up the Quantuck Canal.—Ed.

In 1892, the Court of Appeals decided in favor of the Town of Southampton in the Old Burying Ground case. The value of the property was not great; but the contest involved points which were fought with a great deal of persistency and some ill feeling.—Ed.

Southampton Town lost the first trial of the Bett's case in 1892. The decision of the Circuit Court concerned the beach lands. The court decided that the titles given by the Trustees of the Proprietors were good ones and that Mr. Betts and other property owners on the waterfront owned to the ocean, including the beach and dunes. This case was appealed.—Ed.
Ordered: That when the polls are opened, voting is to continue till 6 p. m., when the polls are to be closed till 8 a. m., the 5th inst. to remain open till 8:30 a. m., of that day, when the officers shall proceed to canvass the votes.

*PHILANDER R. JENNINGS.

Philander R. Jennings served almost a life time in town offices. He was a Justice of the Peace for more than 40 consecutive years and in 1859 he was elected a Member of Assembly. During the civil war he had commission as a lieutenant of volunteers. In 1861 he was appointed postmaster at Sag Harbor and held the position through the administrations of Lincoln (two) and Grant (two), and a portion of the administration of Hayes. The post office was in the brick block west side Main street then known as The Corrector Office Building; Judge H. P. Hedges had his law office on the second floor.—Ed.
(Abstract). Business meeting called to order by Justice Marcus E. Griffin. Motion made to discontinue voting during meeting lost; in order to continue voting Henry P. Hedges was chosen chairman; Edward H. Foster chosen clerk Pro Tem. James A. Hildreth, Frank Bishop and J. Madison Payne re-elected Pound Masters; report of Town Auditors accepted.

A verbal report of Town Trustees was accepted which was in substance, that the shore of Shinnecock Bay on the beach side had been surveyed as ordered by the last annual town meeting; also that the Betts suit had been decided against the town by the lower court.

(Abstract). Resolution to withdraw Betts' suit laid on table; financial report of affairs of town ordered published in pamphlet form in time to distribute at or before the annual town meeting; report of committee on lockup accepted and committee discharged; polls ordered closed at 6 P. M., to reopen April 4, at 8 A. M., and to remain open for one hour.

(Abstract). Voted. $500 for Contingent Account; $500 for Town Trustees; $300 for Board of Health; that $250 of Dog Fund be appropriated to Commissioners of Highways to repair Scuttlehole road, roads between Good Ground, East Quogue and Riverhead; $500 for fire proof safe for use of Town Clerk.

*Note.—It was an action for ejectment. The court decided that title given by the Trustees of the Proprietors of the undivided lands was a good one and that Mr. Betts (and other purchasers of property on the waterfront) owned down to the ocean including the beach and dunes. The opinion, at the time, was: if the decision should be upheld by the higher courts, it would dispose of the old idea that the ocean beach between the sand banks and the surf, was a town highway. The decision of the Circuit Court in the Betts' case was very important.—Ed.
(Abstract). Question submitted: "Shall the trustees be authorized to lease to residents of this town, certain lands under water for the purpose of planting oysters therein?" voted on by raising of hands and lost.

Offered, and laid on table:

Resolved: That the Supervisor of the town be directed to convey by deed, to such board of trustees as shall be chosen by the electors of this town, for the purpose of controlling the ground herein mentioned, all the lands absolutely composing the burial grounds in the northern part of the village of Sagaponack. (Tabled).

Note.—The newspapers of 1901 say that the attempt to hold a town meeting in June, 1901 was a "fizzle and a farce," and that Silas Tuttle was the comedian. Daniel B. Cook wanted to know "What we are here for?" and G. A. Penny desired information from the President of the Board of Trustees. He did not get it.—Ed.
Resolved. That the trustees be instructed to place notices in all inland waters: That these waters belong to the town of Southampton and are open to the use and enjoyment of all the inhabitants thereof.

(Abstract). Stephen Goodale, Frank Bishop and David Payne were re-elected Pound Masters. Reports of Overseers of Poor, Commissioners of Highways, Town Trustees and Supervisor read and approved.

It was resolved by a vote of 124 to 2 that the number of Town Trustees be reduced from twelve to five and their term of office fixed at two years.

Resolved: $403.20 of Dog Fund be appropriated for repair of roads; Riverhead and Good Ground road; Edward's road and roads in Districts Nos. 17 & 18.

Resolution: That $500 be voted for repair of highways; ruled out of order by chairman. Appeal taken, and lost.

Resolution: Whereas by recent Legislative enactment the people of this town have been deprived of the right and privilege of assembling themselves in town meeting oftener than once in two years and have therefore been deprived of a fundamental right of self government established and observed for more than Two hundred and fifty years, a right upon which our very liberties as a state and nation have been built and our greatness as a people secured, therefore it is
*Resolved, that the people of this town in annual town meeting assembled do. denounce such legislation as an usurpation of our rights and unwarranted interference in our local government and a repetition of the acts of King and Parliament of England prior to the revolution and demand that this right be restored and this people be permitted again to assemble in annual town meeting, and when so assembled to have restored to them the right to originate and freely and fully discuss and vote upon all propositions involving the raising and expenditure of money and all other matters as has been their custom for centuries past.

A motion to lay the foregoing resolution on the table was lost. The resolution was then passed by a vote of 120 to 47.

Voted: $500 for Board of Health in each of years, 1899, 1900.

Voted: $500 for Contingent Account in each of years 1899, 1900.

Resolved: that a committee of five be appointed by the chair one of whom shall be the Supervisor to formulate a plan and secure an estimate for the building of a Main road from the Eastern end of the town to the Brookhaven line; said committee to report at a special town meeting to be held in this Hall on the first Tuesday in June, 1899, and the sum of $150. is hereby appropriated to defray their expenses, and that when this meeting adjourn it be to such a date. Resolution was carried.

In December, 1899, the Court of Appeals decided the Jessup Bridge case in favor of the Town.—Ed.
*USURPATION OF TOWN RIGHTS?

*Note.—The majority of the people of Southampton did not want biennial town elections; they did not want to do away with the mass town meeting, those who were of the older conservative land owners; but a condition confronted them where the mass election system of meeting and voting had, by reason of increased, and increasing population become unwieldy; either the town would have to be divided into smaller units, or voting arranged by election districts. The contention of the town meeting of 1899, that the people were denied a right to assemble at annual town meeting, has a validity, and the arguments advanced to restore the ancient custom had weight. Still, the change became established and apparently has worked well and met the needs of an expanding township.

In 1899 and 1902 those who deplored the change from old to new, asserted: that the Dongan Patent, of 1686 was binding, and fixed “the First Tuesday in April forever,” as time for election annually of Town Trustees, twelve in number, by a majority of voices (not ballots) of the freeholders and freemen of the town in such public place as the trustees should appoint and direct; that all provisions of the Patent pointed most explicitly to one town meeting annually and in one particular place; that the acts passed by the legislature changing time to town meeting and methods of election, and reducing the number of Town Trustees from twelve to five were unconstitutional, so many thought, and a complication arose only to be settled by judicial determination.

While such determining suits as were brought were friendly (?) there is no doubt politics played some part in the change and after years of litigation eventually the party in power who acquiesced in, if they actually did not shape legislation, was routed and a new regime voted in. This new Town Board came too late to effect a reversion to ancient customs and remained in power but a short time. The acts of the legislature applying to Southampton Town have all stood and still stand. The situation of Southampton Town was unique, and perhaps unfortunate according to tendency of the time to provide for all towns of the State a legal vehicle standardizing town elections, etc. With few exceptions the Patents and incorporating acts of other towns of New York State contained no provision for electing town trustees. The government of such other towns was much more modern.

The Town Trustees of 1899-90, and their advocates, were regardful of their prerogatives. They took a position as follows, and stood on it, until a higher authority, decided otherwise:

“That the vote at the town meeting which asked for such changes was not a majority vote of the freeholders and freemen, and that no such violation of our Charter can be made by the Legislature without a special petition, not only of the Trustees themselves, but of the great majority of the inhabitants of the town.”—Ed.

Page 360. Minutes of an adjourned Town Meeting of the Town of Southampton, N. Y., held June 6th 1899 in pursuance of a resolution in regard to improved roads passed at the annual Town Meeting held Apr. 4, 1899.

The chairman of the committee of five appointed by the resolution above referred to read the following report:

(Abstract). Macadam roads in Queens County cost from $7,000 to $15,000 per mile, depending on grading, width and thickness of material. It is best to build roads with a foundation. Maintenance of stone roads estimated at $100 per mile per year.

The committee reported it had visited New Jersey and various counties of New York. It was agreed that it was useless to look for aid for many years to come, if ever, from the State or County under what is known as the Higbie—Armstrong Act. It reported Southampton must itself build, to have an improved road in the near future. This is signed by the full committee: James H. Pierson, Erastus F. Post, Wm. H. Pierson, Lewis Edwards, Henry H. Chatfield.

James H. Pierson, Henry H. Chatfield and Wm. H. Pierson made a separate report as well: It was their judgment that the benefit to accrue to the town from the building of a stone road through the town would not be sufficient to warrant the expense of such undertaking.

Erastus F. Post and Lewis Edwards in a separate report, judged: that a road can be built fourteen feet wide and six inches thick for six thousand dollars per mile; that from a financial standpoint it would be a good policy for this town to build such a road at a figure not to exceed two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000), and recommended the submission of the question of bonding the town for such sum to a special town meeting to be called for that purpose at some future date.

The report of the full committee was accepted. Motion made that the recommendations of the minority be adopted, which was amended by the substitution of the word majority. An invitation was extended to the residents of the village of Sag Harbor to participate in the discussion. The motion as amended was carried by a vote of 129 to 88.

Biennial town meetings were established by State law. On advice of counsel, there was a town meeting held in the off year 1900. It was for the election of a Town Board of Trustees. It was on advice of Governor David B. Hill that Southampton held its town meeting in this off year. His opinion was accepted by the local lawyers as undoubtedly correct (?). He held that the office of Town Trustees could not be meddled with by the Legislature; that they were created under the old Patents, and had been confirmed by the successive State Constitutions; That they were not the creature of the Legislature, and, therefore, could not be abrogated by that body.—Ed.

In June, 1900, the Southampton Town Trustees won a decision in the Bett's case. In this particular case the town had always claimed a roadway along and inside of the sand dunes bounding the ocean beach. Mr. Betts bought some Southampton property. He claimed to own to the top of the sand dunes. The final court gave the ownership to the Trustees, after a long fight.—Ed.

(Abstract). Minutes of Town Meeting held April 4, 1899 and of a special meeting held June 6, 1899 were read and approved.

(Abstract). Pound Masters Stephen, Frank Bishop and David Payne were re-elected. Reports of Supervisor, and Commissioners of Highways accepted. Dog Fund moneys appropriated for improvement of highways: $414.15 to be expended west of Shinnecock Hills; $500 to be raised by tax for Contingent Fund in 1901 and 1902; $500 for Board of Health each year 1901 and 1902; Commissioners of Highways directed to print in book form at least two weeks before town election detailed report of financial affairs, each and every commissioner rendering a separate itemized report.

Whereas, there have been introduced in the Legislature of this State certain bills relative to the Shinnecock Indians and also the Montauk Indians which would be to open the door to extended litigation and eventually to the breaking up of such tribes be it

Resolved: that it is the sense of the voters of the Town of Southampton in the County of Suffolk in Town meeting assembled that such bills should not become laws, and the Town Clerk be directed to forward to our Representatives from this County in Senate and Assembly a copy of this resolution. Carried.

Resolved: that the Town Board of the Town of Southampton be and hereby is instructed and directed to apply to the Board of Supervisors of Suffolk County, pursuant to section four of the County Law, to establish and define the *boundary line of the said town as follows, to wit: the line between said town and the Town of Riverhead so far as the same runs under water and below high water mark of Peconic bay and river; and also the line between said town and the towns of Southold and Shelter Island and the line between the said town and the Town of East Hampton so far as the same runs under water and below high water mark of Gardiner's bay. Carried.

Motion made and carried that this town hold the annual Town Meetings as heretofore.

Whereas, by recent legislative enactment, the people of this town have been debarred from assembling themselves together and electing their officers in annual Town Meeting a custom hallowed by two and a half centuries of enjoyment and blessing; and which enactment is a direct blow to the traditions of our town, and to the principle of self government and home rule secured to us by the sacrifices and blood of our fathers; therefore, be it

Resolved: that it is not only our privilege but also our duty to have this right restored to us by the neccessary legislation and the chairman of this meeting is hereby authorized to appoint a committee of five to secure the benefits of this resolution. Foregoing resolution carried.

The committee appointed by the chairman in accordance with the foregoing resolution are Mr. Samuel Parish, Mr. Daniel B. Cook, Mr. Alanson P. Rogers, Mr. Charles W. Payne and Mr. Charles A. Pierson.

The meeting directed that the polls remain open till six P. M.

W. J. POST. Town Clerk.

The town had voted to change from a mass town meeting and to vote by election districts. There were mutterings of appeals to the U. S. Supreme Court.—Ed.

BOUNDARIES BETWEEN THE TOWNS.

To avoid expensive law suits the Boards of Town Trustees of Southampton and Southold agreed to meet in Riverhead, Saturday, February 9, for a conference on boundaries between the two towns in Peconic Bay. It was understood that any agreement arrived at, would have to be submitted for approval on part of Southold. Southampton Town Trustees claimed jurisdiction per se, so far as the town is affected, and right to assert power and act finally without acknowledging any superior authority either on the part of the Board of Supervisors the State of New York, or the U. S. Government.

New York State stepped in and settled the question of lands under water in Peconic and Gardiner's Bay by taking the lands for Suffolk County, and boundaries were then fixed between the two towns, beneath water, surveyed, mapped and recorded.—Ed.

Note.—The newspapers of 1901 say that the attempt to hold a town meeting in June, 1901 was a "fizzle and a farce," and that Silas Tuttle was the comedian. Daniel B. Cook wanted to know "What we are here for?" and G. A. Penny desired information from the President of the Board of Trustees. He did not get it.—Ed.

The Legislature passed an act in the winter of 1902 to provide five Town Trustees for Southampton (instead of twelve, as heretofore) to be elected biennially for a term of two years. It is Chap. 188, Laws of 1902. It also legalized the pay of the Town Trustees of 1901 at $3 per diem; it fixed pay of the Board of Five Trustees, the same as other town officers by statute, and provided that their compensation be $3 a day for days of actual service for the town.—Ed.

*BONDSMEN REFUSE TO CONTINUE.

In January, 1903, the Southampton Town Board appointed George W. Wines, of East Quogue, collector of taxes, in place of Oliver Fanning, who failed to file his bond for the 1903 collections. Fanning was elected at a town meeting in 1901. He received taxes in 1902, but his accounts were somewhat confused, said to be due to an improper checking system, and his bondsmen refused to continue. The failure of Fanning to qualify delayed the usual sittings for taxes.—Ed.

Boundary: Beginning at a place on "Lumber Lane" where the North line of the farm of William I. Chase meets said "Lumber Lane" and running Easterly along the line of said Chase's farm to the N. E. corner of said farm whence running in an Easterly direction to the Sag Harbor and Bridgehampton Turnpike; thence running Northerly along said Turnpike to a point near the "Old Farm" corner to the intersection of the recorded boundary that runs Easterly to a point on the L. I. R. R. near the South end of Long Pond. Order to take effect on and after March 5, 1903. Signed, Charles H. Howell, Sch. Com., 1st Dist. Wm. D. Halsey, sole trustee for Dist. 18, consents to amended boundary as described above; Charles T. Ludlow, sole trustee Dist. 9, consents to the amended boundary as above described. Dated March 5, 1903.

(Note.—There was a squabble between rival Boards of Trustees; free bay or leased bay occasioned bitterness; change of annual town meeting to biennial, was then not popular, and voting by election districts displeased many; law suits had been costly; there was agitation for better roads toward which the old regime was not very friendly. The town at that time was easily Republican, 2 to 1, and one of the surprises of the canvass was the defeat of James H. Pierson for re-election as Supervisor by Thomas W. Lister, of Sag Harbor, by 55 votes.—Ed.)

WOOD ROADS

Note.—In 1902-03 their was organized effort for better roads and for a State Park in the woods section north of Southampton. The vote against bonding for improved roads was heavy for the people had not been educated to the necessity of better highways with the advent of the motor vehicle. The park bill providing for an appropriation of $150,000 was one of the lost measures in the legislature that adjourned in April, 1903. The road through out the town not sanctioned; Southampton village voted to bond for $35,000, December 24, 1903, the street to be curbed and paved with macadam (Main street). The vote was 100 yes; 44 no. A proposition to insert the full amount in the next tax levy was lost. This was the inception of the better roads movement in Southampton town.—Ed.

BURIED TREASURE.

Revolutionary relics are frequently found in old houses of Southampton town, or buried on premises. While digging in 1907 to erect a new fence at the home of Nathan P. Hand on Meeting House Hill, Sag Harbor, a solid silver tea-pot was unearthed bearing the stamp “1766”. People buried treasure at Sag Harbor when the British held that place during the revolution. A pot of silver coin was unearthed when Morris Meyer excavated a cellar for a store at Main street, Sag Harbor, in 1904. A solid silver sugar “shovel” marked “Conklin” was found beneath the chimney bed of an old house near the Southampton and East Hampton division line. The Conklins, of East Hampton, were among the first to settle at Sag Harbor.—Ed.

OLD FASHIONED MEETING, 1904.

A draft for an old fashioned town meeting for Southampton town was issued to be held in Agawam Hall, Southampton, on April 5, 1904. This annual meeting was held pursuant to call. (It had no legal status, viewed by subsequent court decisions). Two hundred citizens assembled at the meeting place. Most of them were "Free Bay" men from "west of the Hills." They were against the "Orlando Hand Board" which had leased oyster lots in 1902 (leases subsequently found void by court decision). Orlando Hand, as Chairman of the Trustees Board (the 1902 Board had been declared legal by Supreme Court); called the meeting to order. George W. Hildreth was made chairman, a Good Ground man; Frank Downs and Alvin Squires were named clerks and tellers. Two tickets of twelve trustees each were put in nomination, one by Orlando Hand, which he afterward withdrew. Charles W. Payne, of Sag Harbor, placed on both tickets, refused to stand, and Horace M. Wells was substituted. The "Free Bay" ticket, which was then practically without opposition, was chosen by a show of hands, 83 to 4.

The following resolution was passed:

"Resolved that the Board of Town Trustees elected at this meeting be instructed to secure the repeal of the Act of March 18, 1902, chapter 133, entitled 'An Act to provide for the election and prescribe the terms and compensation of the town trustees in the town of Southampton, County of Suffolk, and legalizing payment of and compensation to the present and former boards, or to determine its legality as regards the election, number and terms of office of such trustees, and to draw upon the Supervisor of said town of Southampton for all the expenses incurred thereby."

When Otis Hinkman, of Speonk, was convicted in 1906 for the murder of his father, it was said to be the first conviction for wilful murder in Southampton town in 266 years. The word "wilful" was the saving clause. The Hinkman murder occurred November 30, 1905. About 1840, a man named Roger was killed by an old man named James Osborn, alias "Jim Shak'em." They lived together in a so-called "hotel" on the outskirts of Sag Harbor. "Shake'em" slew his victim with an axe, while in a rage. He went to State Prison, where he died. Mrs. Thomas Halsey was murdered by a Pequot Indian in 1649. Southampton was remarkably free from crime for 200 years after settlement.—Ed.

THE FERDENSEN CASE.

In 1906, Southampton town was sued for $20,000 damages by Mrs. Jacob Ferdensen, whose husband was drowned in the highway, near North Sea on February 22, 1904. In the darkness the horses got off the road and rolled down an embankment on Sayre road into a deep pool of water. The body of the drowned German driver was found nearby the drowned horses. A compromise was effected.—Ed.

NEW ROAD BRIDGE AT CANAL.

for a new road bridge over Shinnecock Canal, in 1906. It was built and paid for by Suffolk County in 1907. The town paid for straightening the highway, the approaches and embankments. The bridge was built by the Canton Bridge Company. It cost $32,000.—Ed.

*SHINNECOCK BRIDGE APPROACHES.

*Retained to give an opinion, in January, 1909, Timothy M. Griffing, attorney, held that the construction of such approaches was a duty incumbent upon Southampton town and the cost thereof should be borne by the town. The county built and paid for the new road bridge across the Shinnecock Canal.—Ed.

BRIDGE AT EASTPORT.

In March, 1907, a contract was awarded to the Canton Bridge Company to build a bridge at Tuthill's Mill, Eastport, for $1,190, with a 12-ft short span, width 24 ft., concrete floor, resting on steel piles, and designed to carry 15 tons.—Ed.
WAR DEPARTMENT ASKS FOR DRAW BRIDGE.

Chairman George A. Miller, with a committee of the Board of Supervisors, attended a conference with representatives of the Long Island Railroad Company, and Col. Lockwood of the War Department, at Good Ground, April, 1907. An application had been made to the War Department to have a draw built at Shinnecock Canal, and Col. Lockwood met the Supervisors to learn their opinion of the matter. They decidedly opposed it as did Mr. Addison of the railroad company. The bridge was built without a draw; and there is no draw in the railroad bridge which spans the same canal. The War Department notified the authorities and the Board of Supervisors in June, 1907, of authority for the erection of a new highway bridge over the Shinnecock Canal in Southampton town as per plans adopted by the Board, without a draw. The Department reserved the privilege of making the Supervisors change the style of the bridge should circumstances demand the change, and without expense to the United States.—Ed.

*PUZZLED OFFICIALS.

The situation regarding annual election of Town Trustees was much complicated. The old Patent of the town of Southampton had been ratified and confirmed by the constitution of the State. It provided for the election of twelve Trustees yearly chosen on the first Tuesday of April forever. The legislative enactment providing for a Board of five Trustees to be elected biennially, to come later, had been suggested. Biennial town elections had already been established by legislative enactment.

In compliance with the mandatory provisions of the Patent, and in spite of the legislative enactment virtually abolishing town meetings, a number of citizens of the town met in Agawam Hall, Southampton village, Tuesday, April 1, 1902, and voted for a Board of (12) Town Trustees. Two tickets were placed in the field. The Democratic ticket received 16 votes; the Republican ticket 1. The ticket declared elected bore the following names: Louis Hertz, Edward B. Hill, Orlando Hand, J. Allen Burnett, Samuel Berry, Gilbert H. White, Theodore H. Carter, Adelbert S. Carter, Henry D. Burton, J. Mitchell Stevens, Samuel S. Griffin.

The ticket receiving one vote bore the names: Charles W. Payne, John M. Hildreth, Henry Ludlow, Albert J. Post, Henry H. Post, Harvey P. Fanning, Horace M. Wells, Benjamin F. Rogers, Asher B. Hallock, Frank C. Rogers, Elias P. Tuthill, or the names of all members of the old Town Board of Trustees.

The Trustees chosen in 1902 decided to stand upon their rights and the anomalous situation existed that for the first time since its founding Southampton had two Boards of Trustees of the Town each claiming to have been regularly elected and each asserting all powers of such town officers.

Then was introduced in the legislature a bill which passed and signed by the Governor became a law, fixing the number of Town Trustees of Southampton as five and also making their compensation $3.00 per diem for actual days' service for the town.

A Board of Trustees had been elected in an off year; a Board of Trustees had been elected in a regular year. They clashed. What was their status?

To raise funds the 1902-elect Board of Trustees unanimously voted to lease oyster lots.

In June, 1902, Southampton town newspapers published this advertisement:

"Whereas certain individuals claiming to be Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton, have assumed to issue leases of lands under water within the limits of the town and to receive rent therefor, and otherwise to act as such,

"Therefore: We hereby give the public notice that no lease or act of said persons will be recognized by us, and we hereby warn all persons against accepting any leases from them; any pretended leases and any other acts of said persons purporting to be officials, will be regarded and treated by us as null and void."

This was dated July 11, 1902, and signed by "Elias P. Tuttle, Henry H. Post, John M. Hildreth, Charles A. Ludlow, Harvey P. Fanning, Asher B. Hallock, Albert J. Post, Charles W. Payne, Henry Ludlow, Horace M. Wells, Benjamin F. Rogers, Frank C. Rogers, Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton."

The result of test cases to determine which Board of Trustees was the official Board came in the way of two actions. One was for trespass on leased lands beneath water. The Gaynor decision of 1904 upheld the Board of Trustees in their leases of Bay Bottom, in years previous. He did not pass on the validity of the act of the legislature creating a "Board of Five Trustees." When the biennial election law obtained and applied to Southampton town, the names of town trustees were placed upon the ballot and those receiving the highest number of votes were declared to be elected Town Trustees. The mix up of Town Boards of Trustees was first occasioned by the off year election in which the legislature had made no provision for electing Town Trustees, and Justice Gaynor found that the election by the old mass town meeting of Town Trustees in April, 1902, was legally held. In May, 1912, Justice Putnam decided the status of the "Patent Board of 12 Trustees" and the "Board of 5 Trustees", and declared that the legislature was within its constitutional rights when it provided means for electing a legal Board of Five.
The Town Officers, Supervisor, Town Clerk, and Justices, who held that the Board of Trustees opposed to the Board of Trustees elected in April, 1902, were the legal Board, were thus addressed by the advocates of the Board of Trustees, who later were to be sustained in their contention that they, and they only, were the legal Board, (see Gaynor decision) as follows; through notice served upon Supervisor James H. Pierson:

"1. That you have not now, and never have had any right or authority to audit or pay any bill or claim for the personal service of any trustee of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the town of Southampton.

"2. That the Board of said trustees had no power or authority to make any contract or agreement by which the town of which you are officer is bound or can be bound to pay for any counsel, services or anything whatsoever.

"3. That you have no right or authority to employ counsel for them or employ counsel to advise you with reference to them or their affairs, or to aid, allot, maintain, authorize, or pay for any litigation in their names or behalf without a vote of the electors of your town, previously obtained authorizing the same.

"4. That a lawful election of trustees was held in April, 1900 and in April, 1902.

"And you also take notice that you will be held personally and individually liable for all moneys which you have heretofore allowed to be unlawfully paid out to or on behalf of the said trustees and for all moneys that shall be paid out hereafter."

The election of 1903 brought into office a Board of Five Town Trustees, who would be sustained by the courts of the State as legally chosen town officers. The same election also resulted in the defeat of James H. Pierson for re-election as Supervisor. The counsel employed by the Town Board of Trustees was paid for work done in 1902 (authorized or unauthorized) for the courts held that the Trustees were de facto officials, if not de jure.—Ed.

*Note.—Up to this time Southampton town had frowned upon all projects for a Town Building. The problem was partly solved when in the spring of 1910, Southampton village determined the question of bonding for $25,000. for a Municipal Building. The vote was very close: for the proposition, in a total vote of 270. It was then found that an error in the presentation of the question necessitated holding another election. The proposition was again submitted, August 27, 1910, and the announcement was made that the Sag Harbor Savings Bank had agreed to take the bonds at .425 per cent interest. At the second election the total vote was 385, of which 244 favored the proposition, and 121 opposed it. Southampton village got its fireproof village hall, and leased rooms to Southampton Town.—Ed.

In the session of the 1913 Legislature, by Assemblyman Fallon legislation was secured. His bill to amend the Canal law, in relation to the Shinnecock and Peconic Canal went through both houses and was signed by Governor Sulzer, April 8th. The bill placed Shinnecock Canal under the supervision of the Superintendent of Public Works, making it a part of the canal system of the State; to remove such obstructions therefrom from time to time, and make such improvements as may be necessary to keep the channel of sufficient depth and capacity to admit of free passage for boats, or water craft, between such bays. In 1911 the Shinnecock Canal had been blockaded by a sunken barge. The railroad was about to drive spiles to strengthen the railroad bridge. Repairs were also needed for the road bridge.—Ed.

Through efforts of the Ladies' Village Improvement Society old Maidstone pier at Sag Harbor was removed in 1914. It was built in 1888.—Ed.

Water spouts occurred in Noyac Bay the summer of 1915, in the month of August. People were terrified. Bathing houses at Wecatuck were razed, and fragments of boards carried sixty feet in the air. A cloudburst followed.—Ed.

*Note.—Southampton town took advantage of the law permitting the election of a Board of Auditors and so elected as Auditors in 1917, William K. Dunwell, of Southampton; Burton D. Corwin, of Sag Harbor; J. Riley Warner, of Good Ground. All Republicans. Before the organization and institution of this Board, all bills payable by the town, were audited by the Justices. The auditors named above were first appointed to serve after the favorable vote on the question in 1915.—Ed.

*Note.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in January, 1907, reversed the decision of judgement by G. Clarence Topping, Justice, affirmed by the County Court, in the Good Ground “oyster test case,” in fining John P. Warner for taking oysters from a bed claimed to be owned by William Squires, at Tiana Bay, Southampton town. The court decided that such lease was void, and should not have been permitted in evidence, as in 1897 and 1901, the town having the power to do so, voted a free bay, and therefore had no right to lease the bay bottom in 1902. The litigation relating to “free bay” or “leased bay” was aggravated by complexing angles, and the above has to do with a feature of the attempt to carry the matter to the higher court. In December, 1915, Southampton's Board of Audit refused to O. K. a bill of $502.75 submitted by the Patent Board of Town Trustees for expenses in preparing their case for argument before the Court of Appeals.—Ed.)

From 1892 until 1915 the E. W. Bliss Co., of Brooklyn, tested torpedoes in Noyac Bay, and at Gardiner's Bay. The plant at Sag Harbor has been closed since the disarmament agreement. In 1818, Joshua Penny, native of Southold, and resident of Three Miles Harbor, in East Hampton, attempted to blow up a British ship of war, anchored in Gardiner's Bay, with the first submarine torpedo ever invented.—Ed.

The status of Boards of Trustees was still disputed by some in 1915, and a meeting of the so-called "Patent Board" petitioned the Southampton Town Board requesting an appropriation of $500 to have the matter finally settled.—Ed.

Southampton town was the lowest bidder to construct the concrete road 20 feet wide from Quogue to Southampton village line. Its bid was $113,068.50. It built the road.—Ed.

275th anniversary of founding of Southampton town was observed with appropriate exercises June 12 and 13, 1915.—Ed.

TOWN TRUSTEES’ ACTIVITIES.

The financial statements in Liber D, show that large sums were disbursed by the Supervisor on the Town Trustees’ order during the years when the town was engaged in litigation protecting rights guaranteed to the inhabitants of Southampton Town by the ancient patents. There were many, and costly law suits, but the lands under waters, the waters of the town and the products of the waters have been saved to the residents of the town, subject to regulations of the Town Trustees. Highways and beach rights have also been determined and retained for all time by the town. Some items abstracted from general financial reports of the town are given below:

1883, Town Meeting votes $500 for retaining counsel.
1884, Authorize $5,000 for Mecox Bay suit, and for prosecution or defense of any suit at law or in equity, for protection of town rights.
1890, Paid on acct. of suits, $1,109.00.
1891, Paid on Trustees’ order, $1,685.85.
1892, Personal bills & Judge Young, $504.84.
1893, Trustees’ suits, $238.66.
1894, Expense of Betts’ suit, $1,284.90; expense in Still suit, $50.00.
1895, Paid on Trustees’ orders, $5,578.09.
1896, Town Trustees, $594.70.
1897, Town Trustees, $362.85.
1898, Town Trustees, $404.97.

During this period referred to above the Trustees received several hundred dollars for bay leases for oyster culture, but a free bay sentiment prevailed at the town meetings, cutting off this source of revenue. Deeds for beach lots were given to Wm. R. Halsey, $50. in 1902; Wm. Mitchell, $50. in 1902; and Peter Tuttle, $50. in 1902.

In 1904, the financial reports show that the Trustees accepted $50. for a quit-claim deed. The property conveyed is not mentioned. The record should be found in Trustees' Record Book 2, for year 1904.

The Liber D, does not show the items paid in Town litigation in recent years. The Bellows' Pond case to determine ownership of lands under waters beneath a pond near Flanders has been carried to the Court of Appeals, and a decision is expected in 1929.

A request was presented to the Southampton Town Board in December, 1912, to secure a right of way to Sears', Bellows', and Penny's ponds, between Good Ground and Flanders. These ponds, it was asserted, belonged to the Town of Southampton. The Flanders' Gun Club had secured a considerable amount of land surrounding them. They had been feeding the game birds that gathered there. The request for the right of way was first made to the Town Trustees, who held a meeting and decided that the citizens of the town should be given free entrance to the waters of the ponds in question. The matter was then brought to the attention of the Town Board with a request that they secure such right of way.

A PRICELESS HERITAGE

Safeguarding of bay and water privileges for the freeholders of Southampton town is for all time a priceless heritage. The public are free to bath, boat, fish, crab and continue in enjoyment of recreational and aquatic diversions.

In this year of 1927, owners of Lake Ronkonkoma, a 400 acre expanse of inland water situated in the towns of Islip and Brookhaven, are moving to collect $2 a year per foot frontage from adjacent property owners for use of the lake frontage. This lease would run for 99 years. $2 the first 25 years; $3 the second 25 years; $4 the third 25 years and $5 per foot front the last 24 years.
No wonder Southampton authorities have fought to the Court of Appeals the claim of private ownership to lake and pond bottoms made by certain land owners whose lands surround on all sides of inland bodies of water.

The ownership of Lake Ronkonkoma by the Townsend family and the ownership by Southampton town of lands beneath certain of its waters are somewhat analogous, with this distinction: Southampton went to the courts and defended its rights and won. The Townsend family won their suit brought to determine ownership of the lake bottom at Ronkonkoma. The original title was obtained in the same manner in both instances.

Southampton took title from the Crown through the Governor of the Province; those to whom the Patent right was granted did in 1818 by agreement and act of the State Legislature give to the freeholders and commonalty the waters and products of the waters.

In Islip town the first William Nicoll took his grant of lands and waters from Governor Benjamin Fletcher. That portion of Lake Ronkonkoma in Islip and Brookhaven towns passed by conveyance to the Townsends, who justified their claim years ago when they defeated the Trustees of the Town of Brookhaven in a law suit which was carried to the Court of Appeals.

Had a decision against Southampton town been given in the Mecox Bay suit, it would have established that Southampton people could not go on bay and pond bottoms of bodies of water within town bounds without committing a trespass.

A glance at the situation in Brookhaven and Islip towns will show what might have obtained had the Mecox Bay Co., Ltd. won its contention that it had bought from Southampton Proprietors all of the bay bottom.

In 1926 the Townsend family paid $600 in taxes assessed on the 400 acres of land beneath water at Lake Ronkonkoma. Of this sum $200 went to the town of Brook-haven and $400 to the town of Islip. There are a number of persons who own the land around the lake down to the watermark. The exact position of the mark is in dispute. It is a perambulatory boundary, differing at times of heavy rainfall or drought. The officials of Brookhaven town admit there is no doubt that the Townsend family own the bed of the lake, and that they are being assessed for it on the basis of $5,000 for that part lying in the town of Brookhaven. Under the strict letter of the law persons who went swimming in the lake on the Brookhaven side, at least, would be trespassing on the Townsend property and the Townsends would have the right to order them off, if they chose to do so.

Southampton owns the bay bottom at Mecox and Shinnecock and in waters of that kind. It claims to own the lands at bottom of ponds. It has expended and its people are willing to expend further large sums in protecting what they assert is their birthright.

There have been some suggestions that the towns of Brookhaven and Islip buy the bottom of Lake Ronkonkoma from the Townsend family. As the matter rests now, it is said, that there is no provision of law permitting towns to buy lands of such kind. Officials also take the view that the Townsends have a good case and can stop bathing in the lake unless their terms are met.

Fortunately for the town of Southampton the pact and compromise of 1818 and the law suits of the 80’s won by the town save for all time the waters, products of the waters and the bottoms of inland bays for the enjoyment of the people of the town.

OCEAN AND BAY BEACHES.

What fee or absolute ownership of beaches on ocean or bay fronts of Southampton town does conveyance made by Proprietor owners give grantees?
The Betts’ case has answered this in some respects. Still there remain some questions that are not entirely clear. Years ago the beaches were considered to be of little value. everybody went on and off them at will. Beaches were used as driveways before roads were cut through the forests.

It is natural for a buyer of landed estate to wish to know just what he has purchased, or contemplates purchasing. It has been generally accepted as correct judicature to hold that what is embodied in a deed describing a conveyance of land, conveys the land within bounds set down and described; and that where no reservation or restriction is named, none exists. That is to say, where a deed for dune or beach property in the Hamptons reads bounded on the south or southerly side by mean highwater mark of the Atlantic Ocean, and where nothing of privilege retained by the town is specifically mentioned in the conveyance, the fee of the beach is given. The natural question arises are persons who pass, repass, drive, walk, sit or lounge on such a beach trespassers? Are they intruding upon private property (this is not meant to apply to the U. S. Coast Guard patrol)? Have owners of such property held by deeds given by Proprietor Owners or their representative Trustees a right to fence such properties to mean highwater mark? The record is quite clear that such conveyances of land have been made in some instances in Hampton townships, the water of bay or ocean being stated as a bound. Courts have also held that such conveyances of beach lands (in certain suits) are valid sales of property. As a diversion it may be said here that East Hampton town sold 14 miles of beach between upland and watermark for $200 in 1882. It took ten years to set the deed aside, not on the grounds that Town Trustees had no right to make the sale; but due to the fact that no quorum was present when the sale was sanctioned. The deed had been given by the Clerk, who was a tool of the President. At this distant day the sale of so much valuable ocean and bay front land for a paltry $200 smacks of fraud. But the justification pleaded was "capitalists were buying up the individual commonage rights, and that the people's privileges were slipping away, and that the Trustees deemed it best to make the conveyance, reserving such rights as were valuable to the people, and at the same time by the acknowledgment of these reservations by the buyer secure the same to the town." This peculiar deed conveyed all the remaining undivided common lands of the town, the beaches between Acaboneck Creek and Napeague and the line of ocean beach from Wainscott to Amagansett. The purchaser was John Bowman of New York. The Town Trustees testified in court that they didn't think the purchaser had obtained much. The reservations in the deed applied to the privilege of fishing, seaweed, boats, nets and seines.

The lands undivided in Southampton town sold in 1882 took in certain stretches of beaches, is the claim of purchasers. Where owners of dune upland or cliff or beach bank upland today, with bounds to grass line only or indefinite waterside boundary line, seek to control beach frontage, in many instances payment has been made to persons who bought or inherited or to whom has been assigned the undivided and common lands of Southampton town so purchased in 1882. Such persons, or their heirs or assigns acquired, is their claim, beach properties. They now sell to owners of upland adjoining the beach for $7 or $8 a foot front, and give a quit-claim deed. In fact, unless information volunteered is erroneous, insurable title to ocean bounded lands is often not to be had, unless such perfecting quit claims are purchased. In no instance on ocean side had effort been made to acquire title to the strand (i. e. the uncovered beach at low tide between low water mark and high water mark). On tidal bay waters owners of upland do own riparian grants which give land beneath water (including the strand) adjoining private properties. This is despite a ruling of the N. Y. State Attorney General that the State Land Commission has no jurisdiction of lands beneath waters in towns established by Colonial Patents. Where Town Trustees have given grants of land beneath water after the year 1818 the grant may be (and probably is) valid; grants of lands beneath water given by Town Trustees after the decision of the Court of Appeals giving Southampton town ownership of lands beneath water, would seem to hold unassailable in valid title if properly drafted. Notwithstanding the State gives grants of land beneath; and the United States grants privileges in navigable waters.

At least two decisions of Supreme Court Justices, given more than 30 years ago, have direct bearing on the subject matter above, as applying to the Hampton towns.

One of these was the Betts case at Court of Oyer and Terminer in May, 1892, an action for ejectment. Learned legal lights of the period argued their points. Judge James C. Carter for the Town; Elihu Root for Betts. In this particular case the court decided that the title given by Proprietor Trustees of undivided lands was valid and that Mr. Betts and other purchasers of property on the water front owned down to the ocean including the beach and sand dunes. The decision, if sustained by higher court, practically meant a reversal of old time ideas, that the ocean beach between sand banks and surf was a town highway.

Judge Bartlett decided the ownership of a stretch of beach land (South Beach) seven miles in length between Quogue and Good Ground, in year 1893. This was a very important decision and concerned the south beach between Shinnecock Bay and the ocean. This case was known as Post vs. Gardiner. Plaintiff brought action to establish title to beach and island lands conveyed to him by Proprietor Trustees. Gardiner went shooting on the land and set up that Town Trustees had title as against Proprietor Trustees. Judge Bartlett held that the plaintiff was entitled to the beach and to an island mentioned in deed given him by the Proprietor Trustees. He found that the town also owned the land under water at Shinnecock Bay. It was a test case.

CHANGED CONDITIONS.

Change of conditions from one generation to another have come so gradually and naturally, they are scarcely noted as unusual by succeeding generations. This is applicable to Southampton township, and in fact all of Suffolk county, more particularly the eastern part.

Small value was placed upon Southampton lands within the memory of persons now living. When Southampton owners of undivided lands, Proprietors "of the common lands," turned their eyes to the broad acres of the Shinnecock Hills, in 1858, they noted that changes had taken place; that lands considered to be worthless for agricultural purposes had been transformed from compositions of almost pure sand, a succession of sandy hills, to wide acres of land suitable for pasture. As late as 1874, Bayles described the Shinnecock Hills to be "huge hills of sand," in part; and Prime, about 1845, wrote of the hills as "perfectly naked except extensive patches of whortle berry and other small shrubs," quoting Bayles again, "forming an unpassable barrier which divided the intercourse of civilization." Prof. Dwight, (1802), remarked that "these (Shinnecock) hills were once cultivated; but from the poverty of the soil, and the ravages of the wind, appear to have been finally forsaken.

Vegetation had so changed the Shinnecock Hills seventy years ago the large tract was thought to have value for purposes of pasturing sheep.
As Shinnecock Hills was, 225 years ago the part of Southampton town considered to be of least value, it was leased for one thousand years to the Shinnecock Indians, their heirs and assigns, to “farm letten.” This included the tract called Shinnecock and Sebonac, bounded west by Canoe Place, south by Shinnecock Bay, eastward by a line running from the head of Shinnecock Creek to the northwest corner of James Cooper’s close, and from thence northerly to the westward part of Jonathan Raynor’s land, at Sebonac old ground (ground cultivated by the Indians), and from thence on a direct line to a place called the warehouse by the North Bay, and on the north by the bay. The lease gave the customary privileges “to plow, plant, etc.,” and contained this provision “the said Indians do not keep nor cause said land to be kept, any part or parcel of the said land within fence or enclosed from the last of October to the first of April from year to year.”

One hundred and fifty-five years after drawing of this lease, the Proprietors, aware that some value attached to Shinnecock Hills, applied for and secured a special act from the Legislature, in 1859. The Indians were empowered to sell, or exchange, all their rights in the Shinnecock Hills possessed by the lease of 1703; the consideration of transfer was they (the Indians) to have the fee of Shinnecock Neck, the present Reservation lands, to be held in perpetual trust by three of their tribesmen as trustees elected annually in April.

On February 19, 1861, the Shinnecock Hills, 3,200 acres, were sold by the Proprietors for $6,250. A Southampton company bought them, chiefly for purposes of pasturage.

So the title of Shinnecock Hills rests in a session Act, and quit-claim deeds subsequently given by Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton to the corporation that purchased from the Southampton Company, who took title from the Proprietor
Owners, a title which they passed in 1861 as "unassailed and unassailable."

The advertisement concerning the first sale stated:
"The Indian claim and interest in these lands have recently been extinguished by agreement with the Indians, and by consent and ratification of the Legislature of the State of New York, so that the title of the property now (in 1861) is undisputable and indisputable."

All of the Shinnecock Hills was first sold for less than $2.00 an acre in 1861.

Two dollars an acre was considered to be a fair and equitable price for Shinnecock Hills in 1861.

In October, 1883, Shinnecock Hills was sold, according to advertisement. R. H. Hindsdale bought the tract for $101,000. He was said to represent interests of the Long Island Railroad; but this does not appear to be authentic, as the company named as buyer is the "Long Island Improvement Company." Two years before this the Shinnecock Hills had been sold by shares, and J. W. Bowman, of New York, said to represent an English syndicate, possessed thirty-six shares. The advisability of putting the property under one head lead to the 1883 sale. The price obtained was more than five times that of the estimated value of the tract twenty-five years before.

INCREASE IN LAND VALUES.

Increase in values of lands, a realization of the rapid growth of Southampton town, and enhanced worth of beaches and water front privileges, has bestirred Southampton Town Trustees in the years 1925-6-7. The Board of Town Trustees of Southampton, (five in number), who by act of the Legislature of 1902 succeeded the "Patent Board" of twelve trustees, are kept busy. For about ten years there was a dispute between the "Patent Board" of twelve trustees and the "Board of Five" trustees, as to whom were legally the elected trustees. Justice Putnam decided May 12, 1909, in the Supreme Court, that the "Patent Board" acted without authority, and that the Legislature was within its constitutional right when it established provision for electing the "Board of Five."

A per diem of $3.00 was permitted the Town Trustees, but years ago there wasn't much for them to do. Reorganization of town government placed most business in the hands of the Town Board, i.e., Supervisor, Town Clerk, and Justices of the Peace. Trustees met only frequently.

Now (1927) this is all changed. The trustees are employed in matter of responsibility many days of the year. They always meet monthly, sometimes weekly, and oftener. They are "disposing" of none of the "rights" of the town; they are defining and safeguarding just what "rights" the town has; they are monumenting lands and highways, and posting notices of town possession or town privilege.

In the early spring of 1927 signs were placed on the town's lands and passing rights at shorefronts of Shinnecock: a 75-foot wide strip running from Sebonac to Cold Spring on shore of Peconic Bay; a 50-foot strip of reserved shore right of way at the south side of Shinnecock Hills and the north bound of Shinnecock Bay, from the Reservation to Canoe Place. The town trustees have acquired a landing at Old Fort Point, Shinnecock Bay; also several "jib" pieces of land near highways on Shinnecock Hills; they have acquired rights of way to, and around the shores of certain ponds; they have defined and monumented the South Beach highway or boulevard, and also lateral roads crossing this Beach, from Shinnecock Bay to Ocean and beach opposite Shinnecock Bay, and Hampton Bays and Quogue. All have been ascertained, determined and certified, and recorded as highways, mapped and monumented. A right of way for pedestrians and vehicles between highwater mark and the cliff edge from Shinnecock Canal westward along the beach toward Red Cedar Point, at south side of Peconic Bay, has been posted as open to the public for passage.

Permission to barrier the beach at south end of Sagg Pond, near the ocean, has been granted to certain persons of Sagaponack, with reservations. These persons wish to make a permanent lake of the pond. The grant is so given that the town trustees may open an inlet at any time they deem advisable or expedient; and the town is indemnified against any damage or cost of persons owning property abutting the pond, whose lands might become inundated by reason of highwater in this lake or pond.

BEACH ROADS MONUMENTED.

The road at the Foot of the Beach, Noyac, and the road across Long Beach and Short Beach, leading from Noyac-Sag Harbor highway, east from Weckatuck to North Haven and Head of the Beach, has twice within twenty-five years been surveyed, defined and monumented in part. The Noyac road district, as described by the Commissioners of Highways, in the 80's, starts west of the incorporated bounds of Sag Harbor village. North Haven and Hogonock, (big and little Hog Neck) constitute a separate road district. North Haven is one of the earlier allotted districts of Southampton town. The lands were bought of the Shelter Island Indians in 1665 and apportioned to the Southampton town purchase site owners several years later. For nearly 200 years access to and from North Haven was by road across Long Beach and Short Beach and the Wading Place, where the highway as originally laid out is mentioned in records as thirteen and one half poles wide. This was many years before Payne's Bridge, from Sag Harbor to North Haven, was built to span the Narrows, in 1834. The roads on North Haven are well defined, although misinformed persons may maintain to the contrary, and have given credence to erroneous statements by failure to delve deeply in the ancient town documents. At the Wading Place and on toward the now main road, from Bridge to South Ferry, the 13½ pole highway was in 1884 narrowed to a four rod highway.

In connection with the above, when Southampton Proprietors sold all undivided lands in 1882, they then sold Long and Short Beaches "intended to embrace among other lands that certain beach known as Hog Neck Beach." And at the same time they sold to Orlando Hand, "Foot of the Beach, a tract composed of beach, etc., between Noyac and Sag Harbor, subject to any legal highway across, known as 'Foot of the Beach.'"

The town of Southampton deeded by grant the meadows at Long Neck Beach, in 1794 to the Parish of Sag Harbor. At the time a passing way was reserved forever.

NORTH HAVEN (HOG NECK.)

North Haven (Hog Neck) is a peninsula of Southampton town, bought from Shelter Island Indians by Southampton town Proprietors in 1655. It was a part of lands so Southampton men claimed included in their original purchase of town lands from Farret and Lord Sterling. A controversy about bounds between Southampton town and East Hampton town was settled by North Haven lands going to Southampton town Proprietors. Bought of the Indians, it was not settled until some years later, and was allotted in 1680. A highway or common 13½ rods wide was laid out from the Wading Place. Mention is made of Foot of the Beach and Head of the Beach. In 1884, on petition of an adjoining property owner, the highway commissioners, acting under the statute, summoned a jury of 12 freeholders of Southampton town. Testimony was taken before the commissioners and the jury found that the extremely wide highway in whole was unnecessary. An order then issued that the highway should be reduced in width to four rods for its length from Wading Place to road going to the Ferry, which it joined at an angle. The land declared to be not necessary for highway purposes was thrown out.

Note, this occurred in 1884; also that the highway was laid out at a very ancient date, not through allotted lands, but lands subsequently to be drawn and lotted to Proprietors. (Such wide highways often were for pasture commons as well as passing highways).

In 1882 Proprietor owners sold all undivided lands of Southampton through Proprietor Trustees. Individuals purchased and received deeds for such lands sold.

A very fine question arises: To whom does the property thrown out, after the narrowing of a wide highway or common belong? Many highways in Southampton town have changed and altered. It is the opinion of some that the land thrown out having been fenced 20 years, belongs to title holders of lots or lands adjoining. Others opine that the property sold by Proprietors in 1882 carried with it, as an important item, the fee all highways not originally laid out on private land. Such ownership of fee of the roadbed would apply to a great many highways of the town, and the contention has been advanced that if such originally Proprietor, or group owned highway or commons were ever abandoned by the town, the ownership would revert to heirs or assigns of the 1882 purchasers, and not to the owners of abutting property. The North Haven broad highway, in part, was abandoned in 1884, two years after purchase of all undivided lands and the fee of the highways originally laid out (if such opinion bears weight). With property now in Southampton town of such great value, might not the heirs or assigns of 1882 purchasers assert ownership of abandoned portions of highways? The question is complicated. Not only at North Haven, but in other parts of Southampton town, similar questions concerning highways may arise to vex persons who now believe in all good faith they own property they have inherited or purchased, and within fenced lines.

Early in the last century the Proprietors of Southampton claimed not only the reversionary interest but a right to sell portions of the commons or highway. (T. R., vol. 5, p. 62, “At a meeting of the Trustees on the 5th of January, 1768 it was voted that Mr. Thomas Cooper for and in consideration of the sum of twenty four shillings already paid to the trustees may and shall have a certain lane or highway at Mecox Plain adjoining to the land of Samuel Howell to be to him the said Thomas Cooper his heirs and assigns forever.”) Years later when assertions of ownership and control of first laid out highways were made by Proprietor Trustees it lead to a famous law suit. The Proprietors had granted a person a right to place a windmill on a very wide roadway at Sagaponack, south of the E. O. Hedges' property. The year 1840. The case was known as the “Sagg Mill Law Suit.” Paul Topping objected to the mill in the highway. He won his case in Supreme Court, at Riverhead. The windmill was removed. —Ed.

PONDS AND LANDS BENEATH PONDS.

Ownership of ponds and lands beneath waters of ponds in Southampton town, has never been satisfactorily decided as applying to all ponds. The laws of 1818 gave only the mill streams to the Proprietor Owners. The decision of the courts in the Mecox Bay case, concerning ownership of lands beneath water, gave title to such bay bottom to the town; but Mecox Bay is partly, at times, tide water (salt) connected with the ocean by seapoose (inlet or little river); and Shinnecock Bay has been classed as navigable water by the United State Government and such classification upheld by court decision. The status of fresh water ponds in Southampton is somewhat puzzling. The town has always claimed to own these ponds, however, or at least that claim was made and strengthened by the Legislative act of 1818. First, the Proprietor Owners claimed the undivided lands and the lands under water. In olden times the Trustees leased the fishery privileges and the Proprietors had the money thus derived, and any Proprietor virtually had the right of an officer, with the privilege to search anyone for fish, etc., without the consent of the lessee. Until 1818, the inhabitants of the town who did not own commonage had very few rights which the corporation was bound to respect or did recognize or respect.

The courts have decided that the bay bottoms belong to the town and not to the Proprietors, and this decision rests largely upon the act of 1818; also upon a pact made by the Founders, or Proprietors, of Southampton town not to permit any “private property in such waters, or in any of their benefits”; but that they remain for the common benefit of all and that “no person shall challenge or claim any proper interest in seas, rivers, creeks or brooks howsoever bounding or passing through his grounds, but freedom of fishing and navigation shall be common to all within the banks of said waters whatsoever.”

Decisions seem to give title to the town of bottoms of ponds as well as to the brackish, or part-fresh, part-salt water bodies of waters. Southampton town for more than a century has regulated the fisheries, both salt and fresh, in the “waters of the town.”

Aside from making ordinances controlling and regulating the fisheries, the town of Southampton has sold to an individual all the fish in its ponds. This occurred in 1919, and one Otto F. Kammery reported that according to agreement with the Town Trustees of Southampton, he had caught and sold 1,000 pounds of carp, for $180, of which the town’s share was ten percent, or $18.00.

Recently purchasers of tracts of land in Southampton have given, or admitted, rights of way to and around the edges of ponds, and such rights to pass and repass to and around the ponds have been defined and certified by the Town Trustees.

When the question of ownership of lands under water came up for decision, after 1882, the bottom of the bay, or the large inland body of water, known as Mecox Bay, was asserted to belong to Proprietors, who sold to the Mecox Bay Oyster Co. Ltd. This oyster corporation was sued by the Town Trustees, who contended the town owned the lands beneath the waters of Mecox Bay.

The suit established that the abutting property owners had no riparian rights at Mecox Bay; for, in this especial case, the lands allotted, adjacent to Mecox Bay along the shore of the water, are mentioned as bounded by pond, creek, and water; and other lands allotted are spoken of and described as “northward of the water.”

One of the arguments in the Mecox Bay bottom case, decided in favor of the town, was that the bay was not navigable water.

“It is neither navigable water in law, nor an arm of the sea; the title to the soil of Mecox Bay does not belong to the State. Does it belong to the Town? (So the Court of Appeals decided.) Mecox Bay is fed by fresh water streams. It is not navigable water. It has no permanent outlet. It may be deemed to be called a fresh water pond and is not entitled to the name of bay any more than numerous other ponds along the Atlantic coast that at times have a sea poose. ‘An arm of the sea must have a permanent outlet and be subject to the ebb and flow of the tide.’ ”

A high authority has given an opinion regarding the ponds and the lands beneath the waters of the ponds of Southampton town that: only what is given in express terms in a deed may be considered to be property of the grantee; all else is, inferentially, owned by the town.

The defendants in the Mecox Bay case made a point that "a serious objection to the view that title to land under the bay (so-called) is in the proprietors, and not owners of abutting property (the defendants having purchased all riparian rights, if there be any), is that the same reasoning would apply equally well to all Southampton ponds, whether large or small."

And yet, the courts did find that the land beneath the water belonged to the town; they judged against Proprietor ownership, but never for an instant entertained a thought of individual ownership, always having in mind town ownership only.

At most ponds of any size, in Southampton town, rights of way lead to the water; and instances are many in Town Records, where Trustees acting for Proprietors, in earliest years of settlement, controlled such ponds or fish coves and made a proper disposition of the avails which then went to the Proprietors; after 1818, the waters of the town were managed somewhat differently, and the inhabitants who were not associates of the Proprietors' corporation, but were of the freeholders enjoyed equal privileges in the fisheries and sea-weed and products of the waters.

Some townsmen opine that it is logic to deduce: if the bottom of Mecox Bay is owned by the town (and it is, for so the highest court has found) then the lands beneath all waters, horse-pools and "licks," not only the ponds of the town, are properly subjects of town rights, and the land underneath them as well, for the law knows no distinction between the large and the small.

There is a limit to such reasoning: Bodies of water which are not fed by springs, and gullies at times holding rainfall, it would seem do not come under the classification of ponds, and the Town Trustees and the other town authorities have never sought to set up any such unwarrantable definition.

On the question of ownership of ponds, and lands beneath ponds, a suit at law has been in the courts for many years, and the Court of Appeals is expected soon to hand down a decision as this is written in February, 1927.

BEACH AND SHORE PRIVILEGES.

Conditions in Southampton town are perhaps different from any part of the United States as applying to public beach and shore rights. There are matters that have never been decided by a high court, that will some day, probably, come up for settlement.

While pondering this subject, it is well to keep in mind what Wm. S. Pelletreau, many years Town Clerk of Southampton, and better informed of town history than any other person, wrote in an open letter published in the press of the town, in 1902. Epitomizing his lengthy and carefully reasoned treatise, he maintained that the agreement made by Proprietors and Freeholders (Proprietor Owners and Town), in 1818, and subsequently enacted into law by the State Legislature, established rights to each body of townsmen, which have never been abrogated or annulled. He made plain the Patent or Charter of the Town, and stressed that Article 1, Section 17, of the Constitution of New York State, says in reference to the "sway of the British law:"

"Nothing contained in the Constitution * * * shall annul any charters to bodies politic and corporate by him or them (the kings or her predecessors) made." And that such action, was the act of the delegates of the people of the State of New York, duly elected to frame a constitution and the provision is the same as if the charter itself was incorporated, in the bill of rights.
When question of Southampton’s undivided lands (including beaches) arose in 1816, and committees of Proprietors and also of Freeholders (town) were appointed to confer and arbitrate, it was agreed that there were only three possible kinds of title to the lands.

1. In the State.
2. In the town as a body corporate.
3. In the body of the proprietors and their heirs and assigns.

It has been explained that a legislative act of 1818, consequent upon this arbitration, gave all undivided lands to the Proprietors; and gave to the Town the waters and products of the waters, (aside from the mill streams).

The proposition made by Freeholders and Commonalty committee to Proprietors’ committee was: “that if the Proprietors will give up their exclusive right to the waters in the said town, the Town at large will give up their right to the undivided land and meadows which the Proprietors claim.”

Note that it was also agreed “that the Town at large is to have free access to the waters in any part of said Town when they please, and to have all the products arising from said waters.”

There was also agreements as to rights to cart and land on the beaches in any parts of the town. These rights exist today.

A liberal interpretation of these clauses of the agreement would seem to give townsfolk of Southampton a right to go upon Proprietor-owned beaches without trespass; at least the right to cross such beaches at any and all times, to gain access to the waters.

In 1882 the Proprietors sold through their Trustees, all their undivided lands including certain sections of ocean and bay beach, and even dune or beach banks to private purchasers, and gave deeds of “good and sufficient title.” It has never been clearly decided to satisfaction of all, what was then particularly and precisely sold. The conveyance were blanket conveyances, i.e. "all undivided common lands." It does not seem just that rights of the public agreed to and arranged by special legislative act of 1818, should be abrogated by land sales made sixty-four years thereafter. Although the native Southampton man will now reluctantly admit, or deplore, after judicial proceedings, opinions, and judgments, that many beaches are privately owned; he still stoutly asserts his right to have access by way of the beaches to waters in any part of the town, and that no person can disturb him when on the strand, upon his lawful occasions. By the strand is meant the uncovered beach sand between high and low water mark, at time of ebb, or low tide.

The act of the Legislature, passed April 15, 1818, carries this clause:

"Or in any way or manner debar the inhabitants of the said town (Southampton), from the privilege of taking sea-weed from the shores of any of the common lands of the town, carting or transporting to or from, or landing property on said shores, in the manner heretofore practiced."

Of the act of 1818, the people in special town meeting about February 17, 1818, voted "that there shall be some alteration made respecting the privileges of the said town; that a bill brought forward now and read to the house be the form of the law; that there be two committees, one on part of the town, the other on the part of the Proprietors."

The men who served were: Abraham Rose, William Pierson, William Foster, David Rose, Henry Corwithe, for the Proprietors.

Samuel Huntting, Samuel L'Hommedieu, jr., James Pierson, Stephen Sayre, 3rd, Thomas Gelston, on the part of the Town.

These solid, substantial men performed their trust like men of integrity, faithfully and well, and the popular will of the dates of 1816 and 1818 is clearly expressed in the act of April 15, 1818.

Previous to this, in fact in the original articles of association, the settlers who purchased the Southampton town and took possession of the territory within its boundaries under and in pursuance of their solemn pact with each other, asserted that their should be no private property in the waters or in any of their benefits.

As an aside here it may be said that a great distinction between Proprietor Owners and non-owners of commonage, was established in earliest year, and was well recognized; in fact the old records show that only Proprietors could let their geese run upon the "commons," or street, for the non-owners of commonage did not share the free use of property in which they had no ownership.

The sea-weed clause above by labored construction might be held to apply only to Proprietors, but the reasoning would not be tenable for, in 1818 the Proprietors ceded such rights to the whole town. The courts years after 1818 found that the Proprietors did not have fee of bay bottoms, and everything indicates that townsmen have privileges to go to the waters; and to get to such waters, of course, it would be necessary to go on the beaches.

THE SOUTHAMPTON BEACHES.
EARLY TOWN RULES.

In a former writing a statement has been made that we have yet to see an allotment or deed made before 1881 that bounds lands adjacent to the ocean in Southampton by the "ocean" or the "water." Attention has been directed to Adam's "History of Southampton," at page 12, "T. R., vol. i, pp. 98, 99. In a deed dated April 12, 1666, 1-3 of a £50 allotment at Sagg butting north into the woods and south upon the sea is sold to Thos. Topping, while another tract was bounded south by the ocean."
Mr. Adams quotes his reference as from the Bridgehampton News Mar. 11, 1915. A search of records, original, and printed, fails to show such an entry at the volume or paged named. Vol. vi, prepared by Pelletreau, in 1915, an abstract of "unrecorded deeds" shows that most deeds were bounded in description of Lots "south by beach," on the ocean side, north by beach on the Peconic bay side (excepting the separate North Sea tract), and when mentioning inland waters "my meadow lot" or "my lot of beach meadow" bounded north, south, east or west, as the case might be, when referring to inland or town waters not the ocean or the great bay. The Introduction of this vol. vi says: "This volume begins in 1698. At that time only a small part of the town had been divided among the Proprietors. A part of the Beach meadows was divided in 1657. * * * A division of land at Sagaponack and Mecox was laid out in 1653. These lots were next to the ocean at Sagg; and on the north side of Mecox Bay. * * *. The meadows on the West Beach were divided in 1712; Pine Division of meadows on the south beach was divided in 1687. Pelletreau devoted 40 years of deciphering Southampton and other Suffolk county town records.

Adams emphasizes the great erosion that has occurred and is constantly occurring on the east end of Long Island. His data is from scientific sources. If what he tells is true, and not conjecture, "during the ice age years ago the beach, along the eastern part of the town, as least, east of the Hills, was from a half a mile to a mile further seaward than at present. The beaches along the south shore have been formed partly by deposition and partly by erosion. The work of erosion is still going on, the ocean having probably encroached upon the land a hundred feet or more since the time when white settlers first came, while about two acres are annually lost in the neighborhood of Montauk." Accepting this to be so the Beach bound or sandy expanse between dune and surf named 200 years ago, is now covered by the waters of the ocean where it has advanced upon the land.

Mr. Owen Bennett, 40 years since, saw sand banks as high as a house where the flat beach of Georgica Gut is situated in East Hampton Town.

Mr. Clifford J. Foster, of Sagaponack, is familiar with the topographical changes along the south beach. He has carted brush to form a barrier where the old seapoos at Sagg Pond once ran; the banks formed 20 feet high; again they moved off by action of the wind. The Bridgehampton Bathing Pavilion Co., or their community interest, moved from the popular bathing spot or flat beach from Sagg to just east of Mecox Bay. Previous to this time the "boarders" of Sagaponack bathed opposite Sagg pond, when the "poose" was not running. This beach is referred to in a grant and release made by Edwin Post and wife, 1896, conveying lands and fifties of "commonage" excepting, however, "the beach and meadow at Bridge Hampton" conveyed by a deed made by Edwin Post, et al and excepted in a blanket conveyance of undivided lands.

There is abundant proof of the "commonage" rights of owners. The Southampton book for Town, Quogue and Topping Purchases was introduced as an Exhibit, at the Mecox case (1885). The East Hampton commonage lists were not kept after 1800, as in that Town it was understood "everything of value" had been divided. The beaches were considered to be of little value 50 years ago, and when sold averaged from $1 to $2.01 an acre, where the sandy lands fronted the Atlantic ocean.

The last conveyance of fifties, of which I have record, occurred in 1896, July 28, when for a valuable consideration, one-half part of all the land rights then sold are described to be: in the Town Purchase 22 fifties, 5/24 of a fifty, 3/4 of a fifty and 33/80 of a fifty; in the Topping Purchase 7 fifties, 3/4 of a fifty and 11/50 of a fifty. (Note. The divisions of Southampton lands were reckoned first on
ADDENDUM

40 parts each of 150 pounds value; a fifty pound "commonage" expressed an aliquant of 150, and in later years was divided into much smaller parts.)

The blanket deed of 1882 subscribed by President David R. Rose makes certain exceptions, in the Town Purchase, and both the Rose deed and the Sayre deed specifically make mention of meaning to convey beaches which are named: "and a strip of Beach lying at a place east of Noyac known as foot of the Beach * * * This conveyance is intended to embrace among other lands that certain Beach known as Hog Neck Beach. The 1882 deed is recorded Nov. 8, 1882, Liber 269, page 70; the 1896 deed is recorded in Liber 443, page 3.

The deed for lands at Hog Neck Beach sold by Presbyterian church trustees, in 1850, is a quit claim for "all the beach or meadow land situated at Long, or Hog Neck Beach * * * which on the day of date hereof belonged to the Presbyterian Society" (by grant from Town Trustees in 1794), and the trustees who sold for the named consideration of $50.00, in July 17th, 1850, were Nathan P. Howell, president; Wm. H. Nelson, secretary; Samuel L'Hommedieu, Nathan Y. Fordham and Philander R. Jennings. They quit-claimed to Noah Halsey and Silas Corwith, of the town of Southampton. The affidavit of attest attached is signed by A. T. Rose, County Judge of Suffolk County, and the deed is recorded 9th July, 1895 by W. R. Duvall, Clerk.

Wm. D. Halsey and wife conveys his interest (inherited from Noah Halsey his father) to Silas R. Corwith by deed dated January 23, 1908. The consideration for the half interest is understood to have been $100.

Silas R. Corwith made an assignment, in bankruptcy, to George M. Vail and said Vail, and wife, conveyed to C. J. Foster by deed dated Dec. 23, 1916, the present owner, who also now owns Foot of the Beach, by a deed from the Proprietor Trustees to Orlando Hand for $25.00, in 1882. This land comes by conveyance to Mr. Foster, who purchased from heirs of Hand.

These Beach and meadow properties are now very desirable, their bounds at east and west ends have been located, and the property fronting on bay and coves, is estimated to be worth about $100. a foot front. There is more than a mile of Long Beach, with two miles of water frontage; and the Foot of the Beach probably is 500 feet long with 1,000 feet of water frontage on the Noyac Bay and Weckatuck Pond or what is now called by some Staff-Payne's Creek.

Regarding beach as upland, rather than land between high and low water, it is instructive to read how the townsmen observed and regulated their town lands:

Page 45, printed record, vol. i; page 44, orginal record, vol i. "June 11 1647. The Gentlemens discretions about the division of land being read distinctly, well wayghed & considered, and the said Gentlemen, (viz Mr Hopkins and Mr Haynes) having prouided in the said writings that when the lymits of the plantation weare set out every man should haue for quantity and quality within the bounds of the towne, & plantation alike according to their severall proportions, in their valuation to be devided in the most impartial manner that may be and allso to haue & hold their due comons according to their severall divisions or dividents therefore the day and yeare written aboue written it is ordered by the fiue men and by all the neighborhood (the present inhabitants) of this towne both for them selves & for all that shall come to fill vp the lots that are yet to be disposed of, That the bounds & Lymits of this town of Southampton shall be in and to all intents and purposes for as large Ample & beneficial manner as it hath bin heretofore at any time or times obtained possessed or purchased of the Indians the natuie inhabitants, or James ffaret Gent, Agent of the Right Hon. The above excerpts are illuminating of earliest town management.

The Governor's determination concerning who took title from the Indian, given in the arbitration of 1666, minces no words in declaring the town and not individuals as purchasers of the Indian lands, and says: “the said tract of land, meadow and beach, mentioned in their said deeds is belonging, doth and shall belong unto the towne of Southampton, (viz) that (hath and doe pay purchase) and their successors forever.”

HAMPTON BEACHES.

WEST BEACH.

The Beach Meadows, or West Beach. What better name could be chosen to designate the ten mile beach and marshy sedge separating Shinnecock Bay from Atlantic Ocean, stretching from Cooper's Neck to Quogue? A division of Beach Meadow was made in 1657, and another in 1687. This barrier beach constantly changed its formation. Provision is found in the Act of 1818 for disposal of meadow that “made up” on the bay side; but there is no provision for disposal or allotment of the beach that “made up” and this kind of shifting sand constantly and following each storm produced changes in the shore line. We can in retrospect see how the beach was regarded, in Southampton, by following the regulation of this West Beach. First acquired from the Indians by individuals, in 1653; by arbitration of Governor Nicoll, in 1666, the beach and sedge became awarded to the Town, taking title through its freehold and commonalty trustees to equitably recognize the ownership of, and payment for same, all the western lands of Southampton by townsmen, who were proprietors. Thereafter the Town, sometimes in conjunction with its Brookhaven neighbor, on the west, regulated the pasturage on the beach meadows, the fisheries on the ocean beach and the whaling enterprise. Provision was made for the bay meadows, that “might hereafter make up” attaching itself to the barrier beach, and in every in-
The description given in deeds of the bounds of division of Great Sedge Flat sometimes called Gull Island locates it very plainly on the south side of Shinnecock Bay. The bound at south is Beach. Between the sand dune and west Bay or Shinnecock water there is a Beach; between the dunes and ocean on the south side of West Beach, and ocean water, is a white expanse of land called by the natives Beach not “strand.” One of these beaches must have been meant as the south bound of the meadows. But which Beach? And some court decisions rule that where beach is named as a bound it means wave-washed shore! The puzzle of what our forbears meant when they used a beach bound is somewhat cleared by the way they managed beach lands. Take this West Beach. Page 250, in the year 1780, says that the people of Moriches and Proprietors of the beach in the western parish agreed that there should be no creatures put upon the West Beach for a term of four years; this was so ordered, no creatures “from the ‘Gut’ to the west bound;” and pounders were appointed to impound any stray creatures “on the beach”
“except such as are made use of in getting and carting hay in proper season thereof.”

Provision for disposition of “meadows that make up” has been written of above. Some of the “Islands,” so called in the western part of Southampton, were ten acres in area.

In 1826 the Proprietors appointed “viewers” to take a look at the meadow on the beach east of the Great Flat to the Gut and to hire it out for pasture. June, the same year voted to allot the Great Flat in the Bay near Quogue; page 339 records, “lot the Great Sage Flat into ten or twelve lots; if they think best to lot the other meadows eastward.”

The Proprietors voted, in 1826, to decide about fencing meadow at Shinnecock of Proprietors and “other lands” the Proprietors agreeing to make or pay for one-half the fence.

Men were named to “prevent trespass on the beach,” in 1816. The “heirs to keep up the fence on the beach.”

At page 743 records there is an entry: “Jan. 27, 1826. Committee to go on the beach and examine the meadows making up on the flat west of Shinnecock.” (Note. This meadow is in front of the Howell meadow in the Pine Division that is recorded in the survey of Howell’s meadow.)

What other does the record mean than that certain beaches were undivided, viz.:

1775, page 232, records. “Voted that David Rose may and shall have liberty to fence across the beach to secure his meadow at or near pond until he shall mow his grass and then to lay common.”

1776, page 237 records. “Voted that there shall not be any beach grass mowed on the banks of the south beach by any person whatsoever under penalty of thirty s. per load and so in proportion in any quantity.”
1776, Sale of Grass. From Acct. Book. “Received from Town Pond to Gut the beach grass on the Banks (excepted Elias Howell Jr.)”

In 1818, page 679 records. “Appointed pull up the elders on Swan Island and also correct the boundaries between the common meadows and the meadows of individuals on the West Beach.”

1767, page 176. Regulation setting nets: “From Reedy Island eastward to the eastward part of Exchange Point and so in a direct line across the beach fifty rods eastward of the island called Scott’s Island.”

At the same time that Mecox meadows were sold, a part of West Beach was sold and it is appropriate that a description as named in the deed should be reproduced here. What did the Proprietors then sell?

Liber 45, page 49, L. I., records: “Indenture made the 13th day of June, 1846, Trustees of the Town of Southampton of the first part, and John H. Post, Cephas Foster and George O. Post, of the second part,  consideration $1385.00, sell forever: A certain tract of meadow land, lying on the beach and known by the name of The Great Flat in Quogue Purchase, namely Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 bounded on the east by the Bay and the said party of the first part and southerly by the Beach, westerly by Lots Nos. 2-6 and northerly by Bay also Lots No. 14, 15 and 16, bounded on the east by Lot No. 13, south by the Beach, west by Lot No. 17 and north by Bay.” John P. Osborne signs the conveyance as President.

The deed of 1861 conveys:

“1861, 116, 370: Between the Proprietors of the common and undivided lands and marshes (or meadow) in the Town of Southampton, and George O. Post and Erastus Foster and John H. Post: All the several tracts of salt or sedge meadows on such part of the south side of Shinnecock Bay  as are bounded on the east by allotted meadow of Pine Division, (made in 1687) on the north by Shinnecock Bay, on the west by meadow of George O. Post, Erastus Foster and John H. Post or allotted meadow, and on the south by the Beach; and also including the sedge flat on island opposite the premises hereinbefore conveyed.”

By a series of quit claim deeds between Town Trustees and assigns of Post et al their assigns, provision was made for a highway the length of West Beach, and also lateral roads running from bay water to ocean water.

To test the validity of their grant and to define the matter of meadows that “might make up” the Posts and Foster brought a test suit before Judge Bartlett in 1893. The plaintiffs claimed seven miles of beach and meadow sold them in 1861 by Proprietor Trustees. One island was named in the conveyance. Judge Bartlett found that the plaintiffs were entitled to the beach and meadow land and the single island named in the contract. The title to other islands that had subsequently “made up” was vested in the town of Southampton, so the Court decided. They had arisen from the water. By the Mecox decision the town owned the land under the bay water; when this became superstructure it still belonged to the town, as long as it remained island and did not attach itself to the mainland of privately owned land. The suit was one of trespass and a nominal judgment was given.

The Town Trustees of Southampton have refused to grant leases for islands. The proposition has been put before them, in 1928, to permit the construction of artificial islands in Shinnecock and Quantuck Bays. The Islands are desirable for duck hunting. The town has refused to permit artificial islands to be raised; but in many places the meadows or sedge continues to “make up” just as it has since the settlement of the town.

In view of the Town Trustees protecting the townsman’s bay and beach right by proceeding against non-resident Sayville clammers who caught seed clams in creek waters, in 1928, it is interesting to read: That in the William Downs case it was decided that Southampton owned no part of Peconic Bay (her creeks are within Southampton’s sovereign grant).

One of the numerous decisions applying to Southampton is: The right of Southampton town under old colonial charters.—The court held that land, including lands under water, and also the waters themselves, within the limits of the town of Southampton, were not vested in the English Government in trust for the people at the time of the Revolutionary War, but were vested in the Town of Southampton by charters granted nearly one hundred years before the War of the Revolution, and that the Town had a distinct political existence long before the creation of New York State government. The court held that these rights were legally conferred before the State of New York, or the United States, had an existence; and that these rights have been continued and protected by the State Constitution.

Judge Wilmot Smith decided that Southampton town’s bound on the north was high water mark of Peconic Bay.

Southampton under its Proprietors, before 1818, and under Town Trustees’ management has always ejected non-resident fishermen.

The Southampton Cemetery Case did not concern a great amount of actual value of property. But it was a fight for a principle. While it has nothing to do with Beach or Beach rights, it does have to do with the fee of common land. All deeds drafted in 1882 excluded burial grounds and cemeteries after the Old Burying Ground decision, and before. In the year of 1892 the Court of Appeals decided in favor of the Town of Southampton in the Old Burying Ground case. It had been in litigation a long time. Edwin Post, of Southampton, claimed to own the disputed property. The contest involved points which were fought with a great deal of pertinacity and some ill feeling. The burial ground in question comprises an acre of ground given to the town more than two centuries before 1890.

Brookhaven and the barrier beach known as Fire Island Beach bounds Southampton town at Seatuck, on the west. When Col. Smith received the Patent the Brookhaven Town Trustees consented to its limits in 1693. An exchange of quit-claims was made between Col. Smith and trustees of the town of Southampton, June 14, 1694, and a line of division for meadow and beach was then established. Brookhaven, accomplished its division of lands and lands beneath water with the Lord of St. George's Manor, in 1773. This also comprises beach land and indicates how beach lands were regulated to west of Southampton town. The beach and under water lands east of Quanch and Whale House Point belong to Smith; the beach and under water lands west of Whale House Point mostly belongs to Brookhaven town.

The line between Brookhaven and Southampton was established by Commission in 1782.

SOUTHAMPTON BEACHES.

TITLE CLASHES

Despite the compromise of 1818 there were clashes and misunderstandings between Town and Proprietors. Some doubted if the Legislature by its Act created any grant, or fee. The beaches were strewn with seaweed. The Proprietors claimed the beaches as common land. The Proprietors admitted the compromise of 1818 gave the Town the waters and products of the water, but contended nothing had been said about the lands under water. To whom did such lands belong?
The Town, or the Proprietors. This caused as much bewilderment in times of a century ago, as the question of who owns the fee of certain beaches occasions now. The enigma continued until the judgment of the Mecox Bay bottom suit, in the eighties, which found for the Town. The quibble was thus quieted.

Concerning beach and bay rights the freehold and commonalty of the Town who owned no "commonage", in 1830, interpreted the Dongan Patent as follows, for in town meeting they declare:

"That it is the opinion of the said electors the Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the said town have power by the charter of the town to regulate the common privileges of the town, and as a necessary consequence to impose reasonable penalties for an infraction of their by-laws for that purpose.

"Voted that we will sustain our Trustees in the laws which they have passed, and the suits which they have caused to be instituted for the breach of those laws ***

"Voted by the electors  that the law as it stands regulating the privilege of oystering in Mecox bay, passed by the said Trustees during the year 1829, be and the same is declared to be a town law."

This law referred to above made a closed season for taking oysters in Mecox Bay, in May, June, July, August and September; it also forbid the taking of clams in the months of July and August from any of the flats or shores adjoining Southampton's waters. The penalty for infraction for each offense was $12.50 half for the support of poor of the town. And it was made the duty of the Trustees to prosecute.

Certain proprietors defied the Town law. As Proprietors they said it did not concern them. Here was a hiatus. Trustees were in a quandary. Why not seek relief again in appeal to the State Legislature? This was just what ensued when smart lawyers of the time prevented their clients paying fines upon grounds that the freehold Trustees had no authority to impose penalties. The result was an Act, passed April 25, 1831, incorporating the “Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton * * * the funds arising from fines, penalties and forfeitures, and the management of the property and franchises of the Town shall be appropriated and applied as the Trustees may deem most proper to promote the interests of the said Town.” The number of Trustees has been changed from twelve to five; but Sec. 5, of the Act of 1831, still applies to Southampton:” The said Trustees shall have the sole control over all the fisheries, fowling, sea-weed waters and the products of the waters within the said Town, not the property of individuals, and all the property, commodities, privileges and franchises granted to them by the Charter of Governor Dongan in one thousand six hundred and eighty-six, except so far as are abrogated, changed and altered by the laws of this state, passed in conformity to the Constitution and not now belonging to individuals, nor to the proprietors by virtue of an Act entitled ‘An Act relative to the common and undivided lands and marshes in Southampton * * * passed April 15th, 1818’; and they shall have power to make rules and the regulation of their affairs.

“6. And to impose such penalties; * * * penalty shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars for any one offense * * *.”

While discussing the question of “rights” on beach or bay, it is well to read comment upon the way Southampton commoners accepted the meaning of the Act of 1818. In 1882 one of the legal lights of the town thus expressed himself: “The entry in the record dated April, 1818, shows the sense the electors had of the then new act. ‘These proprietor trustees can lease, sell or partition lands, &c., call special meetings on notice, &c.’
The 4th Section declares, Provided nevertheless, that nothing in the aforerecited act shall be construed to give the proprietors or their trustees, any power to make any laws, rules or regulations concerning the waters (other than mill streams), the fisheries, the seaweed, or any other productions of the water of the said town, or in any way to debar the inhabitants of the said town from the privilege of taking seaweed from the shores of any of the common lands of said town, carting or transporting to or from, or landing property on said shores, in the manner heretofore practised, which waters, fisheries, seaweed and productions of the waters shall be managed by the trustees of the freeholders and commonalty of the town of Southampton for the benefit of said town, as they had the power to do before the passage of this act."

The language used is explicit, perspicuous, vigorously expressing the intent of the law makers.

The freeholder and commoner argued that the Act of 1818 stated that the Town and not the Proprietors had the power previous to legislative statute, and thereafter, as well, to manage the waters and products of the Town waters. And the courts decided the commoner reasoned rightly.

The arguments which ran very warm were somewhat like this: Let any private oyster planter put 50,000 bushels of seed oysters in Town waters. Whom are the owners of the spawn and increase? No corporation formed under the general law can abrogate this act of 1818, nor any of its provisions. Oysters planted or bedded where oysters are accustomed to breed, and which are caught upon the spot of the deposit become the property of the people of Southampton town. No private property exists. Shellfish called oysters, clams, muscles, scallops &c., are "products of the waters." The proprietor trustees can make no rules or laws concerning the waters, salt or fresh, or brackish, within the boundaries of the town. The commoner commented in 1882: “It is understood the trustees of the proprietors have given a quit claim conveyance of the land covered by the waters of Mecox Bay, expressly excluding the grant of the waters of the Bay. They can execute the conveyance of the tail of a comet, or of the moon. Such conveyance would be as valuable as a quit claim deed of the land under the water of Mecox Bay. Who will have the right to manage the productions of the waters? Who can control the waters but the trustees of the town? Management of the water cuts off completely all use of the bottom land for any purpose. How futile to evade the act of 1818 by a shallow pretense of title. This reasoning is logical, as events have proved. So found the highest court. But there were those who argued that the Proprietors could sell under water lands. There were no riparian grants in issue.

There were echoes of the shellfish eruption for 100 years after the presentation of the things that led to the Act of 1818. The fact is proprietor trustees, who succeeded proprietors who made the pact and compromise, utterly disregarded it, or were, apparently ignorant of its import; for proprietors' journals show proprietor officials quite regularly, and up to 1880, passing resolutions regulating the fisheries, and the seaweed.

The rights of the people, through their elected Town Trustees, have been enumerated above. But the Town Trustees have no right (without a vote so instructing them by the people) to lease, sell, or give away any town property. They must exercise their powers for the benefit of the town, and this means the commonalty residents of the town. Nor can any claim be advanced by reason of purchase of the shore about Town waters from adjacent owners, for they have no riparian right. The riparian grant is a State erection introduced after the Revolutionary War. It does not apply to Town waters and lands under waters, so Attorney-General Tabor opined 40 years ago. He thought the Land Commissioner of the State had no jurisdiction concerning lands under waters within towns erected by Colonial Patents.

A bill passed by the 1927 legislature did give Town Boards a right to dispose of town property without a vote of town electors. It was unpopular and repealed in 1928.

Some of the findings of fact which were emphasized in the several under water land suits concerning Suffolk county towns stated by the Court are notorious as town "rights."

"That the towns owns the submerged lands and has owned the said lands more than 100 years.

"That the shellfish were always held for the exclusive enjoyment of the inhabitants of the town and that the possession of the submerged lands was always restricted and limited to said inhabitants.

"The possession, use and control has been continuous, exclusive, open and notorious; no one has ever questioned the title of the town to said fisheries.

"That none of the proprietors (previous to 1882) nor their heirs ever made any conveyance or allotments of any of the submerged lands within town waters.

"That the heirs of the proprietors were never in exclusive possession of any of the submerged lands.

"It was the policy of the Crown in Colonial days to make no grant of lands in N. Y. Province unless the Indians' possessory right was extinguished and an Indian deed to land applied for was a condition precedent to a grant from the Crown, and the Crown granted nothing more than was actually covered by the Indian deed.

"That the Indian deeds mention tracts of land.

"That said deeds contain no mention of a grant of tidal waters."

In the brief submitted at the Mecox suit counsel reasoned:
ADDENDUM

"The Act of 1818 was drawn in exact accordance with the popular will expressed in the town meetings of 1816 and 1818. In 1816 the bill proposed by the Proprietors was not satisfactory and a committee was appointed and instructed to remonstrate against its passage."

The townsmen have "free" access to the waters wherever situated, providing they are town waters. This is one of the "rights" guaranteed by the bill of 1818. It still holds good, but not to trespass upon private lands.

HAMPTON BEACHES & BAYS.

LIBERAL TENDENCIES

In the 17th and 18th centuries, the almost autocratic authority of the Crown stands prominent in New York Province. In lesser degree the Proprietors of the Colonial townships were autocrats. Democracy as we know it today was unthought of. The awakening of the power of the Town over the Proprietors gains refreshment and vigor in the 19th century.

The Proprietors had asserted ownership of the beaches, the waters and the highways. They were alarmed that they might lose practiced and accepted prerogatives if interpretation of the Dongan Patent went before the Courts. So the compromise of 1818! Did the Act recording as a State statute the pact of Town and Proprietors create a fee in lands? There will be found today those who aver that the Proprietors had but doubtful title until the town was willing to acknowledge the Proprietors' ownership of undivided lands, in 1818.

And there are those who reason that the Town held the title of all undivided lands and has never relinquished such title.

Let us see how the Court ruled on this question:

"The common lands were assumed to have passed under the patents so long acquiesced in, and the foundation of the private titles to all the lands of a large community should prevail even if it were conceded, that as an abstract legal question such construction was incorrect.

Democracy is shown to be gaining in the 19th century. A change has been made from using the town meetings for political caucuses. The party system is beginning to be introduced, soon after the incorporation of freehold town trustees of Southampton, in 1831. The items below indicate how the State and National representatives were chosen. He who controlled the town meeting wielded wide power. The boss system prevailed among the strong men then as now, and there were outstanding men of proven leadership and executive ability. There was the town meeting caucus (the word derived from the Indians) long before the "party caucus."

Town Meeting, April 2d, 1816. "Voted that Members of Assembly to be nominated in future at our annual Town Meetings, and that the Town Clerk shall give public notice of this resolution in each of the parishes three weeks previous to the Town Meeting." And seq. :

Town Meeting, April 2, 1822. "Voted that John P. Osborn, Esq., be a delegate to meet at the Riverhead to consult with delegates from other parts of the County, relative to nominations, &c., for the impending election, &c., to meet in May." "Voted that John P. Osborn be chosen for Member of Assembly, April 7, Town Meeting, 1818."

The Act of 1818 was an entering wedge, and although it appears to the historian that the Town gave, rather than received a benefit, it did have a tendency to curb arrogancy.

At Town Meeting, April 7, 1812, it was "voted that the Trustees shall have no power to regulate the commons and undivided land."

Dec. 23, 1817. "Confer with proprietors in common-age respecting their rights and privileges in said town."
Questions of bay and beach rights came to a head in 1861. This was undoubtedly brought about by the Proprietors' sale of Shinnecock Hills and Sebonac and other lands and the intimation that bay bottom might be sold. For the purpose of defending the interest of the inhabitants of the town, in the productions of the waters and in all the privileges granted by the Proprietors in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighteen, it was resolved to vote an appropriation of $500. By vote the Supervisor had been authorized to pay over town moneys to the Town Trustees to protect commonalty or freehold "rights."

The Proprietors were accepting money for seaweed and fisheries rights in 1861. In 1860 they had voted to sell the shore in the north and south side of "the hills in case the suit pending in the Court of Appeals is decided in their favor and to defend the privilege of leasing."

Again in 1862, it is shown how the people regarded "shores privileges." They raised $200 to build a bridge from Ketchaboneck to the ocean beach. And they "Resolved, that the Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton be instructed to protect and defend any rights which said town may have in and to the waters, fisheries and seaweed, and productions of the waters, adjoining the land on Shinnecock Hills lately sold by the Proprietors of the common and undivided lands of said town, and that the sum of $500 be appropriated from the contingent fund to defray the expenses of the Trustees. Carried. Ayes 254, nays 181."

As early as Oct. 6, 1642, it was ordered in Southampton "that no man shall buy any land of the Indians within the bounds of this towne without the consent of the Generall Court."

The Proprietors, in early years sold the surplus land and divided among themselves the avails when broad highways were made narrower, and when Parade Grounds were sold; they exacted a charge for the lease of the lanes for pasture; even ducks and swine not owned by Proprietors had to pay for going upon the commons. All this is changed in the 19th century, and the votes in the town meetings indicate the growing supremacy of the proletarian over proprietor and a wider understanding of town privileges granted by the Patent.

An agreement before purchase of the Town lands by the Southampton Company was that there should be no private property in the waters or any of their benefits, but that they should remain for the common benefit of all.

The commonalty were greatly fortified by opinion of their counsel, given in 1883, to wit. : “The legal title subsequently acquired by the Town, under its colonial charters, for the territory within its limits, was designed to be bestowed upon it not in hostility to the agreements of the original compact, but in accordance with it, and there is no language in either of these charters calling for an interpretation inconsistent with this distinct purpose and agreement of the founders of the town.” The Town by a vote of 510 for, to 194 against appropriated $5,000 to litigate the right of the people to the bay bottoms in 1883.

As far back as April 10, 1667, the Quogue Ditch was dug. No toll could be exacted for using this water way. That was understood. “It was agreed by major vote  for the cutting through a water way from Quaq qua Bay to Shinnecock Bay.”

Regarding restriction of the highways, the Town Meeting of April 3, 1832, voted: “That cattle and sheep shall be allowed to run at large in the highways of this town.” The regulation of the highways caused fluctuation in the system of control for in 1838 the Town voted for cattle or horses not to roam Shinnecock unenclosed woods or any highways and provided for distraining and impounding such beasts.
The Pounds and Pound Masters were kept up and regularly elected until 1900, when the office of Fence-viewer also by common consent was abolished. All the important settlements had Pounds. That at Sag Harbor at one time in the 80's was back of the Washington street fire house where at a later time stood the village iron cage, or lock-up.

After Paul Topping won the famous Sagg windmill law suit, in 1840, when the Proprietors tried to sell a site for a windmill, at Sagaponack, in front of Topping's home, the highways were declared free to cattle, sheep and horses under 2 years old, in 1843. In 1845 cattle, horses and sheep were distrained from running at large on the highways. In 1846 the electors voted that horses under 2 years old, cattle and sheep be allowed to run on the highways and common land which here is defined to be “of the town.” Voted that “no cattle, horses, or sheep be allowed to run on the highways or common land of this town,” in 1847.

David Burnett is on record as testifying, in 1886, that he had heard from his father that the oyster “right” of Mecox Bay had been hired to Burnett, the father, and 10 or 12 other men about 1800; they dug out an inlet and got the bay full of oysters; and the freeholders and commonalty of Southampton town said they had as good a right in the bay as Burnett & Co., (who had leased from the Proprietors) had; the commonalty went in then and took the oysters out; the proprietors prosecuted them; they got a change of venue; the accused trespassers were tried in Brookhaven; the towns-commonalty got th suit and after that nobody was interfered with on the bay taking shellfish—not by the proprietors—up to the present time, (1885). At the time Mr. Burnett testified, he was 77 years old.

As this is written (Dec. 20, 1928), there is a man living who remembers the sale of undivided lands of Southampton, in 1846. He was 94 years old in 1928. He remembered attending the sale, at Capt. Howell's bar-room in Southampton village. Here is his recollection of that sale:

"After the lots between Mecox Bay and the ocean had been sold, whatever was left that the proprietors might own to the eastward was sold to Judge Rose for one dollar." The Judge Rose dollar deed has been searched for, but, if such exists, it cannot be found. The Judge, so counsel has informed me, does, however in his Will dispose of lands "recently purchased from the proprietors."

A fac-simile, or copy of a deed, however, doee exist. It is reproduced here:

(Abstract). Trustees of the Proprietors of the Town of Southampton to Abraham T. Rose, dated the 30th June, 1846; it conveys a certain lot of meadow on the south side of Mecox Bay, it, being Lot No. 16, bounded on the west by Lot No. 15, north by the bay, east by Lot. No. 17, and south by the beach; it conveys also all the meadow from the seapoose to the east bounds of said town, "which the proprietors of said town now own." The deed is signed by John P. Osborn, President. The consideration is $14.75.

BEACH AND RIGHTS.
SOUTHAMPTON TOWN.
IN RETROSPECT.

The first grant made by the Indians to Southampton, in 1640, included "beach," the place "where the Indians hayle over their canoes out of the North bay to the south side—Canoe Place, a low lying isthmus now connecting the eastern part of Southampton town with that part of Southampton town, west of Shinnecock Hills.
The Patent granted from James Farrett, agent of the Earl of Sterling, included upon Long Island "land, uplandt, meadow, marish ground, harbours, rivers and creeks, within bounds." It was procured April 17, 1640, and judged and confirmed by John Winthrop, Governor, October 20, 1641.

The Farrett or Fforest deed of June 12, 1640, and the Farrett confirmation of July 7, 1640, of Southampton lands, names on north and south sides water bounds "from Shinnecock entitled the name of the place where the Indians draw over their canoes out of the north bay over to the south side of the island."

This south bound apparently was the water of Shinnecock Bay, not the water of the ocean; for, in 1658, the Indians deeded to Lyon Gardiner:

"A certain tract of beach land, with all ye rest of the grass that joynes to it, not separated from it by water—which beach begins eastward at the west end of Southampton bounds, and westward where it is separated by ye waters of ye sea coming in out of ye ocean (seapoose, long since closed.—H. D. S.) sea, being bounded southward with the great sea, Northward with the inland water—this land and grass thereon, for a range or run for to feed horses and cattle on." (Note: "beach and land and grass" thereon; for a cattle and horse run; cattle could not long subsist or exist on the "land between high and low water mark, alternately covered by water." This is the way beach lands were understood and described in 1658, by the Indians, grantors of the first fee of the land and by the English white men, the grantees.—H. D. S.)

The Governor Andross Patent of Southampton lands, of 1676, says from water to water, or "their Southern bounds being the Sea, Northward to Peaconock great River * * * and to run eastward along the north bounds to the easternmost point of Hogg-Neck."
The Patent issued by Governor Dongan confirming the Andross Patent, in 1686 bounds Southampton lands from water to water, or “their southern bounds being the sea, then crossing over the Island, to the northward to Peaconeck great river and so to run Eastward amongst their north bounds to the Easternmost part of Hoggenock over against Shelter Island.”

From the above it is evident that the purchasers of Southampton regarded their lands as bounded by the water of Peconic estuary, bays and river on the north and the Main Ocean, on the south.

But what did the settlers regard as “beach?” The purchase of the barrier sandy dunes, meadows, and flat, sloping sands extending from the sand banks to the water of the ocean are all described to be “a certain tract of beach land,” at very early date, 1658. The Indians called it “beach” and the “Englishmen called it “beach.” It was not land covered by water at high tide.

The Town Records tell us how the settlers divided their lands. One very early entry concerns the grant to Ogden and his associates of Northampton sea, or North Sea lands, Cow Neck and Jefferies Neck; and upon the same grant “they are to have all the meadow betwixt the Sachem’s house and Hog neck spring.” If this is Hog Neck spring, on the beach it is just east of Little Noyack. Pelletreau has left a note: “the North Sea Line ends at a point 25 rods from Weckatuck spring, see p. 144 vol. II, “the North Sea Lyne, near to Weckatuck pond which is about twenty five poales eastward of the North Sea Lyne, near Hogneck spring (a lot) granted and given unto John Jessup  an acre of meadow Lying Near Hogneck spring upon the Beach or adjoining thereunto, joining to the said pond and Beach.” But it does not say including the beach. The grant by Southampton “major part of the towne” to North Sea is “three hundred 24 acres “provided all the meadow bee a mile from the sea side.”
The Southampton settlers understood that their lands went from a water bound to a water bound. That is evident in the return of the layers out of the Canoe Place Division, of 1738. With them to the water meant at all times a water bound no matter the fluctuation of the tides; the tide line might vary but water would forever be a bound. In this Division of lands, in 1738, the layers out say: "The highway from Canew place to tianah six poles wide, and we left all the beach from Canew place pond on the north side to Red crick gut undivided from highwater mark to low water mark, for the use of the Proprietors to get and cart stone, to pass and repass from time to time and all times hereafter, unless otherwise orderd by the trustees or proprietors of said Purchas. And we proceeded to survey all the land between the aforesaid Beach and highway  running westward on the south side to tianah and then on a direct line northwardly to a fresh pond  and so along the Beach and by the side of the crick, (Red crick,) including one-half of the sedars groing on the said beach."

Unfortunately this description of a beach bound is vague and unsatisfactory. A path is left between "high and low water mark on the beach," and in the same paragraph cedars growing on the "beach" are declared a part of an allotment. Cedars do not grow in the water on land between high and low water mark!

What a mass of difficulties would have been avoided had the law construers left the waters of the bay at Peconic estuary and fresh water river on the north and the ocean waters on the south a determinate if fluctuating bound. The Sovereign grant stopped at high water, but only by expressed terms.

Mr. Mershon, who wrote "Crown Grants," writes me: "A Sovereign grant stopped at high water" because "when a Sovereign made a grant to "the ocean' or to any 'tidal body of water' a peculiar issue was immediately raised. Such waters have flexible bounds. The Courts have construed such a vague description of sovereign grants most favorable to the Sovereign and as intended to mean to high water mark. By this court interpretation of restriction, less land was conveyed from the Crown than if construed to low water mark.”

We have no misgivings and stand fearlessly upon the assertion that as “a general proposition, the Long Island settlers and the English colonial authorities on Long Island and subsequent generations of native-born residents on Long Island, have treated “Beach” on Long Island as covering the wastes of white sand above high water mark, together with and inclusive of the “strand,” between the high and the low water marks. The Court lays down a theory of law in general, but we are discussing a fact of Long Island history, broadly recognized for generations, and the basis of the common law of Long Island on that subject. There doubtless are instances where individuals, not understanding their rights have acted otherwise. Such exceptions are to be separately treated.

“All land in the Province of New York, regardless of physical condition or location was subject to the Crown. No one could thwart his right to grant any of the lands. It made no difference as to his title or right to grant, whether the lands were covered by air, to which element no property rights could attach or whether the lands were covered by water, to which element no property right could attach.

“If we get this fact firmly fixed in mind and memory, we can then readily see that the Sovereign had absolute title in and the right to grant any and all lands, in the Province. We have innumerable grants of record at Albany where the Crown indiscriminately grants uplands, tideways and submerged lands in rivers, bays and sea. The Crown grants covered the Indian rights. The ‘fee’ was in the Indian tribe. The Indians were ‘wards’ of the Crown to protect them against dishonest traders or their own ignorance of commercial pursuits and practices. The Indian had no right to use the colonial courts to enforce his claims. Hence, the Crown would not grant until the Indians had not only sold their land but had approved before the Crown's representative and admitted satisfaction with the transaction. The Crown grant, not the Indian deed, was the "confirmatory" grant. The latter, however was final and conclusive as the Indian was not a citizen of the kingdom but had well defined rights and the protection of the Crown."

The Indians sold to a water bound of Peconic Bay and Atlantic Ocean, and the Crown affirmed the sale. The Indians and white men described "beach", in 1658, as a run for cattle and horses a "certain tract of beach land with all ye rest of the grass that joynes to it, not separated from it by water." It is just this kind of land that for many years was used in Southampton town for "a run for cattle and horses" and it is referred to as common beach land in Records, opened or closed in season by the Trustees, leased for mowing and fishing, and the lanes leading to the beach shut up by authority of Legislative Act of April 5, 1791, obtained by the Proprietors.

"Law is the child of History. Let History insist upon the right of parentage."

Historians and others are pretty much in accord that the title of Southampton lands rests on the confirmatory Dongan Patent of 1686. This legal instrument is a mass of tautology. Out of it we may learn, as elucidated by Judge Cullin:

"The patents of Governor Andross, of the 1st of November, 1676 and the patent of Governor Dongan of December 6th, 1686, granted the lands within its territorial limits.

"The first granted to certain named persons for and on behalf of themselves and their associates, the freeholders and inhabitants of the town of Southampton

"It also confirmed to the inhabitants their right to be and exist as a corporate Town.

"The second patent recites the issues of the first, and also the fact that dispute had arisen as to whether the inhabitants of the Town had acquired the Indian title to all the land within the limits, and, on such dispute, the determination by the Governor that the Indian title to all the lands had been purchased by the freeholders of the town. The habendum clause is 'To have and to hold the same unto the said freeholders and commonalty of the Town of Southampton and their successors,' forever, to and for the several and respective uses following, and to no other use, intent and purpose whatever. That is to say, as for and concerning all and singular, the several respective parcels, land and meadow part of the granted premises in any ways taken up and appropriated before the day of the date hereof, to the several and respective present freeholders and inhabitants of the said Town of Southampton by virtue of the above recited deed or patent to the only use, benefit and behoof of the said respective freeholders and inhabitants forever, and as for and concerning every such parcel or parcels, tract or tracts of land, remainder of the granted premises not yet taken up or appropriated to any particular person or persons by virtue of the fore recited deed or patent, to the use, benefit and behoof of such as have been purchasers thereof in proportion to their several and respective purchases thereof made as tenants in common.' I think the town under the patents took the legal title to the lands it is certain that it was the one adopted and acted upon by all parties in interest including both the town and the proprietors or purchasers of the Indian title. From the dates of the patents down to the year 1818 the town remained in undisputed possession and control of all the common lands and also all the waters within the town, and assumed to hold the legal title to the same. The town recognized the rights of the proprietors but regarded them solely as equitable. No proprietor ever took title to any lands within the town directly under the patent but only mediately through the town.”

The statute of 1818, incorporating the proprietors, says they may sell the undivided lands.

The townsmen, who were not of the proprietors’ body, when differences arose about what was meant by the patent, proposed: “that if the proprietors will give up their exclusive rights to the waters in said town, the town at large will give up their right to the undivided lands and meadows which the proprietors claim.” This compromise was accepted by town and by proprietors, and the Act of 1818 is a record of an agreement. But it is a very grave doubt in the understanding of many, if the Legislature vested any Constitutional title in the proprietors and if the clause giving the proprietors “the same power to superintend and manage the undivided lands, meadows and mill stream  as the trustees of the freeholders and commonalty of the town of Southampton now have, and shall have full power to sell, lease, or to partition ” is constitutional.

It is certainly not beyond the realm of reason to inquire if the Legislative Act of 1818 was Constitutional. The State of New York owned in Southampton town neither land nor land under water nor water within the town’s bounds. Could what was vested as valid title in the town by the Dongan patent be constitutionally transferred by the State from the town to the proprietors, giving the proprietors a legal title formerly and indisputably vested in the town? Is the Act of 1818 to be construed as a conveyance? Should the common lands transferred, or by compromised so swapped, be treated as a grant from New York State? If so, where did the State obtain any title to grant? The higher and highest court upheld the opinion of Judge Cullin that Southampton town took the legal title of the lands.

The learned Court also remarked "the common lands were assumed to have passed under the patents so long acquiesced in and the foundation of the private titles to all the lands of a large community, should prevail even if it were conceded, that as an abstract legal question such construction was incorrect."

At this point we hear: "How about the Act by which the Shinnecock Hills were sold?" "Was not that a Legislative sanction?"

The two instances of legislation do not seem analogous. The historical record shows that the Indian was the ward of the Crown; the Indian sold his land, with approval of the Crown or the Crown Governors and the Crown issued confirmatory patents legalizing the sale after the Indian announced that he was satisfied with the bargain; Southampton, in 1703, obtained a confirmatory deed from the Indians for its lands; it then leased certain lands to the Indians for a term of 1,000 years. When the Revolutionary War was won, the Indian became the ward of the State, instead of the Crown. In 1859, the purchasers of Shinnecock Hills and Sebonack who had leased to the Indians; by Act of the Legislature, gained permission to treat with the Indian Trustees. The 1,000 year lease was abrogated and by arrangement the Indians were given the fee of Shinnecock Neck, their Reservation, for throwing up their lease to use certain lands which had been sold generations before. The transaction seems perfectly constitutional, inasmuch as the State safeguarded its wards in the bargain. The question of whether the proprietors' heirs and assigns owned Shinnecock and Sebonac is not weighed here. The arbitration of Governor Nicolls seems to have mostly centered concerning Indian lands west of the Canoe Place.
Still it is well to keep in mind that the Nicoll award, of 1666, determined that the Indian title to all the lands had been purchased by the freeholders of the Town; and, that a Court judgment upheld by the Court of Appeals declared that “I think the town under the patents took the legal title. The town assumed to hold the same. No proprietor ever took title to any lands within the town directly under the patent.”

Shinnecock Hills when sold was first advertised “a title made clear by the Legislature; a title indisputable and indisputable.” Whether the Town or certain owners of commonage who arranged the swap with the Indians held the fee of the Indian lands when all Indian encumbrance had been removed was a moot question in 1861. An action was brought against the proprietors of Shinnecock by some citizens of Southampton. It was one of trespass and Judge Scrugham decided it could not be maintained.

Southampton has for 110 years labored under an indeterminate and indefinite onus relative to certain lands; this is a burdensome and vexatious state of affairs. To the historian it seems that possibly all this might have been avoided. Passing by the opportunity created whenever the proprietors sold lands after 1818, the means of settling for all time the question of who owns certain beaches presented itself in 1928. The Court created a commission to take by condemnation certain land for opening Mecox sea-poose. For 275 years the duty of regulating the “poose” rested in the Town. When the Town Trustees were threatened with restraint should they open the “poose” on what was claimed as private owned land, or offered a lease of land, it might have been possible to have proceeded with opening the inlet. With digging actually commenced: A temporary injunction to restrain the Town from digging might have issued. With a record of 275 years control of the inlet; and with petitions citing damage from high water to property of bayside owners who clamored to have the bay let out it is doubtful any judge could have been found to make the injunction permanent. What then? The Town would be sued for trespass and liable to damage! But only in the event of the plaintiff proving title and the outcome of such an action at law would go a long way in declaring who owned the white expanse of sand between bank and surf, or sand dune and ocean, without the puzzling problems of erosion, attrition and effect of water and wind on the south side of Southampton town.

Returning to discussion of the enabling Act (?) of 1818, there is some precedent to go by in the Montauk Tenants in Common v. East Hampton Trustees.

In this instance the Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty erected to purchase Indian lands, by the Dongan Patent, had a choice to buy for the Town or to buy for individuals; they chose the latter course, and in the law suit of 1851, the Court determined the Tenants in Common were owners of Montauk.

In the Town of Southampton v. Mecox Bay Oyster Company law suit in 1885 the Court opined that the Town of Southampton took the legal title to all the lands and waters.

The Court says: "In April, 1852, the Legislature passed a law for its (Montauk’s) general management (Chapter 139, Laws of 1852.) It professes to incorporate the proprietors of Montauk, and probably it does, and it is contended by some of the defendants that none of the proprietors can institute this action (one for partition) for partition, for that reason. The position is not tenable. The law was not intended to, and does not, vest the title in the corporation, but leaves it where it was,  It does not effect the title at all. It is only a plan for the control and management of the land. The interest of the several proprietors would pass by their individual deeds of conveyance, after this law, the same as before."
Applying the reasoning above of Judge Dykman, to the law of 1818 which incorporated the Proprietors of the Undivided Lands of Southampton, (declared to hold title) conveying by a legal instrument other than the declaration of the Legislature, its undivided lands, does the Act of 1818 have any possible effect in erecting and establishing a title in the Proprietors?

THE HAMPTON BEACHES.

MODERN TERM.

Court decisions, both Federal and State, restrict “beach” to “land between low water and high water mark, alternately covered by the rise and fall of the tides.”

As a term of expression, and description, the Hampton town records do not so define “beach.”

A correspondent, who is greatly interested in the problem presented by a proper classification of island fore­shores, sends an account published in the N. Y. World, of December 29, 1928, descriptive of a sea island rodeo given at Sapelo Island, Georgia, for entertainment of President Coolidge. The primitive conditions there prevailing, in 1928, with cattle roaming the foreshores, or water-wash­ed island edges, are like conditions in the Hamptons when cattle foraged and roamed the shores of Long Island, and records tell us that the Hampton “beaches” were annually used to pasture cattle and that grass on the “beaches” was auctioned off for mowing.

Substitute “Long Island” for Sapelo Island, and the description of newspaper writers of 1928, apply to condi­tions on Southampton and East Hampton ocean shores, in 1729 or 1829. The description reads:

“Sapelo Island, where Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge are enjoy­ing a Christmas vacation  abounds in semi-wild steers which are left free to roam through the woodlands and fields of the Coffin estate. Some fifty of these were rounded up on the broad beach at the seaward side of the Island.  a prize is offered to the Negro who sticks to his mount the longest, while for other a point down the beach is fixed as a goal and the prize goes to the rider who, still astride his steer, first reaches the objective.”

Commenting upon the above my correspondent observes that “the race down the beach was not made in the surging, tossing foam of breaking waves between high and low water mark.”

Neither did the cattle on the Hampton beaches find subsistence between a high and low water mark where not even marine grasses could grow.

The Hampton records tell how beach water fences were erected, both at ocean side, and at bay side, four feet depth of water, and say the water fences were built upon the beaches, and extended or projected into the water.

The records also recite that grass taken from the “beach” was transplanted at “sandhills and sand lots” to prevent sand blowing and drifting upon fertile pastures and improved farm lands.

There are hundreds of conveyances of lots made in the Hamptons where “Beach” is named as a boundary; until 1880 this appears to have been the accepted way of naming a boundary; after 1880 in both Southampton and East Hampton towns the “ocean” on the south, is named as a boundary, in some deeds.

THE HAMPTON BEACHES.

COMMON ALL SOLD.

An element of Southampton town that passed forever in the decade of 1880-1890 was common ownership of lands.

Southampton was not peopled by emigrants from England, who came directly to eastern Long Island. The colonists came, for the most part from Lynn, Mass. They were a superior class; the men well educated for their time, the women possessed of energy and ability. The men understood the rudiments of the science of government. They could read and write; the women excelled in domestic virtues but were not so well schooled and many of them in signing legal papers made their mark.

The agreement forming the Company and "The Disposal of the Vessel," (March 10, 1640), arranges for a site and start of settlement, the method of laying out the land, terms of ownership and who shall levy and who shall be liable to pay taxes and for what purposes.

Prof. Adams description of a New England village may appropriately be applied to Long Island Colonial settlements of the English. He says they "settled in close proximity for good neighborhood and defense, with homes and home lots fenced in and owned in severality, but with a common Town Street and a Village Green, or Home Pasture, and with common fields, allotted outside the Town for individual mowing and tillage, but fenced in common, together with a vast surrounding tract of absolutely common and undivided land used for pasture and woodland, under communal regulations." This continued until lands were allotted or divided by the Town among the persons who paid for their purchase and patent, in proportion to the amount contributed toward the purchase by each person, who was called an "undertaker" or "proprietor."

In "A History of the Town of Southampton," (1916) this is written: "All members of the community (were) bound together in a common unity of purpose, endeavor and interest  where every land owner in the original community here possessed all of the above rights, cannot be positively asserted, but it is probably that he did. However, the distinction began to appear between those who did and those who did not, in other words, between simple Townsmen on the one hand, and the Proprietors, or those owning a share in the undivided lands of the Town, on the other. Reference to the various deeds show that they were granted to certain men and their associates, and the land so granted, was held by them jointly, except such portions as they might, in their own discretion, and from time to time, agree among themselves to allot in severality to individuals. These were the Proprietors. In a land 'division’, if land were allotted to one of themselves, that person would thus acquire the fee simple of the individual piece allotted to him and still retain his share in the undivided remainder, but if an allotment were made to one who was not a Proprietor, all that he acquired was the fee of the piece allotted to him with no rights whatever in the Common Land. He might, however, acquire such rights by purchase.”

“The proportion interest of "each and every" which were apportioned in 1647 was ordered by "all the Inhabitants of this Towne." Possibly, in earliest years of settlement of Southampton, every freeman was likewise a Proprietor "and thus in their dual capacities they could transact both Town and Proprietors’ business at the same meeting, which was simply recorded as a Town Meeting."

There was undoubtedly a distinction between "Towns­men," who owned none of the undivided land, and Proprietors, who at one and the same time were towns­men, freeholders and owners of "commonage," or undivided land of the Town. The Townsman voted in Town Meeting for Trustees, but he, unless a Proprietor, owned only individual freehold property. "Commonage could be bought or sold, or passed by inheritance.”

James Truslow Adams has so well explained regulation of Southampton lands, we quote him:

"By these transfers the number of Proprietors had become greatly enlarged, their individual rights becoming correspondingly less, while with every Division the amount of common land remaining undivided of course decreased, so that a generation ago the common land had been practically all divided, while the number of Proprietors, through the subdivisions incident to the changes of some eight generations, had become exceedingly numerous though with individually extremely small interests of almost no ascertainable value. In the meantime, however, the claims of the Proprietors as against the Town had not been wholly unchallenged. The terms and phraseology of the Dongan Patent were held by some to invalidate the rights of the Proprietors, they having, at the beginning of the last century, extended their claims to include the products of the Town waters.” A compromise was effected giving the management of the waters and products of the waters to the Trustees of the freeholders and commonalty, by Act of 1818 and by an Act of incorporation, in 1831. All remaining undivided lands were sold in 1882. The Trustees of the Proprietors all resigned in 1890 with the intention of final dissolution of the body. To confirm land titles, however, a board was re-elected on September 7, 1912.

Of course in the discussion of “beach”, in this article, the beach is regarded as decisions at other points define to be “the space uncovered at low tide between high and low water mark,” but people on Long Island do not think or speak of such underwater (at high tide) land as beach in entirety. They call the sand banks at seaside “beach banks,” and they call the white strip of sand between banks and the surf (only covered by water at times of tidal and storm waves) “the Beach.”

The author of “Crown Grants,” writes: “The right of the public to move along the shore of navigable waters is based upon an absolute commercial necessity, which in the past could only be exercised by the public when and where that commercial necessity existed. The public could exercise the right on Crown lands below high water mark, but only so as not to interfere with or trespass on the rights of the true owner of the uplands above that mark. It was impracticable for the public to exercise such right of travel below low water mark. It was, however, by Royal clemency and favor that that the public use of such Crown land was permitted and not by the inherent right of the people thereto. The many Crown Grants of Ferry privileges, in the Province of New York, and especially on the Hudson River show that the arbitrary exercise of Royal authority over shore fronts and beaches, gives exclusive rights by the Grants thereto excluding the public therefrom in utter disregard of the upland owners. These Grants covered in instances many miles of shore fronting many upland owners and in total disregard thereof. This exercise of authority by the Crown was without any confirmation by the Provincial Assembly, it being well understood and admitted that it was an indisputable prerogative of the Crown. The public had no rights of trespass against the Crown. The English Courts denied to the public the right of free passage along the Crown's shore front where commercial needs did not exist. Nothing could be erected upon this strip of land, nor could any obstruction be placed upon it by the public.”

For the subject of this analysis the beach is considered as defined in Chap. 32 N. Y. Laws, Vol. 3, Page 154, in re South Beach, Suffolk Co.”; also, “Beach” as defined
(or used) in Chap. 42, N. Y. Laws, Vol. 1, Page 668, in re
“South Beach.”

Mr. Mershon, a scholarly and erudite authority on foreshores says: “Riparian rights are by statutes since the State of New York came into being. They are not retroactive, nor are they confiscations. They cannot over­ rider prior rights. Bench-made law defined beach as the land between high and low water. I should have said, restricts it thereto. The Courts tell us that such is the case.
However, the situation on Long Island, Nantucket and other localities form an exception that is outstanding, commanding and by proper emphasis, upon the presentation, will be distinguished by the Courts. It needs proper presentation.”
DOES PATENT GO TO LOW WATER MARK
IN SOUTHAMPTON?
ON OCEAN.

Does the Southampton Patent convey to low water mark, on the Ocean side? One of the Proprietor heirs and assigns treats the quotation that the Patent only conveys to high water mark of the ocean, made by the historian, as "another joke!"

But a very high authority on Crown Grants, Mr. Stephen L. Mershon, of N. Y. City, who also is a native-born Long Islander, and familiar with ocean-side conditions, and has written standard books upon similar subjects, says:

"The days immediately ahead are very portentous in relation to the rights and interests of Long Island people in their great proprietorship rights to the shores of the sea. Personally I have no landed interest on the Island; have no professional occupation that serves for fees, and never publish a book for commercial profit, but always spend far more thereon than any returns therefrom. A great expansive movement of tremendous force is on. Never in its history has Long Island and its inhabitants' property rights been subjected to keener investigation than now, and it is to be steadily increased. As the true foundations are now laid so will the future structure of legal safety be served. I have in mind the preparation and publication for gratuitous circulation a brochure on 'Colonial Laws the Foundation of Modern Title to Lands on Long Island.' If I should do this it would be to preserve what I deem to be most invaluable information disclosed from and by my exceedingly costly research of English, Federal, State and Private records, which straighten out what are glaringly shown to be mis-carriage of justice to great injury to state citizenship under great misapprehension of col-ADDITIONAL HISTORY AND LAW. On such a basic, and historically correct foundation, the towns and individuals could work out their own problems."

"1st. The State of New owns the complete title to every foot of land in the State which has not been granted, whether upland, land between or below the water marks; i. e. land not previously granted by the Crown or subsequently granted by the State. The State possesses the ultimate title to all lands, whether granted or not granted.

"2nd. The Federal Government had no land ceded to it by the 13 States at the time it was organized, and can only acquire title within the boundaries of those 13 States by purchase and by the consent of the sovereignty of the respective states.

"3rd. The English common law recognized the absolute right of the King in all conquered territory. Note this carefully: The basis of all titles in the Province of New York was in the King, by right of conquest, and not discovery. Land was the property of the Crown, and no law of the realm applied to the King. His grants of land in New York were absolute and not subject to outside regulation or dictation. There were no restrictions, except his recognition of the Indian title, which was not simply 'possessory' but also "as being derived to them from their ancestors."

"4th. All Sovereign grants were construed in favor of the Crown, excepting those containing the term, "especial grace," etc. In such instances they were construed in favor of the grantee. (See English Crown Grants, pages 186 and 187).

"5th. The Indian deeds and Crown grants to lands in Southampton speak for themselves. Get the foundation right, and the superstructure is easily erected.

"6th. The Indian tribes held the title in fee: the Crown held the ultimate title, that pertained to sovereignty, to all lands in the Province. No grant was ever made under the latter without a deed being acquired under the former, thereby making all grants complete when issued by the Crown. It should be remembered that the Indians were “wards of the Crown.”

“Why, then, should not the Indian deeds control the conveyances to the Hamptons?

“The Indian deed was an absolute conveyance. The Crown’s grant was conditional upon the payment of quit rents, for possession and use under the ultimate title. According to the then imperious law of military conquest, the King might have compelled tribute from the Indian tribes without any forfeiture of their lands. He was more diplomatic and just. When and as the Indian tribes sold and deeded their lands to English and other settlers, the King, as Lord Paramount of the conquered territory, and possessor of the title of sovereignty, prescribed the terms and conditions on which these new settlers could hold title to lands under his undisputed sovereignty and jurisdiction.”

AN ACT to restrain the feeding, burning the grass, and cutting the timber on certain beaches and islands therein mentioned.

Passed the 24th of April, 1784

Be it enacted by the People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of May next, no horses, neat cattle, sheep or

Passed the 22d of March, 1790

Whereas it has been represented to the legislature by Humphry Avery and others, proprietors of that part of South Beach in Suffolk county lying between a place called and known by the name of Long Cove and a certain gut or inlet called and known by the name of Huntington West Gut that they are prevented from using or improving the said beach to any advantage by the act entitled "An act to restrain the feeding and burning the grass and cutting the timber on certain beaches and islands therein mentioned" passed the 24th day of April one thousand seven hundred and eighty four. Therefore, Be it enacted by the people of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the proprietors of the said beach above described, to pasture and otherwise use and improve the same in such manner, and to such purposes, as they might have done, had the above mentioned act never been passed.

Provided always that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prevent or defeat the operation of the above mentioned act, in any other part of the beaches or islands therein described.

BEACH.

Laws of New York, Chap. 19, Beach.

(Abstract). AN ACT to divide the town of Water­vliet and the town of Cocksakie each into towns and for altering the limits of the town of Brookhaven. Be it en­acted, etc., etc.

Be is further enacted . . . “That all the beach and bay within the present limits of the town of Islip which is in­cluded in the patent of Brookhaven shall be and is hereby declared to be a part of the town of Brookhaven, anything in the before mentioned Act to the contrary notwith­standing.”

Stephen L. Mershon, authority per excellence on Crown grants, notes: “If ‘beach’ is limited to the space between high and low water mark on Long Island then the Brookhaven grant must extend to low water mark of the ocean and is included in the patent of Brookhaven, as stated by the Legislature. On the other hand if the grant does stop at high water then the beach which is in­cluded must be the stretch of white sand between high water mark and the dunes? The court’s conclusions are caught on one or the other horn of the Legislature’s de­liverance.”

At this is published a bill has bee n introduced in the Legislature to permit the Shinnecock Indians to lease Reservation lands for a term of more than three years and a maximum of twenty-five years. The land at water's edge of Shinnecock Bay is wanted for an aviation field and port.
TOWN'S VICTORY IN OCEAN BOULEVARD SUIT.

Supreme Court Justice Dunne decided in February, 1927, the taxpayers' suit of enjoinment brought to restrain the Southampton Town Board from issuing bonds, ($250,000), the town's share, for construction of a beach road, or shore boulevard, at the long stretch of ocean beach, known as South Beach, opposite Hampton Bays and Shinnecock, in favor of the town.

Justice Dunne's decision is:

"Upon all the evidence adduced upon the trial of this action, it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendants herein have acted properly and prudently in their endeavors to secure the construction of the concrete highway on the South Beach of Southampton. I therefore give judgment to the defendants."

The injunction proceeding was brought in the name of Clifford J. Foster, a taxpayer of Sagaponack. The action enjoined the Town Board of Southampton from issuing bonds to pay the town's one-half cost of the proposed concrete boulevard from Southampton to Quogue, along the old beach road just north of the dunes.

In 1861, Trustees of Proprietors sold Shinnecock Hills; in 1882, they sold all undivided proprietors' land, or "commonage," within the township. To perfect title, there being some doubt as to validity, the Town Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty of the Town of Southampton made an exchange of quit-claim deeds with purchasers of lands disposed of by Proprietor Owners. The Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty ceded right, title and interest of the town to vast tracts sold by the Proprietors; they retained rights of way of beach roads at South Beach, also lateral north and south road rights, 50 feet in width, two to the mile, from Shinnecock Bay to the ocean; also rights of way along north beach of Shinnecock Bay from Reservation to Canal, and at south shore of Peconic Bay from Sebonac to Cold Spring, a reservation of 50 feet along the north shore of Shinnecock Bay, and a reservation of 75 feet along the south shore of the Peconic Bay.

The first of these exchange deeds were passed about 1891-92, when George G. White was president of the Board of Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty. He reported the compromise to town meeting, and his action was approved.

Subsequent deeds to beach rights were obtained by Trustees of the Freeholders from the Posts and from grantees who bought lands from the men who purchased undivided lands from Proprietor Trustees, at the blanket sales, in private, made in 1882.

Not so many years ago the executive and fiduciary officials of the town of Southampton were composed of the Supervisor, Clerk and Justices; and the Justices acted as a Board of Auditors, and compelled a bond from the Supervisor. Practically the same officials now serve as the Town Board of Southampton. They have taken over many of the tasks of local government formerly delegated to Town Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty. The Patent Board of Twelve Trustees, representing the Freholders, has been succeeded by a Board of Five Trustees, elected biennially in November, at times of general elections, instead of annually at a mass town meeting held in April, at Southampton village.

The Board of Five Trustees (as the legal Board of Trustees, declared by Supreme Court Justice Putnam, in 1912) at the time the town and private individuals discussed the feasibility of constructing a concrete shore boulevard in conjunction, then conveyed as a Board of Town Trustees, and as individuals, each and every, and severally all conveyed the right, title and interest that they "have or might have" in beach reservation at South Beach, to the Town Board of Southampton.
ADDENDUM

Before any understanding or tentative agreement was reached by the town officials and the representative of the corporation owning South Beach, the Town Board had placed itself in a position to do business. The subject of improved road, and the amount of its cost, were quite generally discussed, and advertised in newspapers of the town. There was ample publicity, and open covenants, before a vote was taken on a proposition to bond to pay the town's part of construction of the proposed road. The electors of the town, entitled to vote upon a money appropriation, favored the proposition by a preponderant majority. The taxpayers' suit which enjoined the Town Board from issuing bonds and carrying out the will and determination of the majority, came as a surprise. The prevailing consensus of opinion has been that the suit was not brought to save the town from possible expensive litigation, but rather for the purpose of gratifying the wishes of owners of estates along the line of survey of the proposed shore boulevard, who desired the privacy of their property uninterferred with.

Whether the action will be carried to the higher courts is not known at the time this is written (March, 1927). The opponents of the bond issue have the privilege of appealing to the higher court. The decision of Justice Dunne was anticipated by the Town. Two decisions favorable to the Town, relative to temporary and permanent injunctions, augur that if an appeal is taken, the position of the Town Board is defendable and a reversal of Judge Dunne's decision would be, on all evidence so far presented, unprecedented.

The injunction was vacated; but the town rescinded its vote to bond for the road. A dirt road was built by the Phipps' Company, developers of the beach. It cost the town nothing.

VERY ANCIENT DOCUMENTS.

In the summer of 1917 a small package containing some very ancient documents connected with the history of Southampton town was discovered and placed in the Southampton Town Clerk's office. Included were papers with original autographs of Lion Gardiner, and his son, David; Thomas Osborn and Jeremiah Conklin, of East Hampton. Also fine autographs of Capt. Thomas Topping and his son, John Topping and others. There was also a fine specimen of hand writing of John Cooper, the first Southampton ancestor of the Cooper family, and said to be the only specimen of his handwriting known to exist.

(Note.—A specimen of Thomas Cooper's writing may be seen in Book V, Southampton town records, at illustrated fac-simile, between pages 18 and 19.—Ed.)

LETTER WRITTEN IN 1650.

The records show that North Sea was "planted" in 1650. The settlement was an offshoot of Old Town, or the first Southampton plantation. John Ogden and Thomas Topping were among the founders, and Capt. John Scott there resided. Ogden formed a company and obtained a grant from the major part of the town that his company should have Jefferies Neck and Cow Neck. North Sea had a somewhat different form of government than Old Town. There was a tavern at North Sea, a warehouse, and Indian fort; there was a Custom House. Hundreds of barrels of whale oil and many hundredweight of baled whale bone have been shipped from the Landing at North Sea.

That Gov. John Winthrop once visited North Sea and Southampton town is conclusively proved by a very old letter still preserved. It was written by Josiah Stan­borough, of Southampton settlement, to the "Honrd Sir" in April, 1650. It is reproduced here to show the quaint phrasing and spelling of the time:

“To the whorll his much honrd friend, Mr. Winthrope at his house at Pequot theise present:

“Honrd Sr,—My service and saluation prfixed the God of all my mercies recom pense yor goodness & kindnes extended to strangers a thousandfold into yor bosom; for ye experience I have had of yor love to me in this sorte, assureth me of your pfection in this grace of Christ, who will pfect His whole worke in all his servants; & if God shall againe brin ge yo to Southampton, I should account it an honor to me to see you under my rofe an bles God for such an opunity to showe myselfe thangfull to you for what I am engaged. Sr, I bless God I came well home in two days from Pequot, & I recn all ye psons in good health, & was restored to them before expected at this season: & there was nothing of moment missing to me of all that God hath given me, save that 3 days before I came home 3 foolish boys burnt me 7 loads of hay & 8 of ye Indian wigwams nigh unto it. I hope my cattell will live without it, & I so much the lees ingage to Southampton for another yeare. I desire to hear how Pequot & Will Chesbrow psed an optunity serveth. We have no newes heare being out of ye comon roade (or pticular is); Southampton will be strait (crowded) for Mr. Fordham's friends. East Hampton is full, & Mr. Ogden begins a towne on or north side for tradein; & the things that is sad on my spirite is that I cannot see a way to bringe to great blessings to the place of my rest (to say) yself & Mr. Fordham & then all other questions were answered. But that I be not farther tedious give me leave to prsent my kinde respects and my (torn) Mrts. Winthrop to Mrts. Lake; and when Mr. Brewster come to you, to him, & I rest.

Your Wsps in any service,

JOSIAH STANBOROUGH.”
"Southampton 4th April, 1650."

Josiah Stanborough was one of the first comers from Lynn, Mass. Among those who came with him were Jonas Wood, Capt. Thomas Topping, and John Ogden, and when the latter laid out "his towne" he called it "Fever-sham."

OCEAN SIDE PARKS NEEDED.

Southampton town in 1927 very much needs to reserve by purchase or deed of gift ocean front park land. The time is not far remote when every foot of ocean beach in the town, privately owned, may be posted against trespass; the present generation may live to see fences extending from the dunes to highwater mark at ocean side. The trend of the times is that way.

FIFTY YEARS OF TOWN AFFAIRS.

The period treated by this published record includes entries made by the various Town Clerk's between the years 1874 and 1925 inclusive. The transcripts have been prepared for the printer where the fourth volume of published records terminates. Volumes five and six of published records comprise ancient loose documents and abstracts of the Red Book of Deeds; abstracts of Vol. II of Deeds, with additional Unrecorded Deeds. Vol. V was published in 1910, when William J. Post was Town Clerk; Vol. VI was published in 1914, when James A. Early was Town Clerk. Each of these volumes was prepared and edited by William S. Pelletreau, and Vol. VI has a comprehensive index and names of localities.

When E. H. Foster was Town Clerk of Southampton, in 1874, a resolution then adopted authorized the publication of the ancient records of the town, going way back to the first year of settlement of the town in 1640. The manuscripts were prepared under the supervision of William S. Pelletreau, Esq., a former Town Clerk. John H. Hunt, of Sag Harbor, was publisher. Both men are now dead. Mr. Pelletreau contributed a most valuable work to posterity. It is the desire of the Southampton Town Board now to continue publication of town records and bring them up to the present time and to have them so arranged in book form as to be readily convenient for consultation.

Many changes in manner of administrating the affairs of Southampton town have been introduced in the last half century. Southampton, so the early records inform, was first allotted "by Proprietors" who held fee of the land in proportion to the amount paid in by each individual toward the Town Purchase. By 1875 most of the "commonage" or undivided lands owned as tenants in common by heirs and assigns of original purchasers, or "Proprietors" had been allotted or sold. Still the "Proprietors" did have certain interests in township area lands, in which the freeholders and commonalty of the town (townsmen but not owners of commonage) did not share. Rights of proprietors and townsmen had clashed in 1816. This resulted in arbitration and a legislative enactment of 1818 defining what the proprietors owned, and what privileges belonged to the town, or freeholders as distinguished from the proprietor owners.

A Board of Trustees, acting under Colonial Patent, and elected each year for about 140 years had served in a dual capacity as trustees of the town and trustees of the proprietors. Then, after 1818, the proprietors' trustees, by legislative authority, functioned as a separate corporate body. By this act of 1818, (prepared after joint conference of Proprietors' committeemen and Town Committtmen), the proprietors' trustees were held to be custodians of "the undivided lands, meadows and mill streams." The Town was granted the power to make ordinances regulating the waters (other than the mill streams), "the fisheries, the seaweed, or any other productions of the waters,” and it was provided that such waters and productions of the waters (on the shores of common land) should be managed by the Trustees of the Freeholders, and not by the Trustees of the Proprietors. And these rights remain to Southampton town today.

Unfortunately, at the time, 1818, when ambiguity had been discovered in the meaning of clauses of the Dongan Patent, the Legislature and the arbitrators did not clearly define ownership of the lands beneath the waters of the town. It was not plainly expressed, and this omission led, 64 years later, to contention and long drawn out and expensive litigation.

The regulation and disposal of “commonage” practically came to a close years since. But in 1882, “all undivided common lands” of the proprietors’ heirs and assigns were disposed of at private sale, and a number of deeds were then given by the Trustees of the undivided lands. Such lands or “rights” sold were considered of little value. Now, 45 years, thereafter they are of inestimable worth. Before this, all of Shinnecock Hills had been sold by Proprietor Trustees for less than $2 an acre. There were 3,200 acres in the tract. The 1882 private sale of “undivided lands” comprised:

The Quogue Purchase, quit-claimed to Henry W. Maxwell for $500. Described to be Shinnecock Bay west of Quogue Point, the creeks and lands covered by water; Great South Bay within the same purchase; the shore of Peconic Bay from Canoe Place to Red Creek and all other undivided lands in the Quogue Purchase.

The Topping Purchase conveyed to Henry W. Maxwell: That portion of the Great South Bay, its creeks and lands covered by water in said purchase, bounded on the west by the Brookhaven line from Beaver Dam to Riverhead.
The Town Purchase, conveyed to Henry W. Maxwell for $500. All undivided lands west of Halsey’s Neck Lane and a line North to west end of Holmes Hill, being a portion of Shinnecock Bay east of Pon Quogue Point, and creeks; also Cold Spring Bay; also Bull Head Bay; also Old Fort Pond and Middle Pond; also Canoe Place Pond within limits of Town Purchase.

Mecox Bay to R. Esterbrook, jr., W. H. H. Rogers and Theron O. Worth for $2,000: All lands under water of Mecox Bay and of the creeks of said bay as the same are covered at ordinary low water.

Red Creek Pond, to William S. Pelletreau for a certain sum of money not mentioned; Said Pond in the Quogue Purchase with the inlet connecting it with the bay and one rod of beach on each side of inlet.

Foot-of-Beach, to Orlando Hand for $25: A tract of land between Noyac and Sag Harbor subject to any legal highway across, known as “Foot-of-Beach.”

Long and Shore Beaches to Rufus Sayre for $550: All undivided lands, meadows, marshes, etc., bounded on the east by the town of East Hampton, south by the ocean, west by Halsey’s Neck Lane and a line running Northerly toward the west end of Holmes Hill till it strikes the line of the North Sea Division and Peconic Bay, excepting all burying grounds, and cemeteries within said limits, also excepting bottom of Mecox Bay and the “Foot of the Beach.” The conveyance intended to embrace among other lands that certain beach known as “Hog Neck Beach.”

In subsequent law suits the conveyance of lands beneath water was nullified. Other conveyances, for the most part, have not been assailed.

Some of the above purchasers of “undivided common lands” soon transferred to others.

The Trustees of the Proprietors then decided to wind up their business, and all resigned in 1890 with the intension of final dissolution of the body incorporate; "but it was found that it might possibly be convenient to continue the existence of the Board in connection with land titles; so, a Board was re-elected on September 7, 1912, consisting of six members. So far as known no regular meetings are held."

The town record of Liber D, as published, and the Record of Proceedings of the Southampton Town Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty, 1818-1927, to be published and already prepared for publication, treat of the many law suits that have arisen in the last fifty years; of the claims of rival Boards of Trustees; the famous Mecox Bay ejectment suit, won by the town; the Jessup Bridge case; the passing of the old time mass town meeting; the change to voting by election districts; the change to biennial town elections held in November instead of in April; and reduction of a Board of Town Trustees to the number five (5), by legislative enactment.

In connection with the somewhat vague understanding of Proprietor Trustees management and custody of certain Proprietor Owners' interests, and the Town Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty management of town prerogatives, it is opined by some (and the opinion appears to have some basis of merit) that one of the main items of conveyances made by the Proprietor Trustees, in 1882, was "the fee of all highways, or such highways as were laid out in common ownership, and not opened as record highways laid out on private land." The first laid out highways or commons were very wide, often ten and twelve rods in width, and they were used by Proprietors, their heirs and assigns for passing and repassing, sometimes for pasture, and only owners of "commonage" could permit geese to feed freely in the "street." The fee of ownership of the roadbed applies to many highways in the town, it is asserted by those who have made a close study of the formation and character and plan of town government in earliest years. By them it is contended that ownership of ancient commons or highways if ever abandoned then the ownership of the land would revert to the heirs or assigns of the 1882 purchasers and not to the owners of abutting property.

Town records of Southampton for the last half century as published contain opinions given by such eminent counsel as James R. Carter, Henry P. Hedges, Thomas Young, Everett A. Carpenter, Timothy M. Griffing, and others; also the judicial opinions in court actions given by Justices Cullen, Brainard, Brown, Gaynor and their colleagues. Incorporated in the book are decisions and judgments of the highest court dignitaries, replete with sage reasoning and sustained by ancient patents as well as by more modern constitutional statutes.

Sag Harbor, N. Y. Historian.

A CENTENNIAL ADDRESS.

The centennial celebration of founding of a Presbyterian parish at Sag Harbor in Southampton town, was observed June 21 and 22, 1868.

A historical sermon was preached by the Rev. William G. Barnes; a historical address was delivered by Hon. W. H. Gleason. They are of so much interest some of the condensed facts are reproduced here:

The first church was built in 1767. It was occupied as a place of worship in 1768. It stood corner Church and Sage streets. It went by the name of the “Barn Church,” and received this name from its peculiarly plain and uncouth appearance on top of the highest eminence in Sag Harbor village. A stranger coming into the village inquired what building that was—pointing to the Church. A resident replied: “God’s House.” The reply was it looks more like "God's Old Barn." The church was at first Presbyterian, afterward Congregational, again Presbyterian. The patriots who fled to Connecticut during the Revolution on their return adopted the Congregational form, but the church returned to the Presbyterian form in 1791. The ministers and pastors of the church were named as follows:

The first whose name is known, Rev. John Taylor, 1789. Next, Rev. Jas. Richards, D. D., 1794-95; Rev. Daniel Hall, first pastor, ordained 1797, resigned 1806. Then Rev. N. S. Prime, to 1809; Rev. Mr. Porter, and Rev. Mr. Gaylord, supply until 1812; Rev. John D. Gardiner, 1812-1832; Rev. Samuel King until his death, November, 1833; Rev. Mr. Pillsbury, 1834; Rev. James A. Copp, 1835-1851; Rev. Edward Hopper, June, 1852-May, 1863; Rev. John Lowrey, November, 1863-May, 1867; Rev. William G. Barnes, February, 1868.

In 1800 there were 15 church members; in 1835, 154; in 1849, 319; in 1861, 308; in 1867, 327; in 1868, 300.

The superintendents of the Sunday School had been up to 1868 in the order named: Deacon Job Hedges, Henry Thomas Dering, Marcus Osborn, Orin O. Wickham, William R. Post, Henry H. Huntting, Gilbert H. Cooper, John C. Smith and William H. Gleason.
Capt. George Tooker climbed the tall Presbyterian church steeple when the civil war broke out, assisted by Capt. David Vail, and fixed the Stars and Stripes to its very top, "a signal to the community and the ships passing by that the church stood with the Union."

The Presbyterian church spire is the tallest steeple in Suffolk county, built in 1844. It is 187 feet high, and topped by a weather vane. Of the church and steeple it has been written: "It is of nondescript type in the art of building. There is nothing like it, designed or yet discovered, on the face of the earth. It is unique and original. The facade of the church is of sombre Egyptian model; the tower preserves the beauty of Grecian outlines, and the steeple is a sort of a cross between a Chinese pagoda and Turkish minaret. It is not a composite, but a conglomerate in architecture. It has a history and marks an epoch. Its homely tomb-like front may well stand for the struggling pioneer days when practical effort marked the church's progress. The tall steeple from its foundation to its pinnacle marks the evolution of the town."

The church edifice built in 1843-44 cost $17,000; lot, $2,000; total, $19,000. Corner stone laid June, 1844. Dedicated May 16, 1844. The building and financial committee were: William R. Sleight, Nathan P. Howell, Henry H. Hunting, Luther D. Cook and Daniel Y. Bellows. Design by Maynard Lefevre, an architect, of New York. Builder, Richard J. Sheldon, of New York.

"As early as 1675-80 families settled at Sag and Mecox. North Sea became the port of Southampton. Three Mile Harbor and North West that of East Hampton, and Sag Harbor that of intervening villages (earliest record of vessel in harbor, 1747.) From the natural advantages the latter harbor offered, about 1760, it became the point of transport for this branch of the Island. The speaker (Mr. Gleason) proceeded to inquire into the early geography of Sag Harbor, and showed that it was by no means the level plain it now appears. The Otter Pond, so called because otters were taken there in large numbers in 1760, was separated from the Cove by a high ridge. A drain was dug in 1780 in order to run a tide mill where the bridge now stands. The whole male population assisted in the work and were repaid, says tradition, by a barrel of New England rum. The meadows to the north of Main street were much more extensive than now. The tide ebbed and flowed on Wentworth meadow. The site of Mrs. Benjamin Huntting's house (Masonic Temple) was a high hill; that of Mrs. Robert Douglas' (opposite the Misses French, Main street) a low swamp of some extent covered with brush. Turkey Hill commenced rising at what is now Scoy's corner (A. T. Brown's block). On the shore of the bay, to the north, it was 60 feet high. It sloped toward the meadow, and the houses on the east side of Main street were built into the side of the hill. On Madison street a hill arose as high as the Old Burying Ground. North of the present Episcopal Church (corner Church and Sage streets) was another swamp, the waters of which flowed into the bay down a ravine by Burke street. In the vicinity of Conkling's Point the shore was bolder than now, and there was owned there by Capt. Wm. J. Rysam, a ship yard, of which Capt. Elijah Prior had charge about 1800. Vessels were also built on West Water street. Gull Island was originally large and once said to be cultivated.

"The first road from East Hampton to Sag Harbor came down through Pine Swamp to the mouth of Northwest creek and along the shore to the landing opposite Turkey Hill, where probably stood the first house, near present residence of Henry R. White (corner Division and Bay streets).

"Sag Road, principally used, came along north of Long Pond, crossing what it now the turnpike near Lister's slaughter house, passing near present residence of Capt. Jesse Halsey, one of the oldest residences of the place, and thence to the Cove near entrance of the present drain, and thence along the water’s edge and present line of Glover street to Zachary’s Landing—afterwards Dering’s Cooperage. Here was the first landing so called from Zachary Sandford, father of the wife of Peter Hildreth, living in an old house on present site of Capt. George Tooker’s residence (corner Main and Glover streets south), and owning most of the land between that point and the water.

“The Bridge Hampton Road came down the present Brick-Kilns, struck across into Sag Road in front of the present house of Samuel T. Hildreth, (Daniel McLain’s). Esq. Nathan Fordham, grandfather of present N. Y. Fordham, gave the Brick-Kiln Road from Jesse Halsey’s corner and took the old one in exchange. Both the East Hampton and the Sagg Roads were changed somewhat at an early period, and Bridgehampton Road to run nearly on the present line of Main street. Union street at an early period ran from north of the old Burying Ground, north of the old School House, and through to Main street, near present residence of A. DeBevoise. The present residence of Jeffery Fordham fronted on Union street. Braddock Corey gave the present Union street. H. P. Dering, Esq., Postmaster and Collector of Port from 1790 to 1822, gave that part of Church street from Union to the Church Main street was more winding in olden times than at present. After the fire of 1817, the corner of Main and West Water streets was brought East 30 feet. The woods in 1800 came down to the old School House (corner Madison and Jefferson streets). Previous to 1737 there were but a few huts built in the sand under the brow of Turkey Hill. The first laying out of Sag Harbor was into fiftieths, drawn by lot by the inhabitants of Southampton town.

“In 1764, Esq. Nathan Fordham received a grant from the town to build a wharf at a point North of present North Haven Bridge. Mr. Fordham opened West Water street. He was a leading man in his day and owned large tracts of land in the village and vicinity, comprising Chatfield's Hill which was covered heavily with timber, and was cut off by the British during the Revolution. He, with nearly all the patriots, fled to Connecticut, during the Revolution. At the time of the Revolution there were but 20 houses in Sag Harbor, of which four are still left. There were three wind mills. The speaker then designated sites of the houses by a map of the village drawn upon a blackboard, also naming the occupants and owners, giving such reminiscences of them as had come to his knowledge.

"He next turned his attention to the facts in connection with the building of the new church. In November, 1816, a meeting was held in the Arsenal (the Arsenal was constructed in 1810 by the U. S.) to devise ways and means to erect a new edifice. Esq. L'Hommedieu presided, Augustus Sleight was secretary. A subscription was eventually started by Cornelius Sleight putting his name down for $300, followed by Augustus Sleight for $70, and others. The committee advertising for proposals were H. P. Derig, Cornelius Sleight, A. Partridge, Silas Howell, John P. Osborn, Samuel Huntting, Pardon T. Tabor. Mr. Sleight had the financial management of the work, and P. T. Tabor and Eliab Byram were the builders.

"On January 13, 1817, the Old Church was demolished. On Thursday, June 18, 1818, the New Church was dedicated; but, in the meantime, a calamity had visited the village. The great fire destroying the whole business portion of the place occurred on May 26th, 1817, commencing in a barn on West Water street contiguous to the thickest part of the settlement, and destroying twenty of the best houses and stores, and fifteen barns and other buildings with their contents.

"A delay in finishing the new church occurred, many articles which had been donated to the building having been destroyed by the fire, but in the summer of 1817, through the instrumentality of Capt. Gabriel Havens, Augustus Sleight and the Rev. J. D. Gardiner, some $3,000 were raised in New York. The church cost about $4,700, beside the material donated among which were the mahogany pew railings given by the Brick Church of New York which was then being renovated. In 1843 the present edifice of the Presbyterian Church was built at a cost of $19,000. The Old Church had no steeple or bell, the congregation being called together by the beat of the drum.

"In 1788 the Eastern half of the Old School House was built, lot given by Braddock Corey. In 1795 the Western half was added. In 1799 there were in attendance about 60 pupils. In 1804 the New School House was built in the rear of Henry B. Havens' house (Church street back of DeCastro's). This had a bell and cupola. It was constructed by private enterprise, Major John Germain being a leading spirit. It was destroyed by fire January 7, 1834. Some years afterwards the school house now occupied by the Intermediate Department of the Union School was built. In 1845 the Academy through the exertions of the Rev. J. A. Copp was organized. The Academy building was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1864. In 1833 during the ministry of the Rev. Mr. King the Conference Room opposite the Church was built (old Village Hall, corner Church and Sage streets.) It was subsequently bought by Mr. C. T. Dering, presented to the Sons of Temperance, afterwards bought by the corporation, enlarged and is now owned by the village. The first parsonage was built for the Rev. Daniel Hall in 1797. It is the house now occupied by H. L. Topping (corner Madison and Sage streets north side). A company in 1832 built the house now occupied by David Stuart, for a parsonage. It was occupied by Mr. King, and afterwards by Mr. Pillsbury, then sold to Capt. George Howell. The house of S. L. Gardiner, on Jefferson street, was purchased by a company for use of the Rev. Mr. Copp, and he occupied it until the present residence of C. N. Brown on Suffolk street was erected for his use. Mr. Hopper also occupied this. The efforts of the Ladies' Parsonage Association is of recent date. Of the salaries of the ministers of the parish: the Rev. Mr. Hall received $250 and the use of the parsonage; the Rev. Mr. Gardiner $450 and the use of the parsonage; the Rev. Mr. King $700 and rent; the Rev. Mr. Pillsbury $850 and rent; the Rev. Mr. Copp, $1,000; the Rev. Mr. Lowrey, $1,200.

"Before 1800, Phineas Duvall, father of Phineas and Caleb Duvall, was Choirister; after him Mr. French, Mr. Dimon, father of N. H. Dimon, Pardon T. Tabor, Albert Bump, Hezekiah Jennings who first introduced the bass viol, Joseph P. Lamb, Edwin Coe, Choirister and Sexton, etc.

"The first person who died in Sag Harbor is said by tradition to have been buried under Sleight's Hill, near where the old vault of the Sleights and Mulford's formerly stood. Before the Revolution the ground extending from the Old Church down to Madison street, was used as a burying ground, and so continued until 1770. What is now the Old Burying Ground was opened in 1767, being given for the purpose by Capt. David Hand. The first burial there is said to have been an infant brother of Mrs. Abby Price, and son of James Howell who died June 4th, 1767, and the mother is said to have cried because her babe was buried 'all alone in the woods.'

"The British occupied this hill with a small fortification during the Revolution. The line of the fort can still be faintly traced. The grandfather of Stephen L. Hedges, of East Hampton, remembered being impressed with a yoke of oxen, to aid in constructing this fort. The British officers were quartered at James Howell's house, which stood where Tinker’s block now does (site of American Hotel), and were there taken prisoners by Meigs’ expedition in 1777.

“The first mention of Sag Harbor Parish in the Town Records is under the date of April 2nd, 1793, at which time the meadows on Hog Neck Beach (south of Little Hog Neck on Long Neck Beach) and also the lot on part of which Huntting’s brick building now stands (Bliss Park) were granted by Town Trustees to the Parish of Sag Harbor as a Parsonage for the support of the gospel. The meadows used to be rented yearly at the Parish Meeting.

“The Female Benevolent Society is one of the institutions of the village being founded in 1816 by Mrs. Abigail, wife of Luther Hildreth, and grandmother of present S. T. Hildreth, aided by her daughter Cornelia and others. The situation of the public stocks were on the north side of the old church near the present vestry room, and the old whipping post near the present site of the Liberty Pole at the foot of Main street. The stocks were thrown into the meadow one dark night before the beginning of the present century. A similar fate was related as happening to an old market, one of the dilapidated institutions of the village.”

Among the interesting relics exhibited and referred to on the occasion of this Centennial, were a map of the village during the Revolution; a music book used by the choir before 1800, printed by David Frothingham in this village 1777 (?) Also a book of hymns selected by the Rev. Mr. Prime, and printed in Sag Harbor by Alden Spooner in 1809; also a water-color sketch of the village and cove, painted in 1803 by Miss Elizabeth Sleight, sister of Cornelius Sleight, taken from the east side of the wharf, showing the wharf, the buildings on the west side, Hog Neck, Little Hog Neck, Brush Neck and the Narrows in the distance, and the sloop Lively, Capt. Parker, and Ben Butler, the old negro cartman, driving Duvall, the inn-keeper's wagon. It is undoubtedly the only authentic sketch of the village, at an early day, in existence (presented to Jermain Library); an original subscription paper made in 1774 to raise money for the support of the Rev. James Richards; a volume presented to the Rev. Daniel Hall in 1793 by the Rev. Dr. Buell; the last sermon preached by the Rev. Mr. Hall in 1806, MSS.

The exercises at this Centennial observation in the evening consisted of extempore, and short congratulatory addresses. John Sherry, Esq., presided, and the speakers were Alden J. Spooner, Esq., of Brooklyn; Judge H. P. Hedges, the Rev. Dr. Strickland, the Rev. J. W. Barnhart, the Rev. F. E. Shearer, the Rev. W. G. Barnes, and Mr. Sherry.

"The music rendered on both Sunday and Monday by the choir, under the direction of Dr. E. G. Howard, was very fine, and highly creditable to the artistic taste and acquirements of the singers."

IN THE CIVIL WAR.

A brief recital of part taken by Southampton town in the civil war is found in town records. The town really did so much in filling its quotas, voting all moneys required, and sending the flower of its manhood to the battle line, something more than a record statement should be available for consultation by future generations.

The text under this head will of necessity be epitomized.

In Munsell's History of Long Island, published in 1882, is a complete list of Southampton soldiers who served in the civil war on the Union side.
The 71st N. Y. Vols. contained in its ranks many Southampton young men.

Southampton town contributed more than 100 men who served in the revenue service.

A company of volunteers for the 16th Regt. formed in Bridgehampton.

Many recruits of the town signed articles to join the Marine Artillery in September, 1861.

In October, 1861, twenty-five young men had enlisted for Gun Boat service.

Nov. 22, 1861, many young men had enlisted under Lieut. Peter French for Col. Edwin Rose's 81st N. Y. Vols.

December, 1861, a number of old whaling vessels were purchased by Government at Sag Harbor, manned with crews, and sailed to Southern harbors where they were sunk to blockade channels. They were known as the "Stone Fleet." Among the whale ships thus used were: the Emerald, the Timor and the Noble.

Lieut. Peter French was presented with a sword and belt March, 6, 1862.

Col. Edwin Rose, 81st N. Y. Vols., was is very bad health in summer of 1862. At the time the war broke out he was Supervisor of Southampton town, and resigned to accept military duties. He died in service.

Southampton town had a Home Guard in 1863. It was organized, following announcement of the draft and rioting in New York City.
WORLD WAR.

In the same book, page 590-613 inclusive, is told the part Southampton took in the World War.

The Sag Harbor World War record has not been published. It was compiled by Miss Emma Davis, of Sag Harbor, and in manuscript, is in her keeping.

The Town of Southampton, during the World War, adopted a resolution in July, 1917, to appropriate $5,000 to equip Home Defense Companies of Southampton town.
