The Eighth
Volume of Records of the Town of Southampton

1893--1927
The mission of the Historic Division of the Town Clerk's Office is to preserve and protect the Town of Southampton's historic holdings for generations to come. The few copies that we have of our original editions of the Record Books of the Town of Southampton are now in need of preservation.

In addition to preserving our Town's record books, our goal is to provide improved access to those people that are interested in exploring the wonderful history of the Town of Southampton. Technological developments have allowed us to scan the originals in order to reprint each volume and also to post them on our website offering new search capabilities that have not been available in the past.

Respectfully yours,

Sundy A. Schermeyer, Town Clerk

PREFACE

The Liber A, Southampton Town, includes the Highway Records, etc., from *1893 to 1927 inclusive, transcribed under direction of the Town Board, and a committee appointed to reproduce such Records.

The whole is published at the expense of the town and by its authority, and is official. Great care has been exercised in comparing all the metes and bounds with the record in the Liber; also in comparing the printed proof sheets with the Liber. Some slight inaccuracies may and do appear in spelling, where the text has been changed to make the record more plain, but no compass course or figure has been changed. It is correct and covers such entries in whole or in abstract.

EDWARD P. WHITE, Town Clerk Committee.

FOREWORD

The Liber A, Southampton Town Records, contains releases, dedications and condemnation of lands and records of highways for years 1893 and 1927 inclusive. Great care has been exercised in making the transcripts and abstracts and all copy for the printer has been compared with the original record; the printer's proofs have also been painstakingly compared word for word, letter for letter, and figure for figure, with the original text. If error has crept in, it has not been for want of supervision and comparison where surveyors' metes and bounds are reproduced.

The highways recorded are in all parts of Southampton Town. Among some of the larger surveys and record roads are Flanders highway, highways on Shinnecock Hills, North Sea and Towed roads, Quogue Beach, Long and Short Beaches leading to North Haven, Riverhead—Quogue road, Shinnecock Bay to Peconic Bay, St. Andrew's road, South Beach, Tuckahoe road, etc.

Some woodland roads, two rods wide, declared to be record highways from long usage, by the Superintendent of Highways, are: Brook road, Haines' path, Merchant's path, Old Farm road, Sprig Tree path, Toll Gate road, etc.
INTRODUCTORY

The Liber A, of Southampton Town, records the highways laid out, surveyed and entered as record roads during years 1893–1927 inclusive. It contains a listing of dedications of land for highway purposes, releases, condemnations, award of damages by commissioners. A great part of the Liber A, has been transcribed in whole; where abstracts are given, an effort has been made to include all information of value, leaving out only such paragraphs as would be repetitions and legalistic terms well understood in the form of record entry.

When Southampton was first settled, in June, 1640, of course, there were no highways. Such means of passing and repassing were trails used by the Indians. The town lands had been purchased by Proprietors. They at first set aside “commons.” These were very wide highways, as we understand the means of passing today, and they were used for two purposes, to pass and to pasture; passing highways were also provided, and are quite different from highways and while providing means of ingress to wood lots, meadow lots and beaches and egress therefrom, were distinctive from the individual rights of way that often are incorporated in conveyances of our time.
The purchasers of the Town, i.e., the Proprietors, not only owned all the lands within the limits of the Town Purchase. They owned the highways. This is plainly indicated in Town Records. There are many instances where highways have been sold outright, closed, leased, etc., and provision was made for regulation of the cattle, sheep, horses, hogs and geese that went upon the highways. The avails from pasturing animals on the highways went to the Proprietor land owners and not, until later years, to the town. It should be borne in mind that Southampton at first had 40 Proprietors; the number was increased to 51—the highest number. The heirs and assigns of the 51 of course grew in number and, as the years went by, and the town common lands were divided, there was an increase of those who held “right” in the common, or undivided lands, and a decrease in the area of the lands remaining to be divided. Where lands were allotted and where highways were laid out through allotted lands, such highways are in a separate class from the highways which had been, or were to be laid out by the Proprietors, as tenants in common, through the common lands owned by the Proprietors associated, and who were managed by the Trustees of the Proprietors chosen at town meeting. Town affairs were also managed by these Town Trustees who acted for the town, or freeholders and commonalty, so the duties of the Trustees were dual duties. It was quite well understood that a freeholder of lands he had purchased from the Proprietors, or from an allottee, owned no right in the undivided common land and had no right to pasture the highways, unless he had bought such a “right” when taking up his “freehold.” A freeholder could use the highways for passing. But a freeholder, unless possessed of Proprietor “right,” did not share in the avails of the pasturing of highways, neither did he have right to the products of the waters, within the town, oysters, clams, fish.
for such rights the Proprietors asserted. The Proprietors leased the highways, they leased the fisheries, they granted, sold and leased the mill streams, under certain reservations. There was nothing in the town, other than lands they had allotted among themselves, or sold as Proprietors, or as individuals (after taking up their allotment of lands), to freeholders, but what was owned by the Proprietors. The Town Records abound with instances to sustain this belief. This condition continued until 1818, when other regulations of lands and waters and beaches were made by the State Legislature.

The first regular division of land recorded is called the "Sagaponack division." It was made in 1653. It was "divided and disposed into 41 one hundred and 50£ lots."

In 1655, January 25, the General Court ordered: "That no inhabitant within the bounds of this town shall sell his house and land or any part thereof unto any person yt is a forrainer, at any time hence forth except the person bee such as the town do like of."

In 1657, at town meeting, "there were chosen five men to lay out the most convenient ways to certain lands. The ways laid out to be for perpetuity." This was done to settle a controversy.

In first volume of Town Records, (1640—1659), the "plains" are mentioned as "ways of passing," and also highways of various widths, as well as "cart tracks."

In 1659, October 6, the Record informs, to cite but one instance, that "it was granted to Mr. Edward Jones to have 6 acres of ground at the end of Thomas Cooper's home lot, only a highway six poles betwixt to bee layd out by those the towne shall appoint."
Divisions of common land were made in 1676, 1677, 1679, 1680, 1687, 1712, 1738, 1745, 1763.

The first division of land in the western part of the town, (west of Canoe Place) was made in 1673. Followed divisions in 1683, 1686, 1712, 1738, 1763 and the last division (in the Quogue Purchase) was laid out in 1782.

In these land divisions, provisions were made for highways, and in many instances they are very wide highways, and common cart ways.

Commissioners were appointed for laying out highways and where highways are designated they are specified as “poles wide” often from 4 to 16 poles in width.

These highways were “staked out,” in later years surveyed and marked by red sand stones, and in more modern years monumented with concrete posts.

There is no doubt whatever that the Trustees had the right to sell highways. One or two instances will suffice to demonstrate this:

1750, November—“The Trustees of Southampton did agree with Daniel More (Moore), that he should take up some Land in the Meeting House lane.” (This land was on the west side of Sagg Pond, where the first church at Bridgehampton stood.”—Ed.)

(Not Dated).—Whereas a great part of Hog Neck has fallen into the hands of Mr. Jonathan Havens, and by reason of many highways being laid out between lots, whereby great difficulty accrues. Constant Havens desires the town to sell him the said highways, he hereby obliging himself to keep and maintain good and sufficient highways for traveling through the said Neck. The Proprietors have taken the matter under consideration, and they have impowered Abram Halsey, Stephen Herrick and Josiah Pierson to go down and view the same and agree with him, and sell him the same as they judge fitting."

(Hog Neck, or North Haven, as now called, was purchased from Shelter Island Indians in 1665; it was allotted in 1680. Jonathan Havens was born Feb. 2, 1681, died Aug. 5, 1748. His son, Constant Havens, was born in 1713, died Jan. 3, 1761.)

1666.—"If evr ye towne give up the highway then John Cooper is to have that acre to his lot." (This provision is made because "John Cooper gave way yt Mr. Phillips should have an aere northward of ye widow Briggs home lot.")—Ed.

1765, March 5.—"The trustees of the town sell to John Mitchell 16 acres and 158 poles of land on Hog neck being the whole of a highway across said neck, 370 rods long, and 6 poles wide, and a part of another highway 83 poles long and 8 poles wide, and John Mitchell agrees for himself and heirs and assigns to keep good gates or bars across said roads and allow all people to pass the(y) shall require."

To get a proper understanding of just what is meant by a "passing highway," seems at this late day, a difficult task. The settlers of the Hampton towns knew very well what it meant and what rights they had on passing highways. Cattle raising was at one time one of the principal industries of the Hamptons. Great numbers of cattle roamed all over the town unattended. It was necessary to keep them out of cultivated fields, wood lots and "closes," (fenced enclosures.) Passing highways led across large tracts of land. In East Hampton town records the term "passing highway" is elucidated:

Until a comparative recent time the Proprietors in Common there had the right to use town highways for two different purposes, passing and pasturing. The record shows that some of these passing highways were “twenty Rodes Broad from end to end, and so to remain forever.” Such lands could be fenced by the landowner but convenient gates or bars must be maintained by the land owners; and those who used the passing highway must close the gate or put up the bars after passing through. Fencing of these passing highways was permitted on condition that the land owner, or his heirs or assigns, whose lands such highways “passed through,” should not “any ways hinder or stopping any person in their passing and repassing on the said highway they may have occasion to go over, ride or cart on the said highway.” These passing highways were “laid out,” in some instances surveyed, and in all cases recorded, but as the term is now used “insufficiently described and defined.” The localities are given, from place to place, the width of the passing highways, and it is declared that “they shall remain forever,” or “until closed or altered” by the commissioners. A passing highway did not mean, necessarily, a right of way for an individual to enter to his or her property; it meant much more; all proprietors, when voted authority and permission, could pasture on such highways, and the public was privileged to pass and repass “upon their lawful occasions.” By some it is held, inasmuch as the town never “worked” or “highwayed” these passing roads, persons entered upon them at their own peril. If attacked by a vicious animal, (a bull) that the town would not be liable to damage. In a dispute over passing highways in East Hampton town, in 1807, the differences were settled by arbitration, and the arbitrators closed certain passing highways at Russell’s Neck, and opened new and more convenient passing highways. Such wood as was cut upon these new passing highways went to the land owner, but he was allowed no compensation for the new roads, other than the land of passing highways that had been "thrown out." The arbitrators state "that the owner had a right to pasture the same (new passing highways) 'in like manner as has been heretofore practiced with respect to passing highways in other parts of the town." The land owner was not only obliged to keep gates and bars, but he was restrained from fencing across the passing highways or any part of them, nor could he "obstruct the said roads by plowing or otherwise." The foregoing is noted at considerable length because many persons do not understand what is meant by a "passing highway," or that they may go upon a passing highway without committing any act of trespass. Often times the passing highways were little better than trails and rough roadways through woods, grazing lands, meadows and beaches."

Did the Proprietor Trustees when the common and undivided lands of the town of Southampton were all sold in 1882, dispose of the fee of the originally laid out highways? That is to say the highways of unusual width laid out through common lands, in contradistinction to highways laid out through lands by grantees to whom allotments had been made? Some opine in the case of making highways narrower or closing such originally common highways that the lands would revert to purchasers of town common lands of 1882. That is a matter to be settled by the courts and not by the historian. Early in the last century the Proprietors asserted their claim not only to the reversionary interest in the highways, but the right to sell certain portions of very wide highways. The Proprietors granted a right to place a windmill in the highway at Sagg road, near the Elisha O. Hedges house. The Supreme Court ordered that the mill be removed.

In the Liber A, will be found record of two (2) rod highways such as the "Paths" of olden times. The paths were much more than passing highways or trails. Under this heading comes the "Merchant's Path" from Sagaponack to Northwest, the "Haines' Path," the "Sprig Tree Path," and others. They are very ancient and have been traveled for generations. Quite recently by order of the Commissioner of Highways, these paths, and some other two (2) rod roads have been surveyed and monumented by the town and recorded as such in the Town Clerk's office.

The Liber A, is one of the most valuable records of the town. In most instances where highways are described a map or survey of the land included in the highway has been filed, and is among the many papers at the Town Hall.

A very good work has been done in surveying and monumenting, and taking title to the highways on Shinnecock Hills and vicinity. This work goes forward in 1927.

Sabin, and not within the bounds of the new highway as described in the Release dated the 23rd day of January, 1922, above referred to, upon the ground that a new highway has been granted which has definite boundaries and can be made a matter of record, and that under the circumstances the old highway has no further use, and must necessarily be abandoned, and that under all the circumstances it should be discontinued.

Page 447. (Abstract). Charles W. Payne, being duly sworn deposes and says: That he was born on what is known as North Haven, in Town of Southampton, etc., on February 10th, 1835; that he was a resident of North Haven for twenty years, and has ever since resided at Sag Harbor; that he is well acquainted with the beach known as Long and Short Beach leading from Noyac to Hogg Neck, and that he has used said beach as a highway for the purpose of carting fish, wood and seaweed for a period of more than twenty years; that he has always considered and used said beach as a public highway and that it was so considered and used by the residents of North Haven during the period of his residence there, and ever since; that he knows of his own knowledge and has heard aged members of said community of North Haven state that before the building of the bridge in 1835 said beach was the only means said residents of North Haven had for reaching the Village of Sag Harbor, or the mainland, where they went to sell the products of their labor and to purchase their supplies; that the entire beach was so used and that he is acquainted with the present character of said beach, and that it has not changed to any appreciable degree; that his grandfather was a life-long resident of North Haven in said Town and that deponent has heard him say that said beach was a public highway "both by use and by deed," and "had always been so as long as he could remember." Deponent further says that because of the high tides and ice in winter those travelling said highway were often forced to use the meadow, but only for such reason was the meadow traveled. Deponent further says that he learned from his grandfather that one Jonathan Havens (deponent's wife's great grandfather) was a resident of North Haven and a practicing physician at said place for many years and was at the time of his death in 1802, and that the said Jonathan Havens travelled horseback over said beach at least twice daily in making his professional visits to both Sag Harbor and Bridgehampton. Deponent further says that said highway is travelled daily at the present time by persons employed in Sag Harbor and residing in Noyac. Dated December 28, 1914.

Page 448. (Abstract). Oscar B. Edwards being duly sworn says: That he resides at Noyac in the Town of Southampton, etc., and that he was born at that place on June 27th, 1847, and has ever since resided there the major part of his life; that his father Louis R. Edwards who died at the age of 84 was born and lived his whole life in the same house in which deponent now resides; that he is well acquainted with the beach in said Town known as Long and Short Beach leading from Noyac to Hogg Neck; that he has all his life used and considered said beach as a highway and that it was so used and considered by the community of Noyac; that the character of said beach has not changed to any appreciable extent and is the same to-day as far back as he can remember; that he and many others have for a long period of over fifty years carted seaweed, meadow hay and fish over said beach. That deponent was employed in carpentering on a Mr. Taylor's house at North Haven a period of 6 or 7 years ago and during said period of employment deponent used said beach as a highway twice daily. Deponent further says that he has heard his father say, in his lifetime, that said Long and Short Beach was a public highway. Deponent further says that his father was a cooper by occupation and for many years was employed by one Gawley at North Haven and that he used the said beach daily going to and from his work. That the said beach is at the present time traveled daily. Dated December 28, 1914.

Page 449. (Abstract). Louis R. Edwards being duly sworn says: That he resides at Noyac, etc.; that he was born at said place on May 10th, 1856, and has ever since resided there; that his father Louis R. Edwards was born at said that in 1814 and always resided there; that he is well acquainted with Long and Short Beach leading from Noyac to Hogg Neck; that he always considered said beach a public highway and for a period of over twenty years has carted fish and seaweed over said beach; that said beach was always considered to be a public highway by the community of Noyac and that he has heard his father say that said beach was a recorded highway and that it has always been used as a highway; that the character of said beach has not changed within his memory. Payne being duly sworn says: That he is a resident of North Haven in the Town of Southampton, etc.; that he was born at said place on May 13, 1844, and has ever since resided there; that he is well acquainted with the beach known as Long and Short Beach, etc., as a public highway; that he has always considered and used said beach as a highway to reach the Village of Sag Harbor from North Haven, and that it was so considered and used by the residents of North Haven, as long as he can remember; that he has heard his father and his grandfather, David Wilson, say that said beach was a public highway and that they and every one had always used it as such and up to the time that the bridge connecting North Haven with the mainland was the only way to reach Sag Harbor from North Haven; that he has used said beach as a highway for a period very much longer than twenty years; that on many occasions he has accompanied both his father and his grandfather to Sag Harbor when they have used said beach. Deponent further says that he was one of four men summoned by one Burt Gleason pursuant to the order of Egbert Hildreth, Commissioner for the Town of Southampton, to work out a part of his highway tax by assisting in removing obstructions in said highway placed there by an owner of property adjoining said highway, by name of Charles La Mont; that after the completion of said work said La Mont caused their arrest; that he went to Riverhead with the others to await the action of the Grand Jury and spent 3 or 4 days there without hearing anything pertaining to our case until one day Hawkins was sentenced for murder while in the corridor of the Court House, my name was called out by District Attorney Wilmot M. Smith and upon my answering he said "You can go home, there is no case against you." Deponent further says that he has assisted in hauling the long seine, of which his father was captain.
many times, and that it was always hauled on said beach. Deponent further says that the beach aforesaid has not changed in character to any appreciable degree as long as he can remember. Dated December 31, 1914.

Page 452. (Abstract). Edward B. Seely being duly sworn says: That he is a resident of North Haven, in the Town of Southampton, etc.; that he was born July 7th, 1866, at North Haven; that he is well acquainted with the highway over Long and Short Beach, in said Town, leading from Noyac to Hogg Neck; that he always considered said beach to be a public highway and has used it as a highway for a period of at least 26 years; that he has performed highway labor for the Town of Southampton upon said beach; that in the year in which one Hawkins was convicted for murder in the County of Suffolk, and while one Egbert Hildreth was Commissioner of Highways for the Town of Southampton, he was summoned to work out a portion of his Town highway tax upon said beach by assisting in removing obstructions in the form of large boulders from the said highway. That during the prosecution of said work one Charles La Mont endeavored to stop the work but was ignored by the foreman, Burt Gleason. After the completion of said work said La Mont caused the arrest of all the others. I was not arrested because my name was not correct in the warrant. The next morning we all appeared before one Philander Jennings a Justice of the Peace for Southampton Town, and were held to await the action of the Grand Jury. I attended at Riverhead at the next term of Court held thereafter to wait the action of the Grand Jury but no action was taken and we returned home after a period of 3 or 4 days. Dated December 31, 1914.

Page 453. (Abstract). David W. Payne being duly sworn says: That he was born November 22nd, 1841, at North Haven in the Town of Southampton, etc.; and has ever since resided there; that he is well acquainted with the beach known as Long and Short Beach within said Town leading from Noyac to Hogg Neck; that he has always considered and used said beach as a highway to reach the Village of Sag Harbor from North Haven, and that it was so considered and used by the residents of North Haven as long as he can remember; that he has heard both his father and his grandfather, David Wilson, say that said beach was a highway and up to the time of the building of the bridge was the only way to reach Sag Harbor from North Haven; that he has often, when a boy, accompanied his grandfather, David Wilson, to Sag Harbor, where he went to sell turnips and that on such occasions he travelled said beach. Deponent further says of his own knowledge that the Town of Southampton has caused work to be performed upon said highway and in the year in which one Hawkins was convicted and sentenced for the murder of his mother in Suffolk County, which he believes to be in the year 1882, he was called upon by one Burt Gleason pursuant to the order of one Egbert Hildreth, Commissioner of Highways for the Town of Southampton, to work out a part of his highway tax by assisting in removing obstructions in said highway, placed there by one Charles La Mont, a property owner adjoining said highway; that engaged with him in said work were Henry Payne, deponent’s brother, Edward Seeley, Burt Gleason and . . . Leek; that while so engaged said Charles La Mont appeared and ordered them to discontinue or he would arrest them for trespass; that they continued and completed said work, and in a short time thereafter a lawyer by the name of Bisgood representing said La Mont appeared and caused their arrest. That they were brought before one Philander Jennings, a Justice of the Peace of the Town of Southampton, and held for the Grand Jury. That they signed each other’s bail bond which said bonds were fixed at $100.00 each; that thereafter they all went to Riverhead to attend and await the action of the Grand Jury, and that they stayed there 3 or 4 days and that deponent’s wife accompanied him; that no action was taken, no one appearing against them as far as deponent could ascertain. That on the afternoon of the day that the aforesaid Hawkins was sentenced, while all were in the corridor of the Court House, the late Judge Wilmot M. Smith, whom deponent believes was district attorney at the time, upon leaving the Court Room spied Leek and calling him over asked him “What are yon men hanging around here for?” whereupon Leek stated the facts concerning their presence there. That thereupon Judge Smith, said, “Let me go in and look at the record.” Whereupon he left them and in a little while reappeared and said, “You can go home, there is no case against you. That road has been on record 180 years and it was laid out thirteen rods wide so that if you couldn’t travel under the bank you could go over the bank.” Deponent further says that menhadin (or bunker) fishing was the principal industry of the community for many years and that his father was Captain of a commonunal seine one mile long and that said seine was always hauled on said beach and that each catch was carted away over said beach. Deponent further says that said beach has not changed in character to any appreciable degree to what it was when he first knew it and that he has never heard his father or any other person state that any change had taken place; that the whole beach was considered and used as a highway and that the meadow was only travelled when high tides and ice made it impossible to use said beach.

By an Act of the Legislature passed March 13th, 1902, the number of Town Trustees had been reduced from 12 to 5, and their terms extended to two years. Biennial elections had taken the place of annual town meetings and the change came in under a Legislative Act of 1897. A Town Board had been created to take over many of the duties heretofore considered to be a part of the authority delegated by majority vote to the Town Trustees of the Freeholders and Commonalty.

The duties of the Town Board embrace a great variety of subjects, and while their prerogatives are prescribed and restricted by checks and balances of the law, they have great latitude. The Minute Book for the year 1920—1926 records that certain appointive officers were approved and their compensation regulated; a lighting district was established at Riverside, a part of Southampton town, near the village of Riverhead; matters of highway improvement engaged the attention of the Board, and by agreement with the State Highway Commission the improvement of a part of the State and County highways from Quogue to nearly three miles eastward were widened and paved to a width of 20 feet, instead of 16 feet, by town expense; Tide Gates were placed in Shinnecock—Peconic Canal, and bulkheads ordered constructed to keep... the banks from falling in, and Town counsel was instructed to draft a bill asking that the State compensate the Town for cost of such betterments inasmuch as the canal is a State canal; road machinery was bought and sold; moneys appropriated for removal of snow; correspondence held with the War Department regarding the closing of navigation in Shinnecock Bay and canal for two months in winter in an effort to obtain a head of water and keep open an ocean inlet or "seapoose" at Shinnecock Bay; improvements to the South Country Road were approved; a Committee worked for the deepening of channels in route from West Bay to Peconic Bay and sought assistance from the War Department; motor cars were purchased, typewriters and adding machines were purchased for Town officials and Town offices; in April, 1920, the Town Clerk's salary was fixed at $3,600 per annum, in lieu of all fees, and a General Clerk to assist the Town Clerk was appointed at a salary of $1,200 per annum, and a Clerk to the Supervisor whose services were also available for Town Officers, was also appointed at a salary of $1,500 per annum, all under the amended Town Law of 1920. The same month highways and drainage systems for newly paved roads were inspected by the Town Board, who also inspected a new Lock at Shinnecock—Peconic Canal. Mapping of woodlands for purpose of assessment and mapping of bounds of school districts were authorized.

The years embraced by this Minute Book are those directly following the armistice and declaration of peace, after the World War. Conditions had changed and money values were not the same. There was a general tendency of increased values. The purchasing power of the dollar fluctuated, and the cost of town government increased in money valuation in all departments. This condition had to be met and provision made for the rapidly growing population of Southampton. The motor vehicle made imperative construction of a good roads system throughout the town; and Southampton is one of the larger towns of Suffolk County. These problems were wisely solved by progressive officials chosen at the elections, now held biennially, in November, instead of annually in April. The wage of the teamster and laborer on the roads and the workers in other departments doubled and trebled. As a natural consequence of changed conditions compensation of other town employees and heads of departments was advanced. These matters had all to be solved by the Town Board, acting as guided by the Town Law. Compensation of officials and deputies was finally fixed as follows, and is in force this year:

Supervisor, $6,000 a year.
Town Clerk, $3,000 a year.
Superintendent of Highways, $4,000 a year.
Tax Receiver, $3,000 a year (reduced from $3,600).
Assessors, $1,500 each a year.
Justices of the Peace, $1,800 a year.
Auditors, $300 a year each.
Trustees, $300 a year each.
Overseers of the Poor, $800 a year each.

The above, and all other officials of the town, deputies and assistants, are on salary, in lieu of fees. Each and every fee collected is turned back into the town treasury.

Some of the acts of the Town Board recorded in the Minute Book are:

Appointment of Attendance Officers, Bridge Tenders, Counsel, Traffic Officers, Special Constables, Election Inspectors and Clerks, Highway Superintendent’s Deputy, Supervisor’s Clerk, Assessors’ Clerks, Tax Receiver’s Deputy and Clerks, General Clerk, Head Clerk, Health Officer, Registrar, Janitor, Historian, etc.
The compensation of all these assistants had to be fixed as regulated by Town Law.

As the town had made a change from the labor system of working out the road tax; it went much further, purchased road machinery and constructed, by award of State contract, one of its main highways, while contracts for construction of concrete paved lateral roads and sidewalks were awarded to private bidders.

The town at a special election, in 1926, voted to appropriate $250,000 for construction of nine miles of concrete road, on the South Beach, between the west bound of Southampton village and Post Bridge, at Quogue; this was conditional, the Bay and Beach Corporation, owners of land along the ocean at the Beach, agreeing to contribute $250,000 toward building the road, estimated to cost completed $500,000. The bond issue for the road was authorized. Certain taxpayers objected to so large an expenditure, and a temporary injunction obtained. The town won in the first action at law for removal of the injunction; but an appeal was taken. In 1927, at Town election the Bay and Beach Company irked by the delay, proposed to the town, that it would build a loam road without expense to the town, providing the town released it from the contract to contribute $250,000 toward building a concrete road. This proposition was put before the taxpayers, who then rescinded authority for the proposed town bond issue of $250,000.

The town has constructed under the Lowman act many miles of concrete road to mention only some of the most important the Flanders road (in part; completed by the State), the Wainscott road, and the Turnpike road between Bridgehampton and Sag Harbor.

Authorized by the taxpayers, the town has built necessary bridges to complete its good roads system.
Some of the most important are Sagaponack bridge, Westhampton bridge, and many bridges, in part paid for by the town, making safe crossings of the Long Island Railroad, of which there are many at grade. These grade crossings are gradually being eliminated. It is a slow and costly change; but eventually all main highways, as well as lateral roads, will cross over, or under, railroad tracks.

At the town election in 1927 provision was made for construction of a $100,000 draw bridge at the extreme western part of the town.

The opening and the improvement of many roads on Shinnecock Hills has been accomplished in the years covered by the Minute Book. A system of dirt and oiled roads has been made possible by election of skilled road superintendents, and the dirt roads of Southampton are known to be equal to the best in the country. A beautiful wooded section at the northern part of town has been opened to motor car drivers, these roads at times passing through primevil forests, along beach and bay, affording delightful views, or over the rolling hills of Long Island’s “backbone” close to pretty lakes in the valleys. At certain places the view from the highland at north of the Hamptons is almost panoramic. The work of Superintendents of Highways in opening these heretofore little traveled roads has been supported by the Town Board.

Efforts to have expense of maintenance of North Haven bridge placed upon the town have been successfully combated. This bridge, built originally as a toll-bridge between Sag Harbor and North Haven, in 1834, was owned by the “Payne Bridge Company.” Chapter 403 of the Laws of 1868 dissolved the bridge company and transferred the maintenance of the bridge to Suffolk County. After that, the bridge was so neglected that effort was then made to throw expense of the bridge back upon Southampton town. The movement was frustrated. The bridge, while in Southampton town, accommodates all traffic between the eastern towns of the county.

The Town Board has also cared for ancient burial grounds. When the Proprietors sold all remaining undivided lands, in 1882, burying grounds were excluded. The powers of the Town Board and the Town Trustees appear to be coequal regarding burial grounds; at least the Town Board has provided money for their care. The matters brought to attention of the Town Board concerning the seapoose and fisheries, both swimming fish and shellfish, have been referred to the Town Trustees, where they properly belong.

The litigation regarding compensation for the widow of a Special Town Constable, shot in a bootleg altercation between officers and rum-runners, is casually recorded in the record.

Also the cases of the town in attempting to open an ancient road leading to Cow Neck, and construct a bridge across Scallop Pond; and to maintain title to a road claimed to exist on the Ramsay property in the western part of the town, near Flanders. The town was unsuccessful, as items in the Minute Book explain, the Courts taking a different view of the necessities of today as compared with the privileges of Proprietors and Freeholders more than two centuries ago.

The town has built its concrete roads; it has dredged Squires' Inlet for gravel, and it has taken for its own use gravel obtained from bottoms of bays at its north side for road building; it has also sold to contractors gravel from beaches and gravel taken from bay bottoms where permission has been given favorably both by Town Trustees and the Town Board.
The regulation of traffic by “silent policemen,” or “talking lamps,” and “turtle-back lights” is another problem solved by the town officials in years 1920-1926.

Some action was taken during this period to cooperate with the State Conservation Commission to prevent forest fires. Great fires have done much damage in the woods and upon Shinnecock Hills. A fire observation tower has been recommended.

A glance at the record will show the establishment of lighting districts, fire districts, and police districts, in the various unincorporated villages and hamlets of the town.

A site for a new Town Hall had been purchased in Southampton, centrally located, and a modern and spacious building erected thereon. This land was purchased at a time, before land values on Southampton Main Street so greatly increased. The hall was built by contract at a time before both labor and material had reached the peak of high compensation, shorter hours and excessive cost. The best of materials were provided and the workmanship on the hall has given the town a building commensurate to its requirements, and providing for the future. This hall was built at a very reasonable figure. While it meets all needs of the present and provides for the future, it was constructed at a timely period, thereby saving much expenditure.

Some other activities of Southampton’s Town Board recorded in the Minute Book, 1920---1926, are here briefly enumerated:

Providing for purchasing road machinery, endorsing a Mosquito Extermination Commission as a county necessity, fostering a North Sea Landing and dredging the channel and providing a harbor on the north side of town.
at Peconic Bay, preserving and bringing Town Records up to date, rebuilding Post Bridge, improving canals and waterways, surveying and monumenting town roads heretofore recorded but "insufficiently defined," improving bridge approaches to Riverhead in conjunction with the Riverhead Town Board, applying for Trustees to hold custody of North Sea Landing, ratifying bond issues for roads and bridges, opening old roads and landings at Noyac, preparing the way for a tax map to aid the Board of Assessors, introducing the budget system, purchasing voting machines and appointing custodians, approving the West Neck dock, and a thousand and one other projects of more minor importance which come before the weekly meetings of the Town Board.

The minutes have been carefully kept by the Clerks, James A. Early, and Edward P. White, who served the town in the years 1920—1926. Nothing has been omitted in the transcripts and such abstracts as have been made are true abstracts embracing the gist of the memorandum recorded. All minutes here reproduced have been carefully compared, and with exception of such error as may have inadvertently passed notice of a line for line and word for word check, the printed book may be accepted as a correct reproduction of the filed minutes preserved in Southampton Town Clerk's office.

Resolved. That the Supervisor is hereby authorized and directed to have Mr. Housel draw up agreements for extraordinary highway repairs.

Abstract. Rugs ordered purchased for the Town Board room and Assessors' room; furniture and equipment for the Supervisor's office.

The following opinion was received from Mr. Housel: "Town Board of Southampton:

"In my opinion the proposal to consent to the expenditure of $15,000 for extraordinary repairs to certain highways in your town as stated in the annexed request is illegal."
The purpose of Section 93 of the highway law is to provide for meeting certain emergencies between town meetings when delay would result in inconvenience or damage to citizens. The purpose of the highway law as interpreted by the courts has been to limit highway expenditures to the amounts voted upon by the taxpayers except in those emergencies requiring prompter action. For such emergencies, however, a limit has been fixed, and the limit applicable to the present case is $6,000. Section 94 Highway law as amended 1921.

“The Board therefore cannot consent to any expenditure in this behalf exceeding $6,000.

“Very truly yours,

Meeting adjourned.

OUR EARLY BEGINNINGS

The title to Long Island was vested in the Crown, after the English were awarded the New Netherlands, and it is a title by conquest, not title by discovery, passed on to the Duke of York.

The province of New York was not amendable to the English Parliament. The King's, and subsequently the Duke's (when he became King) powers were supreme. New York had its own Parliament, such as the Assembly was, but it had originally little power.

"The grant was based upon the right of conquest which was conceded by Holland in the Treaty of Westminster.

"Through Governor Nicolls the Duke exercised the full powers under the Royal Grant before he, the Duke, became King. His right to sell, assign and convey, which was exercised by him before his accession to the throne, has never been called in question and is as good at law as are his similar acts after his succession to the Crown"—Constitutional History.

"In January, 1903, the Court of Appeals decided that the trustees of Southampton Town are a sovereign body with legislative rights superior even to those of the State of New York. The decision raised a doubt whether even the Federal government has undisputed rights within the territory of the township. The basis for the decision was the fact that Southampton town was created in 1676, Governor Andross acting under letters patent from the Duke of York. The patent gave the trustees sovereign rights over the area of the township. This act was reaffirmed by Governor Dongan in 1686, and made the town a state in all but name. When New York was made a royal province it secured its charter from James but, it was contended the Duke could not include in its powers any jurisdiction he had granted already. It was the Court’s opinion, therefore, that while the State had for some time exercised the functions of a government over Southampton Town, the inherent right of the trustees granted by James remains.” Long Island—Boroughs and Counties, pp 785, 786, Vol. II, 1925.

“From the day of the second Royal Grant to the Duke of York (1674) until the American Revolution broke the grip of the English Crown in America the lands in the Province were held in the personal Estate of the Duke of York, his heirs and assigns while the government thereof was vested in the same, according to the descent by inheritance under English common law. As a mere coincidence the remainders of the Colonial Estate descended from time to time under the same law of inheritance by which the Crown was inherited. In each instance the rights were personal. Never once from the date of the Crown Grant to the Duke of York (1674) which grant was neither sanctioned nor objected to by the English Parliament, did that body pass any law or statute relating to lands in Colonial America; or to be more concrete to lands in the Province of New York.”—Crown Grants, “The Power of the Crown,” p 25.

“The British Parliament had no authority over the Colonies.”—Constitutional History of the State of N. Y.—p 5.—Dougherty.

The foreshores of Montauk are owned by New York State. Montauk uplands run to high water mark (unless it is found that the Long Island group grant goes to channelways). Associated proprietors by three different purchases made from the Indians bought Montauk.

The town of East Hampton owns nothing (other than the fee of highways ceded) and these only after 1915, on Montauk, east of a bound at Nominick Hills where the Highlands commence at Hither House, now State Park. And where the eastern part of Napeague terminates. In 1852, March 9th, the Trustees of the Town of East Hampton, by court order, executed to the common tenants, proprietor owners of Montauk, "a release and surrender of the premises under their corporate seal." The lands under water at Block Island Sound, Fort Pond Bay, Montauk, belong to the State of New York. It has granted riparian privileges there for piers and jetties. This is permitted by the War Department, supervising the navigable water, and unopposed by the private owners of Montauk, or the Town of East Hampton in which, and of which geographically Montauk lands are a part. While having no fee, the Town might protest a riparian application.

"The title to the lands embraced in the Lordship and Manor of St. George descends from an Indian source and was approved by the English Crown, as appears in the account of the said Manor. The grant was made to the Chief Justice of the Province of New York by the Crown and Governor, under the direction of Crown Counsel. The instrument declares that the purchase was made of 'ye native Indians according to the lawes of our said province.' The validity and regularity of the purchase from the Indians is not open to controversy."—The Power of the Crown, p 114.

"Toward the Indians Kieft's dealings were characterized by a rigid regard for their possessing rights; no title was deemed vested and no right was absolutely claimed until satisfaction was made to the Indian owner."—J. W. Gerard, "The Administration of William Kieft."—Memorial History of the City of New York, Vol. 1, Chap. VI.

There are many ramifications to so puzzling a topic as title to all towns in land, and town or private bounds and regulations of foreshores.
There are many ramifications to so puzzling a topic as title to all towns in land, and town or private bounds and regulations of foreshores.

History clearly shows (probably with manorial grants excepted) that the uncultivated land and tidal water was held as “Common undivided land” an often used as a “highway” or way of passing and repassing in early years of Long Island’s settlement. The courts have held that the beaches were not in a proper term “highways.” They were not so recorded, in most instances, and where so used were insufficiently recorded, defined, surveyed and monumented. And the historian thinks that beach is not a highway, unless so named. There are instances where the beach and meadows and bay front are called highway about 1780 in Southampton town. And the highway “leads over Napeague Beach” in East Hampton town.

In all of the above we understand that the Indians were in possession of the soil and that the Crown had jurisdiction by discovery (1st) and by conquest (2nd).
TOWN TRUSTEES' AUTHORITY GROWS LESS YEARLY

It is not a great many years ago when the Long Island towns were peculiarly provincial. The people were sufficient to their own wants, which were simple, and inhabitants of neighboring towns were termed "foreigners" in all acts relating to hunting and fishing. Under the colonial patents the trustees had a right to regulate, and did control and supervise the fisheries. They retain these perogatives to the present day; but to a much lesser degree of authority, the State having absorbed through centralization and a bureaucratic encroachment on many of the governmental functions once pecuniarily availing to proprietor owners of land and water grants managed by town trustees.

Inhabitants of townships bordering another township, could not come in and take fish, oysters, clams, eels, etc., and in many instances people of one town, who, after permission gained from persons appointed to manage the fisheries, took shell-fish, and sometimes floating fish, were forbidden to ship such shell-fish or scale fish, out of limits of the town.

Myriads of alewives were caught in early times. The fish were salted and pickled, put up in barrels, and sent to Sag Harbor for export to be shipped in vessels. Finally this was forbidden. With all the regulations applying to the Mecox Bay, the West Bay, and the Oyster Pond at Montauk, the elements seem to have had much more to do with the scarcity or plenitude of shell-fish. The Hampton and Brookhaven towns limited the quantity of oysters that might be caught by one person, and such oysters were not free to be taken, but at first, liberty from trustees’ prosecutors must be obtained, and oysters or clams were for family consumption only. The opening of the “pooses” was strictly regulated. Nets could only be set, or drawn in certain localities. Favored individuals were leased lands beneath water for oyster culture. The artificial propagation of oysters is nothing new. Brookhaven town and Hampton men conducted experiments along such lines as early as the 17th century. These bay laws were irksome and cases of trespass and offending are frequent. Not only were public prosecutors appointed, but every inducement resorted to and offered to punish transgressors. The prosecutors got half the forfeiture when a case was carried to effect; sometimes the town trustees took the other half, and sometimes the magistrate before whom the action was tried—the latter practice creating opportunity for prejudicial judgments at times rather than a quality of justice unstrained. Long Island got away from this practice 150 years ago. It has, however, gradually come back to it, and traps are set to-day for speeding motorists, and traffic officials have worked in cahoots with magistrates to mulct a public and pay expenses of a police force and village or borough government by fat fines. There was continual wrangling at town meetings over bay regulations. At some times the bays were very productive of oysters, and “oyster stews” were, and still are, a favorite food. At Shinnecock, Mecox, and South Bay, a hundred years ago, it was no uncommon sight to see 200 men oyster ing in that time—they averaged about five bushels a day per man when the “set” was good. All the oysters were “natural growth,” although there were then some “leased lots” where the bivalves were cultivated. East Hampton town more than 100 years since attempted to cultivate oysters on muddy bottom at Northwest creek. The oysters smothered and died. Oysters in seed taken from Oyster Pond at Montauk, and planted in the running brook at Alewive Neck, thrived and natural oysters grow there to-day. When the oystering season opened at Great South Bay and Mecox Bay, on September 1, or September 10, as the law might apply, men all over Southampton town from Red Creek to Sag Harbor came oystering and within limits of Brookhaven, as well. Laws which had been passed by the trustees applied in many ways. They were never satisfactory. Men sometimes could “oyster” only two days in the week; sometimes they were permitted to “oyster” only one day a month; they had to go to men appointed bay custodians, and ask permission to go “oystering;” therefore when the season opened the greater part of the town intended to improve it. Oysters were a luxury. They made an agreeable change from rougher foods, salted meats, and regular rations. Persons who had no regard for the town laws poached the oysters when they could—honest people obeyed the regulations. A prohibition against freely catching oysters prevailed many years. The town divided on free bay and leased bay in first years of the 19th century, and for 80 years thereafter the question caused agitation. Proprietor trustees loudly proclaimed ownership of the bay bottom, and such lands under water they leased for a stipulated fee. Despite the act of 1818 which gave Southampton town “the water and the products of the waters” there was effort to circumvent this law. And the townsfolk of Southampton living 5 years after a compromise effected in 1816-18, apparently forgot the intent of the law. Not until the courts in the Southampton town vs. Mecox Bay Oyster Co., had decided lands under water belonged to the town and were public, was the oyster question finally laid. Since the suit at law in 1885 the ocean side ponds and bays connecting at times by natural or artificial waterways with the ocean have been controlled by the freehold trustees. There was much litigation about shellfish in Brookhaven town, Smithtown and Port Jefferson having their share.
Nature took a hand and settled the oyster disputes two generations ago. The bay at Mecox had been closed a long while. The water became so fresh that the bay filled with grass. Then men dug a channel-way across a narrow beach, connecting bay with ocean. The "poose" remained opened nearly a year. The bay became very salt. When summer came the great masses of grass were killed by the salt water. It settled down on the oysters and smothered them. The dead grass and rotting oysters made a stench at low tide. It was offensive, possibly deleterious to health; but the natives did not mind it; it was an ozone-laden odor, a change from the breeze-laden rotting bunker smells arising from green fish then spread upon farm land for fertilizer. The Brookhaven natural oyster enterprise also languished; it gave way to "oyster farming," or cultivation.

All of the oysters were not killed. They again multiplied. The fisheries of the Hampton towns are undoubtedly regulated by the opening and closing of the "bay poose". More attention was given supervision of the "poose" than now. Fishing used to be quite an object. The bay was let out in the fall at the season of bass migration along the Atlantic coast. The opening of the "poose" made good fishing. The bay was also let out in the spring giving the alewives opportunity to come in.

Great areas of bay bottom in Shelter Island Sound, the Peconic Bays, Gardiner's Bay and Great South Bay and the Long Island Sound and north-side Long Island bays are now cultivated to oysters. Brookhaven town men and Southampton men leased bay bottom from the trustees fully 150 years ago—organized to "farm" oysters; dug an inlet refreshing the waters of the bay; the commonalty of the town said the company had no right in the bay bottom. The freeholders went out on the bay and helped themselves to oysters growing on the leased bay bottom. They were arrested and prosecuted. A change of venue was obtained. The offending trespassers were taken to the town of Brookhaven and the defendants won the suit—after that for some time nobody was interfered with while taking oysters.

To go off on the bays boats were needed. Pioneer boat builders lived in Brookhaven town. Among the best were Smithtown and Port Jefferson men. From building small boats they became skillful in shaping vessels of large tonnage: sloops, schooners, barks, brigs, majestic-full-rigged ships, pleasure sailing craft, steam and gasolene propelled yachts, all were built at Port Jefferson. These vessels sailed the seven seas.

COLONIAL HISTORY CLARIFYINGLY DISCUSSED

A brief story of origin and descent of Long Island land titles is here discussed in a letter written by Stephen L. Mershon, of the Symes Foundation, to an inquiry by H. D. Sleight. Permission to publish all, or part of the digest, has been granted. The Indian proprietorship of Long Island and the Indian deeds, and confirmatory Crown deeds are carefully considered.

As the guardian of the Indian, the Crown having the ultimate title but not the proprietorship of the soil, approved and made legal the Indian deeds.

A determination as to the ownership of ponds, lakes, etc., within the confines or limitations of the boundaries expressed in the grants, depends entirely upon the respective grants and the underlying deeds. (Note.—Islip and Smithtown were granted a Patent in each case to individuals; Southampton's Patent was granted to the Town, so the courts ruled. The judgments found by the courts were that Lake Ronkonkoma and its bottom, conveyed within a certain grant, are now owned privately, while Mecox Bay, fed by eternal springs and not navigable water belongs to the Town of Southampton for the court interpreted the Dongan patent to convey to the town, and opined that no individual "ever mediately took title to lands," but got his lands from the town who recognized his equitable title.—H. D. S.) The latter (Indian deeds) are the basis of the property rights in the soil which were confirmed and approved by the Crown. The grants from the Crown, while governing, should be interpreted in the light of the underlying Indian deeds which the Crown grants were intended to validate and did so.

"Please always bear in mind the deliverance of our State Supreme Court in the case of Delancey vs. Piepgras." "The right of jurisdiction and the right of property must not be confounded." (138 New York 36.)

"When the Indian deeds to lands on Long Island in the then Province of New York are given due consideration in present day judicial proceedings and their proper correlative effect with Crown grants is fully disclosed, an army of Long Islanders will enter into a period of quietude of title and established property rights heretofore denied them.

"You will note that in the grants referred to the language varies more or less. In all of them the Crown does as the Indians in their deeds do; includes all that was substantial in the way of property rights and values within the boundaries set forth therein, excepting where otherwise specifically reserved therefrom."
"It seems very hard for many to learn the simple lesson that water on the surface of land was never considered by the Common Law in the colonial period as affecting a grant of land. A body or stream of water was at times used to define limits of land just as a tree or rock or other physical feature might be used. (Note: An Indian boundary river between Southampton town and Brookhaven town—the Indians could gather reeds and thatch on either side of the river, but the water was the boundary.—H. D. S.) But if a pond existed upon the surface of land-described-area, or if a stream meandered through it and was not excepted (Note: The proprietors excepted the mill-streems in making grants and divisions of land in Southampton town.—H. D. S.) therefrom by the terms of the grant, it went as a continuous area of land, irrespective of the existence of the water thereupon. This was likewise true of the Indian deeds.

"Amplification of a description by the term 'together with meadows, marshes, streams, ponds, etc., WITHIN THE LIMITS AND BOUNDS DESCRIBED' did not in any wise increase the area of the land granted. It was intended simply to make clear the Grantor's intent to convey all such values WITHIN the tract conveyed by the grant. Amplification in description differs very decidedly from extension of the boundaries of the tract conveyed."

A decision of the State Supreme Court, after seven years litigation, is awaited concerning ownership of a pond or large lake in Southampton town. A gunning club has bought up title to lands all about the lake. The town asserts a public road runs to the pond; and that residents have for 290 years exercised a privilege to gun, hunt, or fish without trespass. The matter to be determined is whether an inland lake or pond is to be classified as owned by the Town or owned by Proprietors who allotted lands and conveyed. There are at least two instances where the Proprietors of the Undivided Lands sold ponds outright and they have been converted to fish ponds where the tide rises and falls by construction of artificial inlets or canals. One of these privately owned ponds at Sag Harbor, has been thrown open to the public by the beneficence of the late Mrs. Olivia Slocum Sage, who caused to be opened a public road running thereto. Mrs. Sage's grandfather, Major John Jermain, bought the lake from Southampton town trustees, in 1793, who had previously sold it in 1782 to Deacon Hedges and Ebenezer White and associates, who employed Indians and others to dig a trench to make a fish pond, and rewarded the diggers, so is tradition, with a barrel of New England rum. The first grantees petitioned to transfer their grant to Jermain who got a confirmatory grant.

When the Proprietors tried to sell Mecox, a large fresh water pond, or its under water land in 1882, the Court fund the title of the bottom, or land under it, was vested in the town and not in Proprietor tenants in common.
The Colonial grants on Long Island are puzzling as to true meaning of boundaries of the Long Island townships. They are here made clear by Mr. Stephen L. Mershon, the author of several volumes of standard works about the islands of New York province, and writer of "Crown Grants", and "The Power of the Crown in the Valley of the Hudson."—Ed.

"I have given heretofore my views regarding sovereign grants and their relation to the water marks in tidal streams; only in the absence of a definite statement of a fixed boundary in the grant does the court limit the same to high water mark.

"Broadly speaking, bays are judged by the courts to be interior bodies of water when the opening from the bay into the tidal sea is more restricted or narrower than the body of the bay, not, however, in the case of the Long Island Sound, the Delaware Bay, and Chesapeake Bay, in which the body of navigable water is almost equivalent to open sea. South Bay, Shinnecock Bay, Moriches Bay, Gardiner's Bay, Peconic Bay, and Mecox Bay are all interior bodies of water.

"The Court may hold a deed running to the ocean as good and valid. It may also hold a deed to be good in which beach is the boundary, and yet there may be no conflict between the two. As conveyances, both deeds may be good. The issue as to what physical boundaries were intended thereby and whether there is in fact a difference between the two, is a question entirely apart from the validity of the deed.

"The problem confronting in relation to Long Island titles cannot be approached from both a fixed and changeable viewpoint without confusion. We cannot run a survey line based upon the North Star and a comet when dealing with colonial conditions. You are dealing with facts. Truth, in relation to truth, never conflicts. Opinions may differ, but facts remain. If we undertake to write colonial history drawn from judicial decisions resulting from partial and prejudicial statements of facts with some romancing in litigated cases, and which opinions frequently clash with each other and are often overruled, we will only find ourselves at sea in a fog.

“The fullest light of day now illuminates our colonial conditions, and it is found that the superstructure of judicial opinions and decisions which have been gradually crystallizing into almost established law, have in many cases been resting upon mistaken foundations of fact. Get historical facts right and the results will be ultimately established in prevailing law.

“Now, as to the distinction, if any, between the terms beach, strand, and shore. Generally speaking, and where the wording is not traversed for some substantial reason, the three words are used synonymously, and the courts have construed the same when used in deeds for descriptive purposes as relating to the lands between high and low water marks in tidal waters. This is not an absolutely inflexible and governing rule established by the courts as a finality. Such a rule might in certain cases apply at the foot of the Palisades in the Hudson where the formation is precipitous and rocky. The same rule might not, however, be applicable to the long stretches of white sand formations fronting the ocean at the Hamptons. Where the courts have laid down the above rule as a general proposition, they have also taken the position that the same can and should be modified by prevailing conditions, established customs, and definitions in vogue in the place or places where the issue is raised and the property affected is located.

"In the case of Oakes vs. Delancey, 133 N.Y. 227, the court had under consideration a deed of land to the shore of Long Island Sound conveying title to lands which had been paid for upon a survey which, according to the description in the deed by metes and bounds actually carried the boundary line below high water mark. Delancey sued to recover about $12,000, claiming to have overpaid on the theory that the deed extended only to high water mark, and did not include the acreage below that point. Both the lower court and the Court of Appeals decided against that contention, claiming that, while the general rule to recover is the high water mark, the deed must be construed with due reference to its other provisions, conditions, and the subject matter thereof. The Court in that opinion stated the title to the shore is presumably in the State. That with us is the common law rule, but does not exclude the possibility of the grantor deriving the title in the grantor derived from the sovereign or obtained by prescription.

"Note by the above the flexibility of the rule relating to the land between the two water lines, also an avowal of the lands granted or other circumstances, may authorize a different interpretation, and effect may be given to the word as meaning flats, or the sandy land between the upland and the actual shore line. It is further stated on the same page under the caption, 'Does not necessarily denote land between high and low water mark' as follows: the word beach has not such an inflexible meaning that it must denote between high and low water mark; Merwin vs. Wheeler, 41 Conn. 25.

"In the Encyclopediа of the U. S. Supreme Court Reports, Volume 10, page 269, under the rules governing the construction of sovereign grants, when the Revolution took place the people of each state became themselves sovereign; and in that character held the absolute right to all their navigable waters and the soil under them for their own common use, subject only to the rights since surrendered by the Constitution to the Federal Government. A grant therefore, made by their authority, must be tried and determined by different principles from those which applied to grants of the British Crown, etc. The Constitution of the State of New York confirms all grants made by the English Crown prior to the Revolution.

"There are many other authorities which might be quoted on this subject.

"Please notice that this statement confirms to that extent the diagram sent you by me on 'The theory of English Common Law,' which also appears in 'The Power of the Crown in the Valley of the Hudson.' It also shows that all of the powers vested in the Crown before the Revolution became vested in the people of the respective states after the Revolution. Such rights as were surrendered to the Federal Government were voluntarily granted by the states, the State of New York, not, however, then granting any lands to the Federal Government where such lands were either above or below high water, nor did any other of the original 13 states do so.
"There are rights belonging to the property owners on Long Island in and to its tidal shores which have not been in these latter days, according to my views, properly asserted, developed, and maintained."

A QUESTION OF PRIME IMPORTANCE

All Long Island is interested in ownership of its beaches. There are approximately 500 miles of water-washed land of Long Island, where the tide ebbs and flows. To whom does this belong? The answer is evasive and the court decrees conflicting when applied to different titles. But the historical facts about New York Province and New York State, of which Long Island is a part have not changed. For truth is eternal.

A few months ago New York State asserted ownership of certain oceanside Babylon town beaches. When we use the word beach we do it much as other Long Islanders do; in fact by Legislative Act more than 100 years ago, the beach is described to be a place where wood and grass grow, and cattle roam on the land. Yet decision and same opinions of recent times, in high courts, say beach is the wave-washed shore and standard authorities describe it to be land at times under water:

"The legal conclusion has been summarized as follows: The shore is that space of land on the border of the sea which is alternately covered and left dry by the rising and falling of the tide, or in other words the space between high and low water marks."—Amer. Encyl. of Law "Shore."—English Crown Grants.

As Babylon town once was a part of the Huntington grant, an examination of such grant and confirmatory grants, thereafter made, lets in a clarifying agent.
Historic facts will be placed in evidence with bench made law.

The Courts have admitted that the Indians were in possession of the lands when the white men came; but the Indian had no standing in Court, and he was protected as the ward of the Crown, who through Royal Governors could patent or confirm title, say the learned jurists.

Yet history tells us: That "the lands were purchased according to the laws of our said province," from "the native Indians" who "inherited from their ancestors." All this is on file in Albany. The Duke's Laws of 1665 say:

"No Purchase of lands from the Indians after the first of March 1664 shall be esteemed a good Title without leave first had and obtained from the Governoure and after leave so obtained, the Purchasers shall bring the Sachem and right owner of such Lands before the Governoure to acknowledge his satisfaction and payment for the said Lands whereupon they shall have a grant from the Governoure and the Purchase so made and prosecuted is to be entered upon record in the Office and from that time to be valid to all intents and purposes."

England always, in dealing with the Indians, recognized their rights in lands. Title of the Province taken from the Dutch, true, was by conquest rather than discovery, after the peace of Westminster. No lands on Long Island were ever taken from Indians by conquest. They were all satisfactorily paid for and then patented. The historian opines that the patents are "confirmatory," that the Indians who were in possession deeded lands which their guardian, the Crown, acquiesced in, sanctioned and granted. Reasoning thus, despite Court decisions, to the contrary, where evidence, apparently, has never been wholly presented, the grants were Sovereign grants. In the confirmatory grants of Andross and Dongan the description of the lands conveyed is closely followed as in the phrases of the Indian deeds; likewise the boundaries are named.

The several Huntington deeds place boundaries
"Northward by the Sound—the sea on the south."

As the sea and the sound are navigable tidal waters having fluctuating bounds, the question then arose to where did the Sovereign grant? It was determined:

"By the Common Law a grant of the Sovereign for premises bounded by navigable water where the tide ebbs and flows, extends only to high water mark."

This principle has been sanctioned by the courts of New York State and is a part of the Law of the Land.
The reason of a grant, emanating from the Colonial government as it did from the Sovereign power, being determined as above is that some fixed bound had to be named; and, the construction of a grant from the Sovereign is the most favorable for the grantor. When the conveyance proceeds from the Sovereign, it restricts the grant to high water mark, as that confines the grant within the narrowest limits.

The nut now to be cracked is to determine where is high water mark? Anson Getman recently is reported to have said before the State Bar Association:

"As a practical proposition, one of the greatest difficulties is to locate the line dividing upland and land under tide water. The Attorney General has rendered an opinion to the effect that the line of ordinary, mean high water shall control, and that such line may be located upon the ground by determining the point or extent to which upland vegetation survives or would survive excepting for the presence and action of the waters. If upland vegetation would not survive, the land is to be regarded as being under water."

Mr. Getman is a former Deputy Attorney General. This opinion, so Attorney General Hamilton Ward thinks, is informal. There is nothing to indicate that such an opinion was given by the Attorney General, in 1928.

If this informal opinion should be adopted as a maxim of law, what is to prevent New York State asserting its claim to own all the Long Island beaches?

May it not be logically deduced that:

1. The Indians originally owned a "possessory title" to Long Island.

2. The Crown owned all of New York Province.

3. It did not grant land below high water mark, only by "Especial grace."

4. After the Revolution the land owned by the Crown automatically became the property of the People of New York State, the State holding "in trust" for them what the Land Commissioners have not granted by the statutory riparian rights law of 1784.

There is one Long Island town that in quit-claiming ocean-side lands names the grass line on the southeast side of the sand bank or dune as the southerly bound.

The people of Long Island were and are cognizant of the shifting formation of the barrier beaches and islands on its south side, but Southampton is the only town found to have provided, by a compromise in 1818, that meadows that "may hereafter make up" shall belong to the proprietors. This arrangement seems to have been upset by the finding in the Southampton vs. Mecox Oyster Co., case where the bay bottom lands were held to be owned by the town and not by the heirs and assigns of the original purchasers of town lands. In that particular case the court found all title was originally granted the town as a corporation.

And, 10 years later, in 1896, basing his opinion on the Mecox Bay decision, Justice Bartlett ruled that islands that made up were emerged lands originally submerged, and thus owned by the town, who had the fee of the bay cbottom.

The law as expounded by Blackstone and other authorities "that land is land" no matter "whether covered by air, or covered by water," does not meet all conditions that have occasioned dispute on Long Island; or at least court ruling does not square with the maxim. It is apparent from old records that the undertakers who founded settlements on Long Island proceeded on the theory that they had bought all lands, emerged and submerged.

English law says that a wharf could not be built below high water mark without consent of the Crown; yet on Long Island under water lands were granted and lands exist today which were filled in and built upon beyond the Sovereign grant to high water.

The State met with no difficulty in asserting an ancient claim by which it acquired beach lands on the south shore opposite Babylon town, lands that were supposed formerly to be within the Huntington grant.

Would the State meet with difficulty if it required beach resorts? And such resorts will be required! The case of the People vs. Private Owners is entitled to its day in court, and the time is not far distant when the question may come before the jurists for settlement.
Regarding ownership of ponds a very high authority has this to say concerning the title of ponds:

"The presence of a pond of unnavigable water on the surface of a tract of land being conveyed by deed may in all respects be treated the same as if it was a sand pit. It is a matter of title in land, and the presence of either water or sand would not in any wise alter the described boundaries unless for convenience the document itself contained special limitations to that effect. Stick to land and you are all right, flounder in water and you may drown.

"Surveyors' lines do not pass through a pond; they travel on and in the ground, underneath the water, and that land carries on its surface the water.

"The right to cut ice on a pond has been clearly determined in many cases. It depends upon the ownership of the land under water and is limited to that extent."

Facts are foundations; but Mr. Stephen L. Mershon, an authority on grants, remarks: "The foundations, under many court decisions, are honeycombed, undermined, warped, twisted by compromise agreements, waiving of rights and other conditions which in the early days prevailed, thereby impairing and altering the force and effect of the original Grant, and upon which changes the final decision is largely predicated. If proprietorship of a pond by virtue of specific provisions in the respective deeds rests with the parties there, then access to or from the pond cannot be barred by the surrounding owners. Over what lands such access might prevail without trespass is a question for determination in the light of the facts and records in that particular instance. It cannot be covered in a general communication. As to the rules of navigation that what is a navigable stream or other body of water, is a mixed question of law and fact. It is not susceptible to a general rule that will apply to all bodies of water."

Early colonists in what is now Suffolk county made certain pacts among themselves. These were binding. They obtained many years before, confirmatory patents erecting townships. As Southampton was among the earliest settled on Long Island, the pact of the colonist is here produced. Other towns may have had slightly differing governing rules; but a general idea prevailing about title and reservations thus applies to water: 1st. The original settlers purchased and took possession of the territory within certain boundaries under and in pursuance of a solemn compact with each other, one of the main provisions of which asserted that there should be no private property in such waters, or in any of their benefits; but that they should remain for the common benefit of all; the language of the part referred to of this compact being “furthermore no person or persons whatsoever will challenge or claim any proper interest in seas, rivers, creeks or brooks howsoever bounding or passing through his grounds, but freedom of fishing, fowling and navigation shall be common to all within the banks of said water whatsoever.” 2nd. The legal title subsequently acquired by the town, under its colonial charters, to the territory within its limits was designated to be bestowed on it, not in hostility to this part of the original compact, but in accordance with it.

The “conduct and dealings of the town and the inhabitants in respect to navigable water from time of settlement to the present time are inconsistent with the notion that such waters belonged to any private individual.”

The above rule would not apply to Lake Ronkonkoma.
COLONIAL GRANTS CLEARLY DISCUSSED

There is a native of Long Island living at Montclair, N. J., who has made a thorough study of Crown grants and their application. To him I turned when some of the historical Colonial happenings were puzzling. He has been a great aid in straightening and explaining the origin and descent of tenure and land titles on Long Island. He wrote "The Power of the Crown in the Valley of the Hudson" and "English Crown Grants," standard authorities, and several other books. His briefs on Staten Island titles and ownership of land, and land under water, of Islands of New York Province have caused a Supreme Court Judge to remark: "Read English Crown Grants; there is not an error in it." The learned gentleman is Stephen L. Mershon, of the Symes Foundation. I have urged him to write a book concerning Long Island titles, their origin and descent. An explanation regarding many vexed questions applying to Long Island contains so much of real value, that I have asked permission to print it in part, having in mind the matters that may arise to plague and perplex posterity. This permission has been gracefully granted, and the thanks of all Long Islanders, I am sure, will be accorded Mr. Stephen L. Mershon. He writes me:

"I notice in your statement that an Island, as a proposition of law, as well as a physical fact, extends to the channelway, at its base and does not halt at high water mark. As an unanswerable proof I am sending you under separate cover a blue print entitled 'Island Foreshores.' A prominent real estate attorney says that it is the strongest legal 'brief' he has ever seen. You will notice that it proves that an Island's low water mark is ON the same. The Island, however, does not halt at the low water mark, as such marks have no relation to physical structure or to the legal definition of an Island.

"I also notice in Howell’s History on page 50 that the basis of the colonial government in the Hamptons among the early colonists was Theocratic. In support thereof we are also sending to you a second blueprint entitled ‘Theory of the English Common Law.’ These two prints may be of passing interest to you.

"Enclosed, as stated therein, is a revision of my letter to you of (March) the 5th inst. in which I have corrected a few expressions in the event you wish to use any part or all of the letter in your publications. You are welcome to do so if the same will serve your purpose."

Here follows a part of the brief:

"It seems to me that it is perfectly correct and in fact an obligation for the historian in making a statement of historic events to state that a court at a certain time rendered a certain decision and expressed a certain opinion on a subject; but, it is also incumbent upon the historian to present the facts as they appear in established records, as the essential elements in a historic narration and not to make a statement of historic facts based upon a judicial deliverance in any litigation.

"Referring to your letter of February 26th, it seems to me that the method of approach to the subject of land titles for the historian is to commence at the basic facts of colonial history. I think, as related to Long Island, especially the counties of Suffolk, Nassau and Queens, the colonial conditions and the law governing property rights as acquired in the colonial period, have never had their full day in court, and have never therefore properly been adjudicated, so as to become a determinative factor of modern law."
"First, you have your Indian proprietorship. That question was absolutely settled by the Crown in the Colonial period. The records are conclusive on this subject as related to the Province of New York, and a denial of such proprietorship by modern courts is a denial of the settled, definite law of the colonies adopted by and under the protection of our state constitution. The Crown, the judges of the colonial courts, and the colonists are dead. They have now no power in office, at the ballot box, or at the Bar, excepting through public records, which should govern the historian as well as the modern courts of law.

"Second, you have the Crown title to lands in the colonial period. The record is overwhelming and conclusive that the Crown title was absolutely distinct from the Indian proprietorship. Never once did the English Crown undertake to deprive the Indians of their absolute ownership of the soil, without compensation, excepting in the extreme case of open war, at which time civil law was in abeyance.

"Third, you are dealing with Indian Deeds, admitted and upon which Long Island towns and townships base their rights. These Indian deeds were recognized by the Crown and confirmed by the Crown and colonists. It is well understood why the Crown did this. It was to protect the uneducated Indian in his written comitments in the English language, and to see that he was not misled, or defrauded in the agreement which he made with our ancestors or by design, with others with whom he traded."
DOES NEW YORK STATE OWN LONG ISLAND BEACHES?

The intimation suggested that New York state might own most of the Long Island beaches, has attracted attention. Of course this would not apply to any upland beach formation above high water mark. Recent court decisions indicate that beach is wave washed shore, and in standard authorities shores is stated to be "the land alternately covered by water between high and low water mark," or what is sometimes called the strand. And the reasoning that high water mark is the mean where vegetation ceases to grow, or would cease to grow, because of action of tide water, is borne out by the Long Island men who erected huts or fishing shanties along the ocean shore. They do not consider domiciles safe or at all times high enough removed from the water to be habitable unless erected above the grass line on the sand bank; and they spread their nets on the grass line and haul boats up beyond the grass. East Hampton conveys land of the dunes or sand bank to the grass line on the ocean side and reserves land fifty feet inland at each side of a road leading to the ocean, above the high water mark, to haul up boats and fishing gear.

Matters of Town "rights" came up for adjudication between Huntington Town and Theo. Lowndes, an oyster planter, about half a century ago. It was a very important suit concerning lands under water. Note: That the Town lands were within bounds of the Town Patent of Huntington, and that it has been determined and generally accepted as a principle of Common Law that a Sovereign grant goes only to high water. And an opinion by Attorney General Tabor, in 1890, is to the effect that the Commissioners of the N. Y. State Land Office have no jurisdiction over lands under water within towns organized under Colonial patents. The Huntington Town suit, and the Trustees' claims had a direct bearing on all Long Island towns' claims. The Town of Huntington through its Trustees brought suit against Theo. Stanley Lowndes, resident of the State of Connecticut, who claimed the right to raise and take oysters from Huntington Bay, and refused to take license from Huntington Town Trustees. This was despite the ordinance against non-residents of the town taking shellfish and the exaction of a toleration fee, a practice which had been customary as long as the memory of man remembereth. Lowndes was a former resident of Huntington Town. He asserted that he had held adverse possession of the oyster beds for twenty years. The plaintiffs showed that they had never given up their rights. Several old charters and many ancient documents were put in evidence. Hon. Henry C. Platt, Charles R. Street and N. S. Ackerly, Esq., appeared for the town; Martin J. Keogh for defendant. The Trustees of Huntington valued their rights at $1,000,000. Lowndes claimed $10,000 interest in the lands involved. The decision had a very important bearing on rights of the other towns of Long Island. The decision of the Court was in favor of Huntington Town Trustees. The result was regarded as a great triumph for the town.

It was the first suit ever decided by a United States Court upon the question of the validity of the Colonial Patents of Long Island towns concerning lands under water. It greatly strengthened the title of the towns to their tide water lands. It squared out the Huntington Town water front to the line of the L. I. Sound, on its entire northern border, all the interior bays and harbors having been determined to be the property of Huntington.
The under water line of land within New York State was also determined and declared, at a later date, August 12, 1881 to be a line in the middle of L. I. Sound. The boundary line between Connecticut and New York was settled by commission to be a line running through the Sound, and the Legislature of this State ratified the commission's report. It extended the jurisdiction of Queens county, and of the towns bordering on Long Island Sound, over the waters of the Sound to that line, thus bringing within Smithtown, for instance, the large sheet of water between Eaton's Neck and Crane Neck, sometimes called Smithtown Bay; so the northern border of Long Island towns adjacent to L. I. Sound's waters is a line running through the Long Island Sound between Long Island and Connecticut.

But the original fee of the land remains in N. Y. State. This is made evident by legislation in Smithtown where the State cedes to Smithtown the under water lands, within the town, for propagation and regulation of shellfish, reserving its rights to grant lands for docks, etc. The State of New York also has ceded for digging and regulating soft shell clams, the flats in Smithtown, but the State retains the fee of the land.

The reader should try to keep in mind that under water land and upland, whether, it be land covered by air, or land covered by water, is considered to be and is very much the same.

It is easy to show that navigable under water lands, outside water mark, at Montauk, acquired by associated tenants in common, bought for them by Trustees named in the East Hampton Dongan Act of 1686, never belonged to East Hampton town. The latter town brought suit against non-resident fishermen, in 1894. The courts decided in 1891 that Fort Pond Bay, at Montauk, was not within the boundaries of the Montauk grant, and they declared Fort Pond Bay an open roadsted, or in any words N. Y. State waters.

It is not so easy to show where high water is on the ocean side. The water level effected by high, or spring tides, which are the flukes of the sea at those tides which happen at the two equinoctials; the spring tides which happen twice every month at the full and change of the moon; and, the neap tides or ordinary tides which happen between the full and change of the moon; twice in twenty-four hours.

The under water land (land at times covered by water) along the ocean beach does not belong to the Federal government; all lands owned by the Federal government come directly, or indirectly from the State. And only in time of war or insurrection may the Federal government exercise a right to take and regulate such under water lands, unless it has purchased the fee of such lands the same as a citizen or corporation.

The writer has seen an angry surf breach at the foot of the sand dunes along Long Island's south side; he has seen, in times of tidal waves, the sea flood meadow lands fully half a mile inland; he has also seen for the greater time in a season the white expanse of sea sand, or unarable land between bank and breaking billows, remain dry land. Just what the character of land this is: land under water or not, must some time be decisively settled. The sooner settled, the better.
"Each of the various Indian deeds to the settlers on Long Island, carries the same intent, purpose and rights. They may be somewhat differently expressed, but their plain intent cannot be mistaken and no sophistry of interpretation can possibly confine their boundary at a high water mark, a water line existing but for a flash of time twice a day. Such was no limitation for seafaring and fish seeking populations.

"The Indian deed of 1660 to East Hampton settlers not only granted the lands from 'sea to sea from the utmost end of the Island,' etc., but also all 'appurtenances whatsoever' and 'with whatsoever doth or may grow upon or issue from the same with all profits and commodities by sea or land.' It also declares the Indian grantors to be 'the true and lawful proprietors' thereof.

"Thomas Dongan, Captain General, etc., of the Province of New York in confirmation of the Indian conveyance to the settlers of East Hampton, on the 9th day of were made of the 'Native Indyan Proprietors' and that were made of the 'Natives Indyan Proprietors' and that the deed covered lands to the 'Utmost extent of the Island'; he also referred to other lands and authorized the settlers 'to purchase the said tract of land of the Native Indyans.'

"The records of Long Island towns are superabundant in their proofs as to the intent and extent of these conveyances, and, as well understood, accepted and acted upon for generations by the settlers and their descendants in the orderly experience of their daily avocations."
"The Indian deed to the settlers of Southampton dated December 13th, 1640, A. D., conveys land from the place commonly known by the name of the place where the Indians hayle over their canoes out of the north bay to the south side of the Island, from thence to possess all the lands lying eastward,' etc., 'with all emoluments and profits thereto appertaining, or in anywise belonging, from Sea or land,' etc.

"Nothing in that deed can possibly be construed as limiting it to tide water lines or as not including lands naturally belonging and essential to settlers largely dependent upon the sea for food and transportation. The Indians hauled over their canoes at all stages of the tides. Is it not possible that they gave physical possession to the settlers at low tide?

"On the other hand, the Indians, by the terms of that deed, conveyed all their lands between the Eastern and Western bounds, together with 'all emoluments and profits thereto appertaining, from Sea or land,' etc.

"This purchase from the Indians was made most largely by the same settlers who had just prior thereto (on March 10th, 1639) underwritten the entire price of a sailing vessel for Daniel Howe. One of the conditions of the vessel's underwriting was that 'this vessel shall be for the use of the Plantacon'; also 'that the vessel shall be redy at the Towne of Lynne to Transporte such goods as the afforesaid undertakers shall appointe; that is to say three times a year.'

"The enlisting of the vessel of Daniel Howe in the trade by water between Southampton Town and New England was in nowise an exceptional event for the sea faring settlers."
"Is it conceivable that vessel owners, engaging a vessel to ply three times a year between Lynn, Massachusetts, and Southampton, Long Island, and carrying its entire cost, would have only purchased from the Indians the upland for the latter town and hedged themselves behind high water mark, with their ship anchored at sea with no place to dock? To pursue the subject is to trespass upon the precincts of incredulity.

"The practice of the settlers in a thousand ways was consistent with the clear intent of the deeds as they defined the rights of the Aborigines and colonists in terms mutually understood and accepted by crown, settlers, and Indians.

"East Hampton sold to the State of New York lands under water at Sag Harbor for a public dock. This title rests upon an Indian deed confirmed by the Dongan Grant. The state accepted the title as is customary, under the advice of its Attorney General.

"The entire coast of Long Island in the early days was dotted here and there with tide water grist mills, fulling mills, and paper mills on tidal lands granted by settlers, under the Indian deeds. These mills, many with large capacities, stood upon lands in streams sold to the settlers by the native Indians and with the Indian deeds confirmed by the above Dongan and other similar confirmatory grants."—Shore Front Rights in the State of New York. by Stephen L. Mershon.
